Claims He's Notorious Jesse James

J. Frank Dalton Of Union, Aged 102, Goe to Court to Have Name Changed

By George Sitterly

UNION, Mo., March 10—(AP)—The curtains of oblivion get pretty thick and dusty in 68 years.

But J. Frank Dalton, an old codger of 102, plans to yank them aside here today and emerge as the original Jesse James, the rip-roaring Missouri outlaw of the last century.

Dalton carried his claim of notoriety to Franklin county circuit court. He was packed in on a stretcher because of a broken hip.

He wants the court to change his name to Jesse Woodson James That was his real name in the heyday of the James gang, he declares.

The hearing, delayed for completion of a divorce case, started before a crowded courtroom at 9:50 a. m. (CST).

One of Dalton's witnesses, 109-year-old James Barr Davis, who says he was a member of the James gang, was in a nasty mood, too.

Entering the courthouse, he told a nurse accompanying him:

"I ain't gonna do it. I don't give a damn."

Presiding at the hearing was Judge Ransom Albert Breuer, 80.

The bristling Davis was the first witness. Thumping hard on the witness stand with his cane, Davis declared he saw Jesse James at least five different times after the outlaw was supposed to have been shot to death in 1882.

Saw Jesse in 1886

Davis said he saw Jesse in Brownwood, Tex., in 1886 and again in the line of settlers preparing to make the Oklahoma run in 1889.

The witness, who testified he took an oath as a member of the James gang but didn't participate in any illegal activities, grew quarrelsome under cross examination by Attorney Edgar M. Eagan of Jefferson City. Eagan was hired by Jesse's son, Jesse E. James, who doesn't want any one fooling around with his family name.

"I'm getting too old to be messed with," Davis said. "I've got one foot in the grave an danother on the brink."

"Fool questions," he muttered.

"If I'd a did that in the kind of country I lived in then, I wouldn't be alive today."

Judge Breuer interrupted and told the aged man to "take it easy."

Refused to Tell

Davis flatly refused to tell the court the location of the gang's hideout.

The crowd became amused at Davis' sharp answers, and Judge Breuer twice rapped for order. The judge himself smiled a couple of times during the exchange between Davis and the lawyer.

Among spectators in the courtroom, which seats about 150, were several grade school students and teachers from nearby Moselle, Mo. The school closed for the day and nearly everyone came over.

Conspicuous in the crowd because of his bright green plaid topcoat was Robert E. Lee, 76, who described himself as Buffalo Bill's bodyguard. He lives at Baton Rouge, La.

Another Case in Sight

One oldtimer discussing the exploits of the James gang announced before the hearing started:

Another witness was John Tramble of Guthrie, Okla., a Negro who said he was the cook for the James gang. Tramble told the court he believes he is 111 years old, but doesn't know for sure.

Department Store Sales Down Some

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—(AP)—Department store sales in the eighth federal reserve district last week were off six per cent from the same period in 1949.

In contrast with the district decline, sales were up five per cent at Little Rock, Ark., and three per cent at Memphis, Tenn. Sales promotions in the two cities were largely responsible for the gains, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported.

Sales for the week were off nine per cent in St. Louis, 11 per cent at Louisville, Ky., and an average of two per cent in other cities of the district.

Bluejackets New Uniform Is Approved

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—It's to be zippers, loose cuffs, belts and new pockets for the navy's bluejackets.

The new look in the blue going ashore uniform of navy enlisted men was okayed today by Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations.

He made his decision after sailors modeled the old uniform and the new in his office. The new togs are to be available July 1, 1952.

1. A full cuff in place of a tight fitting button cuff.

2. A zipper pants front in place of the 13-button broad front now in use.

3. Slash and hip pockets instead of the present two small pants pocket.

4. The pants are held up by a belt instead of by a coguet type lace in the back.

The new uniform was approved by a navy board before Sherman took office. However, it has been the subject of some controversy largely involving the material to be used. Navy officers who attended the showing in Sherman's office said that melton cloth was selected.

Baby Born Each Day For Three Days

Parents Have Seven Other Children, All Are Living

By Keith Fuller

JONESVILLE, La., March 10—(AP)—A baby a day for three consecutive days — that's the way the 36-year-old wife of a fisherman gave birth to triplets.

Watching the newcomers gurgle milk from their bottles today, Dr. N. G. Nasif, who delivered the babies over the three-day period said, "I've never heard or read of such a case before."

The tired worn-looking mother, Mrs. Lester Hardie, propped herself up on an elbow and smiled at her new son and two daughters.

"They are the last," she said. "Ten children are enough." She has seven other children, all living.

Entire Town Interested

The triplets' birth was an ordeal for the entire town. First of all Hardie just narrowly beat the stork as he plied full throttle to his motorboat bringing Mrs. Hardie to Dr. Nasif's clinic from their houseboat home anchored several miles up the swollen Ouachita river.

Thirty minutes after their arrival at the clinic, 5-pound Jodie Lee, the boy, was born. This was 8 a. m. (CST) March 7.

At 9 a. m. the next day 6-pound Julia Fae arrived.

And about 1 a. m. yesterday 7-pound Judy Mae was born.

"This is going to crowd us up some," said the father thinking of his tiny 3-room houseboat — the residence of the Hardie family which now numbers 12 in all.

Needs a Lawyer

Asked for the names and ages of his seven other children, Hardie gazed at the ceiling in thought.

"There is Edna Lucille, she's —mama how old is Edna; no, you'd better get that from her. I've been so busy trying to make a living for them I haven't kept up. It would take a lawyer to keep them straight."

Mrs. Hardie came to his rescue with names and ages in chronological order. They are: Edna Lucille 15, Annis 13, R. L. 11, Myrtle 9, Milburn 7, Lester Paul 4 and Shirley Ann 2.

"I've got to get home and look

Man Calls on Billy Rose, Brings Stolen Jewels Back

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—Billy Rose, the showman, night club owner and Broadway columnist, is the star of his latest production.

He personally got back part of $25,000 worth of stolen jewels yesterday—and one of the men who took them.

Rose was sitting in his office in the Ziegfeld Theater building, at Sixth avenue and 54th street when Joseph Vitulano introduced himself.

He said he was one of the four men who looted the Rose mansion, January 26 while Billy and his wife, the former Eleanor Holm, were at a Broadway opening.

To prove it, Vitulano pulled out part of the swag and spread it over an office table top.

It was a glittering display of pearls, diamonds, gold, silver, platinum and precious stones—most of it made for Mrs. Rose.

Vitulano had little to say beyond admitting he was the driver for the gang.

As soon as Vitulano told his tale, Rose telephoned his own lawyer, Arthur Garfield Hays, who took Vitulano to a police station for a formal surrender.

Then Rose asked Hays to take over Vitulano's defense — with Rose to foot the bill.

"I want to give Vitulano a fair shake," Rose explained.

Two of the other three men in the robbery have already been arrested — leaving only Willie (Blackie) Lalamio 22, at liberty.

Harmony In Caucuses Of Democrats

Party harmony apparently prevailed in the four ward caucus meetings of the Democrats Thursday night, at which time candidates for council were chosen to be ratified at the convention to be held Saturday night at the City Hall along with the nominations of candidates for the various city offices. Gen. Bradley Is Lectured

LONDON, March 10—(AP)—A London newspaper lectured Gen. Omar Bradley today on the "depressing effect" of a recent speech in which he assessed the military capabilities of the west in a possible war.

The Liberal Star reprinted in an editorial statements made by Bradley and said:

"Apparently indifferent to the depressing effect of his words, Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U.S. chiefs of staff, has been making the blood of Americans curdle again."

"The time has surely come," the editorial added, "when there should be less talk of war with Russia and whether we could win it or not. Even the prospect of sure victory does not make welcome the possibility of atomic war.

"The real defense against Russia and Communism is to make the Western world strong in a social and economic as well as a military sense.

Three-Year-Old Boy To Try New Drug

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Three-year-old Scotty Hanson, slowly dying from leukemia, arrived in New York by air from Minnesota this morning for emergency treatment with the new drug ACTH.

He came through the help of Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn), who asked New York's Memorial hospital to admit him. Memorial is one of the few hospitals in the world that has experimented with the rare and costly drug in blood diseases.

The little boy with blond hair and blue eyes is the son of a railroad machinist at Two Harbors, Minn. His malady is a form of blood cancer, and last November he was given only six months to live.

Important Events In World News

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Mar. 10—(AP)—Hungary demanded tonight that the United States recall three of its high ranking officers on the staff of the U. S. legation here.

Hungary termed "persona non grata" (unwelcome) Col. James Kraft, military attache; Lt. Col. John Hoyne, deputy military attache, and Major Donald E. Griffin, deputy attache for air. The Communist led government protested "the over-swollen number of the staff of this legation."

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—Defeat of a bill for federal aid to state library systems figured today in a drive to require roll call votes in the House on all money bills.

The library bill, carrying a price tag of $36,400,000, was beaten yesterday by a roll call vote of 164 to 161.

Just 24 hours earlier, a postal employes pay raise bill estimated to cost $163,000,000 passed the House by a thumping standing vote on which the members did not have to be recorded by name.

LONDON, March 10—(AP)—Bulgaria accused the Voice of America and Secretary of State Dean Acheson today of "scandalous lying" about the Michael Shipkov case.

Shipkov, a 39-year-old former translator at the U. S. legation in Sofia, was sentenced Wednesday to 15 years imprisonment on a charge of spying for America.

Last Saturday the state department released a sworn statement by Shipkov that on the occasion of a previous arrest he was tortured for 32 hours to make him agree to become a spy against the legation. Instead, the state department said, he went back to the legation and told all.

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—A record breaking $13,324,766 will be paid to 25 states and Alaska as their share in receipts from operation of the publicc lands.

Hotel Fire is Fatal to Two

BENTON, Ill., March 10.—(AP)—Fire destroyed the 72-room Hudson hotel on Benton's public square early today, taking a reported toll of two lives.

Fire Chief Marvin Hobbs of Benton identified the victims as Mike Eliff, a nearly blind, elderly ex-coal miner, and George Summers, about 55, a former carnival worker. Both lived in third floor rooms in the rear of the hotel.

Mrs. Amy Groverman, who owned the hotel building, telephoned guests in their rooms, then started to check the rooms personally, only to be trapped by the flames herself.

Another guest tied bedsheets together and slid down the side of the three-story hotel.

All other guests were believed safe.

Mrs. Groverman said she believed there were 20 persons registered.

Police said it was the second mystery bombing this week. A police sergeant was hurt Wednesday when a bomb exploded at the entrance of another police station.

Acquitted of Murder, Faces Medical Board

Dr. Sander Will be Given Time to Rest Before Hearing

By Henry Supple

CANDIA, N. H., March 10.—(AP)—Dr. Herman N. Sander, acquitted of murder in the death of a cancer-riddled patient, still faces a hearing before the state board of registration in medicine.

Dr. John S. Wheeler, state health offices and secretary of the board, said last night the board will decide what medical penalty, if any, will be imposed on the 41-year-old country doctor.

The board secretary said he will contact members of the group at once and that Dr. Sander will be allowed a reasonable time to "rest up" before he is called.

CANDIA, N. H., March 10—(AP)—A news photographer was Dr. Hermann N. Sander's first "patient" since his acquittal.

While flashing pictures of Sander and his family today, photographer Peter Carroll of the Associated Press bureau in Boston, suffering from laryngitis, asked the doctor what to do about it.

"You might give up smoking," replied the doctor with a smile.

The house of delegates of the New Hampshire medical society, which generally makes recommendations to the board, plans to meet Sunday afternoon in Concord—the state capital—to discuss the case.

Board Has Authority

Dr. Wheeler pointed out, however, that it is his board that has authority to grant or revoke licenses to practice medicine.

He said the board had requested Dr. Sander to appear before it in January—just after his indictment—but the physician requested postponement until after the trial.

Wheeler's announcement came after court attaches had told news men that Dr. Sander was free to resume medical practice immediately. They said that restrictions, which prohibited him from practicing during trial, were lifted with acquittal.

The handsome young doctor and his wife, who sped off to an undisclosed place last night after the jury returned its verdict, planned to return home today to the people who swear by him.

The jury deliberated a little more than an hour before freeing Dr. Sander.

Cheering Crowd

With his pretty, smiling wife on his arm, "Herm," as his intimates call him, pushed his way through a cheering crowd outside the county court in Manchester, 12 miles from here, shortly before

St. Joseph Doctor is Writing Case History of Strange Illness

ST. JOSEPH, March 10—(AP)—A 75-year-old physician stricken by a rare and unusual fatal disease, is devoting the rest of his life to compiling a case history of his ailment in hopes it will help others.

Dr. Edward F. Higdon, a veteran of 51 years of medical practice, is suffering from myasthenia gravis. The malady attacks the voluntary muscles of the eyes, face, lips, tongue, throat and neck. In later stages it spreads to the respiratory system and finally the muscles of the heart, when the patient dies of exhaustion.

During his years of practice the former Richmond, Mo. physician, never encountered the disease from which he now suffers. The diagnoses, made last fall at the Mayo clinic, surprised him, but he immediately set out to learn all he could about the malady. He first noticed indications of the illness three years ago.

Notes Every Symptom

He is writing the case history for the benefit of doctors seeking the cause, better treatment and a possible cure. A stenographer takes his notes and types them. Thus every symptom is noted, no matter how small.

"I've got to get busy and find out more about this disease," he said today, "or I'm not going to be around very long."

When the disease is active the muscles become weakened with only slight use and refuse to perform their functions. The entire face relaxes, eyes shut. Cheeks and jowls sag, the palate crops, and the tongue thickens, making chewing and swallowing impossible.

When a drug is administered or the disease is in remission, the patient looks and acts normally.

At the present time, Dr. Hugdon's case is partially in remission. Only a slight thickness of the tongue and inability to pronounce certain words reveal the presence of the disease.

Dr. Higdon, who now makes his home here, began his practice in Indian territory, now Oklahoma and some years later served as a doctor at State Hospital No. 2 here. For 16 years he served a neuro-psychiatrist for the Veterans Administration hospitals in Virginia and at Wadsworth, Kas. In World War I he served with the ambulance corps of the 31st (Dixie) division.

Gerald Harrell, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Harrell, 911 East Ninth street, is suffering from the same disease. With his parents he is leaving Saturday for Rochester, Minn., where he has an appointment at the Mayo clinic Monday morning.

Diplomacy Campaign Is Needed

Secretary of State Says, in Order To Put a Stop to Russian Expansion

By John Scali

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—A new cold war battle cry—"total diplomacy"—was raised for Americans today by Secretary of State Acheson. Its meaning: an all-out effort, short of shooting, to curb Russian expansion.

Declaring that the nation must do far more than it is now doing to halt Soviet plans for "world domination," Acheson said:

"We clearly are not focusing our resources in the winning of that struggle."

What's needed, he said, is a single-minded, "voluntary" campaign by all elements of the nation—Congress, the executive departments of the government, and the people. He mentioned particularly such institutions as business, agriculture, the press and the radio.

Acheson sketched this new outline of national support for United States foreign policy three weeks ago, in an informal White House talk before the Advertising Council, a private organization of leaders in the field of advertising.

Talk Kept Secret

Officials said the talk was kept secret, in the expectation that Acheson might use the same ideas in a public address in late February or early March. When this did not materialize it was decided to make a reconstructed version of his speech public.

The text given out last night was not an actual transcript but a version prepared from memory by Francis Russell, State Department director of public affairs. It was approved by Acheson.

In it, he declared that the United States must follow two closely related lines of foreign policy.

The first, he said, is "to meet wherever possible all thrusts of the Soviet Union"—as has been done in Greece and Turkey.

The second policy line, he said, "must be to create those economic, political, social and psychological conditions that strengthen and create confidence in the democratic way of life."

Cited Programs

In this connection, he cited the European Recovery Program and American aid in bringing independence to Indonesia. Then he added:

"One of the things that we must do is to enable other countries to buy with their own products the raw materials that they need to feed and clothe and employ their own people. This means that we must buy their goods and their services to a greater extent than at present."

Some of Acheson's aides have estimated that American imports should be increased by about $3,000,000,000 a year if western Europe is to get along when the Marshall plan ends.

Matter of Judgment

"It is a matter of judgment as to what the level of our trade with the rest of the world should be," Acheson said. "But probably it should be somewhere not very far from present levels.

"We must take that kind of action even though it requires adjustments here at home—and it will require some adjustments. Make no mistake about it, if we want to have strong allies in Europe we have got to work out some kind of pattern of this kind.

"That will mean European goods will compete with American goods and some American industries are likely to suffer. If this should prove to be the case, then means must be found to take care of any resulting adjustments."

Relief Families Must Return Television Sets

MINEOLA, N. Y., March 10.—(AP)—Edwin W. Wallace, Nassau county welfare commissioner, has ordered four families on relief to return television sets. He also cut the relief allotment of a woman who refused to do so.

Wallace told the families:

"I feel, as commissioner, that you are receiving a little bit too much from me. Just about as much as you are paying for your television set."

God And The Sinner

A mother of thirteen children was being interviewed by a social worker gathering data on the misery of large families. The last question she asked was: "Which of your children do you love most?"

Without any hesitation, the mother replied: "The one who is sick until he gets well, the one who is away until he gets home."

These sincere and beautiful words might very well be used to describe how God pursues with a special yearning those of His children who are sick with sin or have rejected Him and gone the way of disbelief.

When a man sins he becomes spiritually sick. He creates a barrier between himself and God. But God's love is so patient and enduring that He never ceases to hover over the afflicted soul and to offer every chance of reconciliation and spiritual regeneration. Scripture itself says there is more rejoicing in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine just who need not penance.

No one knows the mysterious ways in which God works to redeem the sinner. It is certain, however, that He makes particular use of other men and women whose hearts, like His own, are touched by the desolation and torment which is the lot of the sinner.

Every true follower of Christ must be His co-worker in the cause of redeeming and saving souls. He is obliged to show an especial love toward those who are in the grip of sin. He must demonstrate this love by kindness, sympathy and interest. While he can never condone the sin, he must be ever ready to help the sinner; to counsel him; to plead and argue, if necessary, so that the errant may at last perceive his own sickness and turn for help to the Divine Physician.

The good example of the faithful Christian may in the beginning evoke only the gibes and scorn of the very one he wants to help. But he need never be discouraged; love is the most powerful force in the world and it always prevails in the end. There will assuredly come the moment when the sinner over whom he has prayed and sought to redeem will be touched to repentance and be ready gratefully to prostrate himself before the Great Healer.

Life And Organization In Religion

Bruce Barton, well known advertising man and son of the late Dr. William E. Barton, an eminent Congregational minister, wrote a few years ago a book concerning Jesus, under the title, "The Man Nobody Knows," which had a very wide circulation.

It was a unique and challenging book, and Mr. Barton's likening Jesus to a big business executive did not meet with much approval among reviewers. But, though the conception was extreme, it made an important emphasis upon an aspect of the Christian movement, beginning with Jesus Himself that has generally been overlooked.

We think of Jesus as a gentle teacher, going about with His disciples, meeting with individuals talking to small groups as in the Sermon on the Mount, or pressed by the multitudes, whom at times He sought to avoid. That conception has full warrant in the Gospel narratives, but these also reveal how Jesus was a careful organizer, sending forth His disciples, two by two, choosing other seventy besides the Twelve, instructing them as to what they should say and do, listening to their reports when they returned, and in general carrying on a work of organization far beyond anything of which we have commonly conceived.

Moreover, He planned for the carrying on of the organization after His death and resurrection, as He gave the disciples the commission to go into all the world and preach the gospel.

Organization is not of much value without life; in fact it may be baneful if it continues when life has departed from it. But life without organization lacks continuance and permanency. The Christian church was built upon organization, as well as upon life. As Paul expressed it, in Ephesians 4:11, Jesus gave "some, apostles, and some, prophets; and some evangelists; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ."

Acts 6:1-5 tells of an imporatnt early act of organization, which has set a pattern for continuing churches, in the appointment of seven deacons. Their office at first had to do with the ministering of relief, for the early Christians showed their appropriation of the Master's teaching in their care for the needy. The office of deacons in most churches is now spiritual, but they have charge of the communion fund, which is usually designated for relief.

A striking parallel with the organization and growth of the early church has been found in modern times in the life and work of John Wesley, and the founding of Methodism. John Wesley was the most prolific of preachers. He preached anywhere and everywhere, Sundays and weekdays, and upon every occasion. But he organized the converts he won. They were organized into classes with leaders, meeting regularly, for testimony, and for counsel.

Of course the lay preachers, whom Wesley organized, were also a part of his effective organization, but the case of Wesley and the growth of Methodism emphasize the power of organization with life, as against life alone. The organized life of the church is the power of its ongoing.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"SUBSTANCE" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 12, 1950.

Golden Text: Eccl. 3:14.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." (Heb. 11:6) The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God—a spiritual understanding of Him, an unselfed love." (p. 1)

Husband Got Rid of Mustache When Wife Said She Objected

Perhaps it was his frame of mind after a romantic show or perhaps he just decided how handsome he was in the picture, but anyway he went over to the picture, looked at it and then remarked to his wife, "Have I changed much since then?"

The wife looked at the picture and smiled—maybe she sighed a little, too, and then she said thoughtfully: "No, except you were better looking then. You didn't have a mustache."

It was probably a blow to his masculine egotism, because a mustache, according to the male who wears it, is quite a glorious thing. In fact, most males have grown them at one time or other in their lives ,if only on a fishing trip away from the little woman, and after all it is the one thing that the ladies can't do, and what woman would want to. Some of the men would even love an excuse to grow a whole beard, something like a centennial celebration or something. It is a masculine pride in their ability to grow whiskers.

"Yes, I do," replied the wife.

"Then I'll shave it off," he said. And that is exactly what he did. The next morning the first thing he went to the barber shop and had the mustache shaved off and then he went to work. Later in the day he slipped off from work to show her how he looked.

"You are just as handsome as ever," she told him sweetly.

But the young man who had probably come in for a bit of ribbing from his co-workers over the loss of his mustache still wasn't too sure. "There are other people who don't agree with you," he said.

"But," insisted the wife, "that is what I think and after all I am the one to be pleased. You should want to look the way I like you best."

And he agreed that she was right.

Mrs. Elmer Rhine read a letter from Katherine Zimmerman.

Greek Revival

From the romance of the great Greek Empire come important fashion influences for Spring! The rush of pleats, chaste embroidery, tucks and tunics take their cues from the togas, the guardsmen's uniforms, the shepherd cloaks and other attire of the ancient era.

The Greek theme runs on foot, too—with Grecian thong sandals . . . bare minimums of color, strapping the insteps and gracing ankles.

Bright Colors, Silks Are Spotlighted in Dress Collections

Soft, sophisticated silks lead in all the dress collections. Silk prints in brilliant tropical and Oriental-influenced motifs are newsworthy. Silk chiffons . . . so very ultra . . . fall into soft, easy-fitting folds in luxuriously styled frocks.

Printed silk surahs are featured for smart shirtwaist variations and sleek, two-piece ensembles. Silk taffetas, crepe de chine, silk twills, silk kasha and patterned Honans are new and distinctive in the dress showings.

Shantungs, pongees and georgettes are all-important fabric revivals for spring and summer 1950.

Striped Italian silks, medium-weight and very colorful, are used as trims and as important additions in linings of capes and jackets. These silks, too, are made up into extremely smart shirtwaist dresses for 'round the clock wear.

Home Fashion Notes

A new fashion note in French Provincial furniture is the return of the bone white crackle finish. Used in groupings or in combination with other furnishings, the new finish provides a striking effect.

New Zealand soldiers call Marines "Cobblers," meaning pal or buddy.

Day-into-Dusk Hats are Tiny-Head-Hugging and a Blaze of Color on the Spring Scene

The new season hats are superlative . . . and suited to the romance of Spring! The small hat continues to be important to top sleek, polished-looking short hair!

Large hats with scooped, to-one-side brim accents will be seen for more formal occasions as the season progresses. Dramatic black straws with feather and velvet accents, trims of beads, fake jewels and demure veiling, will make their appearance at the cocktail hour and for semi-formal dinner-date wear.

Millinery straws for Spring and Summer repeat al lthe delectable, new colors of the season. Shiny, smooth and rough straws create a fashionable frame for contrasting straw embroideries, fruit, flower and butterfly trims, velvet and satin bows, and lots of gauzy, rich-hued silk flowers.

Natural, wheat, honey and beige tones are dramatized by the use of Italian milan, leghorn and leghorn novelties.

Spring will see many sailors on deck . . . in straws, of course, with narrow to wide brims and worn either level or with a forward-tilt.

The Chinese influence turns up in the millinery scene . . . in coolie hats with tiny visors and peaked crowns . . . with flower treatments inspired by Ming gardens . . . in little pillboxes patterned after mandarin skull caps.

Look for golden haze and cream ivory felts; these are pale tints reminiscent of "winter white." See lighter than navy worn with red! Frost navy and black with an "in-the-pink" hat . . . or spark-up beige and other natural color nuances with one touch of navy.

Handkerchiefs are Showing in the Best Places

Too long hidden in handbags, the handkerchief has at last come into its own as an important costume accessory.

Wear your handkerchiefs this spring! Tuck them into your cuffs, drape them over your belts, fasten them around your necklines with a pin or flower. Use them to lend new seasonal enchantment to your simple, classic costumes.

They're larger and lovelier than ever, being fashioned into 16 and 21-inch squares with distinctive, hand-rolled edges. Chose from fine lawns, linens and sheers patterned with deep-toned prints, plaids and stripes.

Belts Cover a "Wide Span" for Spring!

Pastel velvets and velveteens, lightly boned to stay up well, give grace, notes to every ensemble. Soft, crushed leathers in candy and confetti colors are shown in new widths for extra smartness. Capeskin, tissue kid and supple cowhides are new leather luxuries and boast fake-jewel, medallion and novelty bangle adornment. Buckle treatments are bold and lavish. Patent, either natural or plastic, gleams brightly in combination with velvet.

Interesting texture treatments such as scalloping, braiding and twists, add three-dimensional smartness to belts and make them an important accessory.

Regiland Borroto, husband of Abbie Borroto—the woman Dr. Sander was charged with killing byair injections—said the acquittal was "the most heart warming news I have ever received. I don't know if I can express any happier thoughts than that."

Order Woman Out on Bail

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—(AP)—The U. S. court of appeals today ordered Blanche A. Howard admitted to $7,500 bail pending her appeal from a contempt citation by District Judge Richard M. Duncan.

Miss Howard has been held in the Jackson county jail at Kansas City since Feb. 14.

The court set a hearing on her appeal for May 8. In announcing that Miss Howard would be permitted to post bond with the appeals court, the three appellate judges signed an order which said:

"Whether a witness who is found by a district court to have testified falsely before a federal grand jury can lawfully be adjudged guilty of contempt of court and placed in the custody of the U. S. marshal until such time as the witness elects to testify truthfully is, in the opinion of this court, a substantial question which entitles the appellant to bail pending appeal."

Slayer Dies in Electric Chair

TUSKER PRISON FARM, Ark., March 10.—(AP)—Thomas Edwin Black, convicted nurse slayer, died in the state's electric chair at 7:07 a. m. today.

The 29-year-old Little Rock automobile mechanic entered the execution chamber softly singing a hymn, "I Thank You Jesus, I Thank You Lord." He wore a blue sports shirt, brown sports slacks and brown shoes.

He was strapped in the chair at 7 a. m. and was pronounced dead seven minutes later.

Thus ended a long legal fight to save the ex-serviceman's life—a battle that lasted until after 4 p. m. yesterday, when his volunteer attorneys finally abandoned their efforts.

Black twice had received stays as appeals were made to the United States and Arkansas supreme courts and to Gov. Sid McMath. But all declined to intervene.

Black's victim was Betty Jane McCall, 25. She was strangled near here the night of Sept. 28, 1948, after visiting a night club with Black.

Raise Fund For 'Mercy Slayer'

ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 10.—(AP)—Friends of Harold Mohr, confessed mercy slayer of his blind, cancer-ridden brother, began raising a fund for his legal defense today.

Contributions already have been pledged by some employes of the Van-Dye-Way Corp., Coplay, Pa., tannery, where Mohr formerly was employed.

Richard Dressel, warden at the Lehigh county prison, said Mohr "is a willing and cooperative prisoner," and seems unperturbed.

Mohr was returned to the prison yesterday, after he gave District Attorney Kenneth H. Koch the story of how last Tuesday night he shot his brother, Walter, 55, in the bedroom of their home at Coplay, five miles north of Allentown.

Koch quoted Harold as saying he pressed the trigger of a .30-caliber hunting rifle after Walter, lying in bed, had said "Go ahead."

Walter, blind for 15 years, suffered from a cancer which had spread over his face.

TOKYO, March 10—(AP)—Power was cut off briefly today in Japan's two most populous areas in the second day of a strike by the All-Japan electric industry workers.

The electrical workers, who are asking for what amounts to about $20 a month in wage increases, did not walk out in their strike. They simply cut off power for one or two hours.

It Was No Joke

HOUSTON, March 10.—(AP)—"This must be a joke," said a man who called the sheriff's office. "I've got a good boy working for me and he's got a ticket for speeding. But it is signed Yawn and Goodnight."

It was no joke, he was assured. Deputy Sheriffs said Yawn and Steve Goodnight, working together recently, had signed the ticket.

Caucus Row Over Charges

McMahon Makes Denouncement Of McCarthy

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—A crackling two-hour row broke out in the Senate caucus room Thursday when Senator McCarthy (R-Wisc) accused his Democratic colleagues of acting as a "tool of the state department" in their probe of his disloyalty charges.

Senator McMahon (D-Conn) angrily charged McCarthy with making an "irresponsible speech," and he told the Wisconsin senator:

"The imputation is something that I repudiate and denounce. When you start making that kind of a charge about me, you had better reflect on it more than once."

The flareup, witnessed by more than 200 spectators, came as McCarthy launched into the second day of his allegation that scores of Communists are or have been employes of the state department.

The public hearings are being conducted by a Democrat-controlled subcommittee of the senate foreign relations committee.

Two hours of heated wrangling developed frayed tempers among the lawmakers but produced no further "case histories" to substantiate McCarthy's charges.

At the session's end, McCarthy had only completed "case No. 1" —his assertion that Miss Dorothy Kenyon, 62-year-old former state department employe, was "affiliated" with at least 28 Communist-front organizations.

Miss Kenyon To Appear

Before recessing the hearing, Chairman Tydings (D-Md) read a telegram from Miss Kenyon, which said:

"I will welcome an opportunity to appear before the committee at its earliest convenience to attack Senator McCarthy's outrageous and maliciously false charges against me."

Tydings has already indicated that all persons named by McCarthy will be given a chance to offer counted testimony.

Late today, after a closed-door meeting of the subcommittee, chairman Tydings announced:

1. That McCarthy has offered to wind up his testimony in four or five hours and will be given a chance to do so next Monday.

2. That Miss Kenyon will be asked to testify Tuesday—and McCarthy will not be permitted to cross-examine her.

3. That the state department's roving Ambassador Phillip C. Jessup will be given a chance to testify late Tuesday or Wednesday if he is available. McCarthy has charged that Jessup, now reported in the Far East, has shown "an unusual affinity for Communist causes" and once sponsored an alleged Communist-front organization.

McCarthy's statement that the subcommittee had become a "tool" seeking to shield the state department stung the Democratic members to angry recriminations.

McMahon and his colleagues demanded that McCarthy produce the files on which he has based his charges. At one point, Chairman Tydings treatened to subpoena McCarthy's records unless the Wisconsin senator produced them voluntarily.

Study Love Letters To Mussolini

ROME, March 10—(AP)—Newly found love letters written by dark eyed Clara Petacci to Benito Mussolini are being carefully screened by officials for possible hidden secrets of Italy's Fascist regime, it was disclosed today.

But so far the letters—discovered in a villa on Lake Garda in Northern Italy—only have pictured Clara's blissful memories or dark despair when politics or other obligations kept Il Duce from his mistress.

"I would like to die with your lips on mine, never to part from such divine sweetness," Clara penned on Sept. 14, 1939.

President Plans His Speaking Trip

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—President Truman said Thursday he hopes to get away early in May on the cross-country speaking trip he is planning this spring.

He told a news conference he is considering a visit to the regional Democratic meeting at Chicago during his trip. The Chicago meeting is to be held May 15.

In response to questions, Mr. Truman said he did not expect to go into California on the spring trip. But he said this did not rule out talks in that state before the November election.

Underground Shows Its Fangs Again

FRANKFURT, Germany, March 10—(AP)—Germany's underground "Werewolf" organization bared its fangs again Wednesday.

It distributed leaflets saying "Americans, English, French and Russians, we warn you."

The pamphlets said the Werewolf still was alive "and growing stronger day by day."

The organization took its name from a legendary person who could, at will, change his form into a wolf and practice cannibalism.

Girl to Start Life as Honorary Girl Scout

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., March 10 (AP)—The first girl born Sunday March 12 at Chillicothe Municipal hospital will start life as an honorary girl scout.

Local scout officials said Thursday they will confer such a membership to start National Girl Scout week.

The official uniform won't be worn at first.

Truman May Veto Pay Raise Bill

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—The first government pay raise bill of 1950, affecting 120,000 World War II veterans in the postal service may run into a presidential veto.

Estimated to cost $163,000,000, the bill would hike the pay of veterans who entered the postal service after the war. It would give them an automatic raise for each year of service between September 16, 1940, and June 30, 1946. In some cases the raise could amount to $500 a year.

To be eligible, a veteran must have entered the postal field service at any time prior to next July 1.

Bridge of a Lifetime

NATURAL BRIDGE, Va.—(AP)—"Everybody says this Natural Bridge is so wonderful. Well, mebbe so, I ain't never been nowheres else;" says Joseph Mitchell. He was born at Natural Bridge July 12, 1871. He began work at 10 as a stable boy, but was soon apprenticed as a gardener. He has been at it ever since.

"I guess nobody's told me to do anything in ten years. If I didn't rummage around and find something to keep busy at, I guess I'd just vegetate," he says. Asked advice on how to keep a job 68 years, he said: "Keep out of the boss' sight."

Bashful Robber

CHICAGO — (AP) — A robber walked into the Midwest Savings and Loan Association, pulled out a pistol to keep the 12 people in the place at bay, picked up $1,000 and left.

While he was at work, he kept repeating: "Don't look at me."

Demonstration of Jet Propelled Car

TOWCESTER, Eng., Mar. 10—(AP)—The British automobile industry's biggest postwar secret—a sleek jet-propelled car—was given its first public demonstration Wednesday.

Moved by a pair of twin kerosene-fed jet turbines, the automobile—a gray sports coupe— whipped over a concrete landing strip near Towcester at nearly 90 miles an hour.

It idled and reversed with the ease of a conventional car.

The new machine—a version of which the makers say should be in mass production in from two to four years—is aimed at giving Britain a bigger chunk of the dollar motor market.

Potatoes Were A Little Green

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—The potatoes were a little green—not unripe, just un-blue.

It was at a dinner Wednesday night at the Statler hotel for the inter-society color council, a professional group ranging from artists to ink makers.

Since they all were interested in color, they decided to mix the rainbow with the menu. Blue potatoes, super-green peas, canary yellow chicken, etc.

Head Chef Josef M. Faussone muttered to himself in French as he prepared the unorthodox dishes. All were a success, however, except the spuds—which changed color and came out a blue-green or turquoise color.

After the meal Chef Faussone was nowhere to be found.

"He has disappear," said an aide.

Samovars Go Modern

MOSCOW —(AP)— Samovars are now to be manufactured of aluminum. The samovar is a famous and ancient piece of Russian household ware. It is a large bulbous vessel with a small spigot which is placed in the center of the table and furnishes boiling water for tea.

Samovars are generally of copper and fine samovars of silver. The new aluminum samovars will be one-half as heavy as copper ones. Another recent improvement in samovars is electric heating which is available in some models sold here.

Germs Avoid Underground

LONDON — (AP) — The air in London subways is not so filthy as you might think. Scientists of a public health laboratory made six rush-hour roundtrips on one line and took a germ count by exposing sticky "culture plates."

They found considerably fewer bacteria in the subway cars than they had counted in an elementary school and in some public offices.

Winning The Peace Might Take One Hundred Years

By Drew Pearson

(ED. NOTE—This is the second of Drew Pearson's columns on how the U.S.A. can win the peace.)

WASHINGTON.—Fred Osborn, former U. S. representative on the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, recently predicted that it might take 100 years of prodigious effort by the American people to work out a permanent peace.

In view of the fact that the world fought for a solid century during the hundred years' war and in the 17th century went through the spasm of the thirty years' war, Osborn's estimate may not be too pessimistic.

But, being a perennial optimist, I have scaled the time down to 25-50 years. I agree with Osborn, however, that it will require the same kind of hard work our forefathers put in when they built this country to win the peace against a country which is determined the free world must disappear.

As stated yesterday, my own ideas on winning the peace are only "gropings," and I make no claim of originality or copyright. They are put forward after talking with a great many people, including Sumner Welles and Sen. Brien McMahon, who has done more solid thinking about the Russian problem than anyone along Pennsylvania avenue.

At any rate here is my program:

GOP Coalition

1. Bring about greater unity among the American people. We cannot fight a prolonged war of nerves entailing great sacrifices, unless we have just as much national unity as during the recent war. Greater unity can be achieved by:

a. Bringing outstanding Republicans into positions of leadership inside the administration.

b. Keeping the American people better informed. Instead of abrupt handouts from the White House or hasty statements made at presidential press conferences, Mr. Truman should go on the air every month with a frank and personal report to the American people.

2. Goad, maneuver and manipulate Moscow into calling an international conference — on atomic energy or anything else—even if we know in advance it will fail. We shouldn't get up any false hopes, because Russia isn't going to let any conferences succeed—unless she writes the ticket. And we should attend any conference, no matter who calls it, because we cannot leave unturned any stone that might bring peace.

The World Forgets

But it would be extremely healthy if we could force Russia into calling a conference. We should remind the world that we have called conference after conference. Time after time we have gone to Moscow, while Russia has taken almost no initiative for peace. But the world has forgotten this. We need to remind people of this fact—over and over again. We have been called warmongers so often that the world is beinning to believe it. And we have been either lazy or bumbling or both in showing that just the opposite is true.

3. Hold the next session of the United Nations assembly in Moscow. This is Sen. Brien McMahon's idea, and an excellent one. Most of the Russian people have a distorted notion that the U.N. is not a free and democratic assemblage, that Soviet delegates get no breaks, that the cards are stacked in favor of imperialism.

If the United Nations went to Moscow, especially for a debate on controlling atomic energy, the Russian people would get some conception of the U.N.'s truly democratic forum, where any nation can speak its peace.

4. If Moscow will not call an international conference, then we have the excuse of holding a whole series of conferences under the North Atlantic pact. As Senator McMahon once again has pointed out, the North Atlantic pact provides not merely for military assistance, but an Atlantic council to handle political problems.

We have neglected this. We have concentrated on the military phases of the pact, ignoring the Atlantic council which could mobilize the free world in order to create, as McMahon says, "a climate for peace."

Moscow's Achilles' Heel

5. But most important of all we must reach Moscow's Achilles' heel. This heel is friendship with the Russian people.

Most of us forget that the real reason for the iron curtain is to protect the weakest point in the Russian armor—her people. For what the Kremlin fears most is contact of the Russian people with the outside world.

This is why the first American troops to reach the River Elbe after V-E day were not permitted to mingle with soldiers from the Red army. There was no fraternization. This is also why there were so many Red army desertions in Vienna, and why Russian troops returning to their villages are transferred away from their families—if they talk too glowingly about the outside world.

All this indicates that friendship with the Russian people is the real way to win the peace. But despite this it is also the point we have most neglected.

What we need to remember is that, if we can influence the Russian people, we need not build great armament. Men, not H-bombs, make war. And if we can control the men who have to fight Russia's wars, the chances are slim of their starting war.

No Easy Job

This job of influencing the Russian people obviously is not easy. For the 14 men in the politburo have gone to unusual lengths to insulate the other 180,000,000 residents of Russia. These fourteen don't want any loyalty defection from the Kremlin. They don't want to worry about public opinion as Mr. Truman or Prime Minister Attlee have to worry. They want no interference with their power to make war overnight. That is why our job is not easy.

But neither is war easy. And if peace is worth winning, it is worth working for. Furthermore, when the American people set out to accomplish something they usually succeed. We have the greatest advertising genius in the world. We have the greatest organizers, the greatest technical men. Yet we have not harnessed their brains and their genius to do the obvious—win over the Russian people.

Once we do that, our worry about war vanishes.

We should not forget, however, this is a long, back-breaking job, requiring great sacrifice, great unity, great patience. I think we can accomplish it—and in less than the 100 years fixed by Frederick Osborn.

In a future column I will attempt to give some of the more encouraging factors by which I think we can outmaneuver the Russians in the battle to win the peace.

Women Need More Than Flat Guarantee of Equal Rights

By Bruce Biossat

From the women's angle few things ought to sound as attractive as a guarantee to them of equal rights set forth in the federal Constitution.

Yet more than 30 national women's groups don't want that kind of a guarantee without a big proviso attached. And labor leaders are on the same side of the fence.

They all wish to be sure that no equal rights clause shall in any way endanger the rights, benefits and exemptions now enjoyed by women under existing state and federal laws.

What this means is that while they believe the principle of equal rights should be proclaimed, it should be recognized that women actually are in need of extra privileges and safeguards. The feeling is that a women's physical nature and characteristics are enough to justify special status.

On the books today are a wide variety of laws governing wages, hours and conditions of work for women. These include protections for those needing maternity care. In addition, women enjoy alimony rights, dower rights and similar legal advantages partly in recognition of their problems as mothers.

Labor and many women's groups know many of these statutes were won only after bitter struggle. They hesitate, therefore, to endorse an unqualified equal rights clause that might furnish a legal basis for the ultimate destruction of these safeguards.

The Senate has now approved, 63 to 19, a constitutional amendment guaranteeing equal rights to women but stating that the guarantee shall not be construed to impair any present rights women have.

The equal rights' proponents, sensing victory after 27 years of fruitless trying, want the House to kill the extra proviso and leave just a flat guarantee. Offhand their chances don't look too bright, for the weight of labor and the same 30 women's groups will fall upon House lawmakers when they begin debating the proposal.

It seems safest to spell out assurances to women that they will not lose their hard-won protection both at work and in the larger social setting. Maybe this would make the term "equal rights" sound a trifle empty, but we think something would be gained by its mere assertion in the Constitution. Many good principles are modified in practice. That doesn't lessen their value as principles.

Labor's Growing Up

It's too early to appraise the issues in the Chrysler strike, but not too soon to make one observation. Labor's behavior in this walkout strongly suggests that it is really beginning to come of age.

Except for periodic mass demonstrations which promise to be well-disciplined, there is no mass picketing in this strike. Plant entrances are to be guarded by small relays of men going their rounds quietly and peaceably.

Whatever various courts may say about mass picketing, it is apparent to us all that the presence of large groups of men around plant gates in times of bitter controversy is always explosive and dangerous. The assembly of pickets may have thoroughly peaceful intentions. But a few ill-considered words can transform it into an angry, rioting mob.

If the United Automobile Workers operate on the present basis throughout this walkout they will have shown to every American a genuine advance by labor toward responsibility and maturity.

Prov. 14:27; 1923; Luke 21:26; Heb. 2:15

ANXIETY AS ASSET AND LIABILITY

We saw yesterday that the Christian is one who cares about the past, the present, and the future—he is not a lotus-eater. The fact is that he cares more than anyone else, for he is in the process of being sensitized on a world scale. This is his greatest asset. It gives him drive, direction, and determination. It makes him a progressive person. And other things being equal, the Christian should be the most progressive person on earth. He is awakened in every fiber of his being, and he is a man of the open road.

But if this awareness is his greatest asset, it may also become his greatest liability. The fact that he is sensitive and aware to himself and to all men may make him worry. If so, then his light has turned to darkness. For worry and anxiety and fear can block the whole process of progress and paralyze and disrupt the personality. Up to a certain point, fear on the part of a surgeon may make him more skillful and careful lest he cut in wrong places, but fear pushed beyond a certain point could paralyze him. There is a healthy fear that gives us skill and drive. There is an unhealthy fear that takes away both skill and drive—it inhibits us. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, but, "I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent." Both are profoundly true—there is a fear that is wisdom, and a fear that makes one bury his life talents.

Fear, like any other drive, has to be brought under control and used for constructive purposes. Out of control, it turns into worry and anxiety and becomes destructive to itself and others. "Fret not— it only leads to evil." (Psalm 37:8, Moffatt.) Or, as another version puts it, "it tendeth only to evil-doing" —its whole tendency is destructive rather than constructive. Jesus says this new life is often "choked with worries." (Luke 8:14, Moffatt.) The probabilities are that fear, worry, and anxiety are the greatest single trinity of evils a man can take into his life. He must root them out at all costs.

O God, I fear the fear that gets rootage in my life. I am anxious about the anxiety that infects me. I am worried about the worry. Give me deliverance from them. Help me to complete freedom from any cramping inhibition and fear. Amen.

Secretary Takes a Whack At 'Tired Business Man'

Today it is not a wife, but a secretary, who rips into the myth of the tired business man.

She writes to me: "Personally, I don't think the man of the house hurts himself too much at his work. They all take time out to go downtown for a cup of coffee occasionally, or a magazine to read in the office—to say nothing of the visits they have when friends drop in for so-called business talks.

"After a man has been pampered all day by the business force why should a wife be expected to continue the treatment, when perhaps her day has been more trying than his?

"Too often, it seems to me, married women, especially mothers, are good-natured slaves, soothing the tempers of the various members of the family and foregoing their own desires for the little luxuries that mean so much, so that some other member of the family can have a few more pleasures. That sort of thing can be carried too far—so that the husband and the rest of the family in time forget she is a human being like themselves with the right to the same considerations."

Defeats Her Own Argument

Well, there's the comment of a woman who says she has been a secretary for 30 years. But in defense of the wives she claims are too often good-natured slaves I want to quote a little more from her letter.

"I have been a secretary for over 30 years. During that time I have met and worked for many different men. I think I have learned how to get along with practically every type, which, of course, is necessary to keep an office functioning properly. It is my business to keep the boss in good spirits even though he sometimes starts the day in a 'black mood.' I receive a comparatively good salary for doing so."

It seems to me that paragraph gives the wife a perfect comeback. If it is imperative that a secretary learn how to get along with her boss, how to keep him in good spirits and get him out of an occasional "black mood," certainly it is just as important for the wife to do that much catering to him at home.

After all, the wife wants her home to run smoothly as much as the secretary wants the office to function properly. And if the secretary receives a good salary for keeping the boss happy at work a wife rates a full partnership for keeping him happy at home.

The Doctor Says—

Responds to Weird 'Cures' Warts—Weird Ailment—

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NE AService

According to the newspapers, a radio announcer recently asked help for a listener who wanted to get rid of warts. The results were astonishing. Letters came from all over with many different suggestions. The most popular was the use of castor oil, but milkweed, various kinds of acids, and several other suggestions poured in.

This experience is not as strange as it might sound because a wart is an extraordinary condition which is known to yield to many different kinds of treatment, although those mentioned are not generally recommended by medical men. The response of warts to treatment is all the more astonishing because they are caused by viruses which are small living bodies too tiny to see under the ordinary microscope. Why a condition caused by viruses should respond to strange treatments of the kinds mentioned is something of a mystery.

The most common type is the so-called "seed wart" which occurs on the hands. Children are more likely to have warts than grownups, but they may come at any age. Medical science does not know just why warts come, though they can be spread from one part of the body to another. There is no basis for the old superstition that handling toads will produce warts.

There are few, if any, diseases known to medicine where so many different methods yield good results. The majority of warts yield to mild treatment, though occasionally, especially for warts on the feet, simple medical treatment is not always successful. Painting with certain dyes, several kinds of ointments, freezing with carbon dioxide snow, and burning with diathermy needles have all been used with success.

One of the favorite treatments consists in the use of injections containing a heavy metal called bismuth. Warts also disappear in most cases after X-ray treatment.

Power of Suggestion

The most astonishing treatment of all, however, is the method of suggestion. How the mind can have an effect on a virus disease is a mystery. This does not involve the use of anything locally or by injection. Nevertheless, it has long been known that warts which have been present for many years can disappear suddenly and completely.

This has been confirmed by scientific observers. Just how to go about this kind of treatment is not settled and some doctors are skeptical about it, but so many good doctors have observed it that it must be true.

Warts usually are not serious but there are many unsolved problems about them still. They are surrounded by more superstitions than almost any other medical condition.

Dr. Jordan will answer questions from his readers in a special column once a week. Watch for it.

FINGERPRINTS Don't Lie

By Rupert Hughes

Copyright 1950 by Rupert Hughes
Dist. by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: After Azalea Palmer found her father, the wealthy Wendell Palmer, with his skull crushed by a desk telephone, police suspect Paul Moody, a young sculptor whose engagement to Azalea had been opposed by Palmer. Police detectives James Stivers and Pete Kelso investigate. Fingerprints found on the base of the phone which was used as a murder weapon are the same as those found in Paul's studio, the officers say. Azalea does not believe her sweetheart murdered her father, and in spite of the damaging fingerprint evidence she is determined to clear him of the charges. A friend recommends private detective Martin Queripel to help her.

XI

WHEN Azalea Palmer received Nadine Fennell's advice to hire a private detective, the desperate girl looked up Martin Queripel's name in the telephone book, but did not pause to telephone. Azalea decided it would mean waiting for an appointment at Queripel's convenience. He would probably put her off for a few days just to make himself important and hard to get.

She simply called her father's chauffeur, leapt into the car and told him to drive as fast as the law allowed and then step on the gas. She did not have any respect for the law, nowadays.

When she reached Queripel's address, she found big Timothy O'Hea in the outer office and demanded to see Mr. Queripel. She was quivering with fear that he might be out of town or out on a mission, so when O'Hea said, "I'll see if he's in," moved to Queripel's door and turned his high head to ask, "Who shall I say wants to see um?" he had to look down quickly to see her ducking under his arm and flashing straight to the desk where Queripel was studying a supposedly forged document under a microscope.

Queripel looked up from the enlarged scrawls and blinked his eyes to behold the little, the beautiful, the blazing Azalea pounding on his desk with her lily-like fists and pounding at his ears with her importunate voice trying to say everything at once.

It took Queripel several minutes to get over his confusion, and longer to get Azalea over her confusion long enough to make known just what she was commanding him to do for whom.

IT was plain to Queripel that she would be pretty—at least when she was calm. But now her exquisite features were twisted and contorted all askew. And small wonder for that, since they were trying to express grief, rage, defiance, appeal, command, hope, despair all at once as she beat on the detective's desk and sobbed:

"I suppose you think I'm a heartless fiend for trying to save Paul Moody from being put to death for murdering my father. Everybody thinks that of me, especially the police. They say they never saw a tighter case against anybody. But I don't care what anybody says or thinks. Paul says he is innocent. That's enough for me."

Queripel ventured to interpose quietly:

"Nearly every criminal swears he is innocent, my child—especially just before his execution."

He was sorry he had said this; for he could see how his last word stabbed her as if it were a knife thrust into that throbbing left breast of hers. He had to go on:

"The guiltiest often come to believe sincerely that they are innocent. And it would be hard for any man to look into such eyes as yours and say, 'Darling, I killed your father!' Of course, I know only what I have read in the papers. Moody had motive enough. Your father is—was—rich, and Moody needs money. Your father would not give his consent to your marriage. Paul Moody was seen going into your house shortly before the murder was discovered—discovered by you yourself, poor child. The police found his fingerprints everywhere—especially on the death weapon. And fingerprints don't—"

Azalea snapped at Queripel with the startling ferocity of a pretty kitten suddenly all claws:

"Don't you dare tell me that fingerprints don't lie! That's what everybody says. The police told me so over and over till I wanted to scream. But fingerprints must lie. They do!"

"How could they, my dear? There has never been discovered the slightest duplication.—"

"Because Paul—my Paul—said he was innocent. He called me from the jail. I'd believe him against all the fingerprints in the world."

Feeling more like a father or a priest than a sleuth, the detective put a gentle hand on her clenched fingers and said:

"Such trust is a very beautiful thing in a very ugly world. I wish it could be justified."

• • •

HIS heart softened toward her in a deep wonder, and it was a strange wonder; for while she was pouring out a story of her wretchedness and begging him to fight the police and the courts and rescue Paul Moody from justice, he was thinking less about the Palmer murder case than about the color of this girl's eyes, as they fairly burned into his.

The very private detective Martin Queripel had skimmed the stories in the papers and assumed that, for once, the police had acted quickly and wisely in arresting Paul Moody.

Such cases were far outside the line of Martin Queripel, a strange sort of sleuth who loved not only to work in obscurity, but to live there. It was his man, O'Hea, who had said of him:

"Old Q. is the unknownest man in the known world. And likes it."

Golden Gloves Bouts Tonight

CHICAGO, March 10—(AP)—Thirty-two amateur boxers — the best in a starting field of 25,000—vie tonight for championships in the semi-final and title rounds of the Golden Gloves tournament at Chicago Stadium.

A crowd of 15,000 is expected to witness the 23rd annual event.

Champions in eight weight classes will compose the Chicago squad which meets New York's recently-crowned Golden Gloves titlists at the stadium on March 29. Less than a month later, a team of American winners will battle the champions of Europe.

Los Angeles and Cleveland each send four semi-finalists into action. Chicago goes into the final night of the meet with only one representative, Van Leonard, a heavyweight with a punch. All told, 17 cities are represented in tonight's feature attraction of the Tournament of Champions.

Semi-finals of Cage Tourney

DODGE CITY, Kas., March 10—(AP)—Moberly, Mo., will play Garden City, Kas., and Southwest Baptist of Bolivar, Mo., will meet Dodge City tonight in the semi-finals of the regional junior college basketball tournament.

The four teams all won their first round games yesterday by big margins.

Moberly hardly used its first string at all in trouncing Scottsbluff, Neb. 78-52.

Garden City knocked out Jefferson City, Mo., 75-41 and Southwest Baptist eliminated Independence, Kas. 64-50.

The finals will be played tomorrow night. The tournament champion will go to the national tournament at Hutchinson, Kas., March 21-25.

Old Timer to Help The New Umpires

CARTHAGE, Mo., March 10—(AP)—The new staff of umpires for the Kansas - Oklahoma - Missouri league will have an official advisor this season.

He is Joe Becker of Joplin, veteran umpire of the Three-I, Western and Pacific Coast leagues who recently retired as a major league scout.

E. L. Dale, president of the league, said he thought it would be a good idea to have an old-timer help the new umpires, most of whom will be calling balls and strikes for the first time in professional baseball.

Pennsylvanians Will Use Modern Methods to Try to Catch Foxes

LIGNOIER, Pa., March 10—(AP)—This western Pennsylvania town which takes the sports limelight annually with its circular fox hunt is going to try soothing the savage beast with some smaltzy waltzes.

The Ligonier Valley's 140th anniversary grand circular fox hunt due to start bright and early tomorrow morning will be a far cry from fox hunts of old.

There will be a sound truck with plenty of the latest recordings on the turntable. Most of them will be definitely on the soft and sweet side.

"We'll find out whether there is any truth to the old saying that 'music hath charms to soothe the savage beast,'" says Phil Walters, the hunt's generalissimo.

Too Old Fashioned

Long ago, Ligonier folks discarded many traditions of the hunt including the term "master of the hunt." Too old fashioned, they said.

That's an understatement.

A few years ago rocket bombs were used. The huntsmen figured the noise would help rout out the foxes.

That didn't work too well, so airplanes were used to fly low over the area to frighten the foxes out of their hiding places.

But flying weather is uncertain in this section of the country at this time of the year so the huntsmen can't count on airplanes tomorrow. That's why they're turning to music.

The hunters form in a 13-mile circle. They close in slowly, beating the woodland with sticks and shouting all the while. Then comes the kill.

All-Stars Named For NIAA Team

Unanimous Vote For Gene Ruble of Springfield Bears

KANSAS CITY, March 10—(AP)—A team of high scoring veterans make up the All-Star Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball teams for 1950.

Coaches of the conference were unanimous in only one selection, that being Gene Ruble, forward of the champion Southwest Missouri State Bears of Springfield.

Al Henningsen, of Maryville, came within one vote of getting the nod from all six coaches. The others were named to the first team by four of the six coaches. They are Pete Younger, of Maryville; Glen Kammeyer, of Warrensburg, and Earl Perry of Kirksville.

Second Team

Making the second team were Jack Lindsay and Ed Cook, of Springfield; Chuch Branson, of Warrensburg; Bob Merrick, of Cape Girardeau, and Jim Scott of Rolla. Of the unit, Scott and Branson received the biggest votes.

Bob Goodwin, of Cape Girardeau, was nosed out of a second team berth.

The first mythical quintet carries real scoring power. Younger and Henningsen scored 289 and 282 points respectively. Perry hit for 235 in 22 games. Ruble, playing on one of the better defensive clubs of this area, got 160 and Kammeyer 151 during the season.

Joe McCarthy Speaks About Boston Team

Claims 'Our Pitching Should Be Better'

By Jack Hand

SARASOTA, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Joe McCarthy points to Billy Goodman and Al Zarilla as the men to help his Boston Red Sox get away to a flying start this spring.

"I don't know why we got away so slow last year," said McCarthy, "but I have a couple of ideas. Goodman was hurt making an outfield catch in Hartford just before the opener. If he was able to play, we might not have experimented so long with Walt Dropo at first base.

"Then we didn't get Zarilla from the Browns until May. He helped us plenty in right field when Sam Mele was injured and couldn't get going later.

"This year we're going to have Goodman and Zarilla in there from the opening day on. We've already sent Dropo to Louisville for another year.

Full Year's Experience

"Our pitching ought to be better. The young fellows — Maury McDermott and Charley Stobbs—have a full year's experience. They'll be ready to take a turn from the start with Mel Parnell, Ellis Kinder and Joe Dobson."

McCarthy, who lived in deadly fear of an alibi, discourages mention of the injuries that sidelined Bobby Doerr, Goodman and McDermott at important moments. He didn't win and that's that.

There is no mystery about the Sox club for 1950. The infield is set with Goodman, Doerr, Vern Stephens and Johnny Pesky. Ted Williams, Dom Dimaggio and Zarilla are the outfield with Birdie Tebbetts, Buddy Rosar and Matt Batts the catchers.

Only in the pitching department are there some wide open opportunities. A most important problem is the search for a Joe Page type of reliefer. Game after game was lost by the Sox last season for lack of a capable stopper in the late innings.

"Al Papai, who used to be with the Browns, ought to help us. And we got Bob Gillespie. He won 17 and struck out over 100 at Seattle."

Miami Beach Event Went Into The Second Round Today

By Tom Chase

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 10—(AP)—A pair of soft-spoken southerners, both veterans of many campaigns on the links, shared the lead today as the Miami Beach $10,000 invitational golf tournament went into the second round.

Chunky Johnny Palmer, professional of Badin, N. C., who earlier this week won the La Gorce country club pro-amateur, and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., each carded three under par 60's yesterday as the first major Miami Beach tournament in 20 years got under way.

Puptter Turns Sour

Palmer, tenth ranking money winner thus far this year, carded a 32 on the front side of the Bayshore golf course for the best nine hole score of the day. But coming back his putter turned sour, a 25-mile an hour wind played havoc with the long shots and he was one over par.

Harper, fourth ranking Ryder cup team candidate with 87 2-7 points and eighth ranking money winner with $2,700 so far this year, was even par 36 on the front nine and came back in three under par 33.

The southern twosome held a one stroke lead over a bulky field of 220 of the nation's leading amateurs and professionals who played over two courses — Bayshore and Normandy Isle — for the opening round.

The "name players" switch to the 6,676-yard Normandy Isle course today while the lesser lights battle over the 6,440-yard Bayshore layout. Both courses are 36-36—72 for par.

Only one stroke off the pace were Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis, Tenn., dentist turned pro golfer and now playing out of Ormond Beach, Fla.; Walter Burkemo of Franklin, Mich., and Gene Kunes of Hollywood, Fla.

Tommy Sullivan of Miami and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, shared the lead among amateur competitors with one over par 73's.

Famous Iron Man Tries for Comeback

CHICAGO, March 10—(AP)—The spotlight will be on the shotput in tomorrow's Illinois Tech relays at the University of Chicago field house as Chuck Fonville, Michigan's famous iron man, tries for a track comeback.

The meet, drawing some 650 athletes from 11 universities and 32 colleges, is ranked as the nation's largest indoor track event.

Fonville, Big Ten champion, was the first to throw the 16-pound shot 58 feet. But since the powerful, lanky Negro set the world's record at the Kansas relay meet in 1948, a better man has come along in the name of Jim Fuchs of Yale. Fuchs powered the ball 58 feet 4 inches in Oslo, Norway, in July, 1949.

Opposing Fonville's quest for a new mark will be at least two rugged competitors, John Helwig of Notre Dame and Roland Prather of Kansas State.

1,000 Athletes Will Compete in Track Meet

LAREDO, Texas, March 10—(AP)—The border Olympics, expected to bring an avalanche of new records, swung open today with the junior colleges and high schools getting first crack.

Almost 1,000 athletes from 78 schools over the southwest will compete in the eighteenth edition of this big outdoor track and field carnival.

The University of Texas tops a field of eight universities holding preliminaries tomorrow morning and finals tomorrow night. Louisiana State and Oklahoma A&M furnish the out-of-state interest.

Texas, which last year won the Olympics 58-55 over Texas A&M is favored to repeat on the strength of a galaxy of sprinters topped by Charley Parker and Perry Samuels.

Twelve colleges, eleven from Texas plus Southeastern State Teachers of Durant, Okla., slash at the records of the college division. They hold prelims tomorrow morning at the same time as the university class.

TODAY A YEAR AGO—Art Houtteman, promising young pitcher with the Detroit Tigers, was seriously injured in an auto accident.

FIVE YEARS AGO—Phil Rafferty of the New York A.C. won his seventh straight mile run, timed in 4:16.3 in the K. of C. games.

TEN YEARS AGO—Don Budge defeated Bill Tilden, 7-5, 6-2, in a benefit pro tennis match in New York.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO—Max Schmeling, 189, stopped Steve Hamas (190) in the ninth round of a scheduled 12 at Hamburg, Germany.

Four Berths Still Open For NAIB

Six-Day Cage Marathon Starts This Monday

KANSAS CITY, March 10—(AP)—The thirty-two team field for the National Intercollegiate (NAIB) basketball tournament will be completed tonight.

Only four berths remained open today for the six-day cage marathon.

One, the West Virginia representative, was to be named by the National Association of Intercollegiate basketball's executive committee.

The others will be settled in playoffs tonight. In the New England district, St. Anselm's of Manchester, N. H., will meet the New Britain (Conn) Teachers.

Peru Teachers and Doane college will settle the Nebraska berth. In the southwest, it will be West Texas State, of Canyon, Texas, against East Texas State of Commerce.

Committee Will Decide

The executive committee, headed by executive secretary Al Duer, will decide whether Davis and Elkins, of Elkins, or Marshall college of Huntington, will represent West Virginia.

Davis and Elkins last night defeated West Virginia Wesleyan, 77-56, in a playoff and was all ready to head for Kansas City when Marshall asked for a ruling. Marshall did not participate in the playoff.

South Dakota university of Vermillion; St. Thomas of St. Paul, Minnesota and George Pepperdine college, of Los Angeles, were certified yesterday.

Pepperdine got in by beating Chico (Calif) State 65-35, at Chico last night.

Pairings will be made tomorrow. Eight teams will be seeded and the remaining twenty-four drawn.

Starting times of the games Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday has been set for noon (EST) instead of 1 p. m. as in past years. Eight games will be played daily for the first three days.

Windsor Still In Tourney

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 10—(AP)—The Missouri state class B high school basketball tournament moved into the quarter-final round today.

Survivors of first round games square off today and tonight in this lineup:

Puxico vs. Clarkton 2 p.m.
Ozark vs. Brentwood 3:25 p.m.
Willard vs. School of the Osage 7:30 p.m.
Windsor vs. Rothville 8:55 p.m.

Puxico, Clarkton and Ozark won their first round games Tuesday night.

In the five first round games played yesterday and last night the victors, with one exception, won handily.

The exception was Rothville, which came from behind in the final 18 seconds to nose out Elvins, 40 to 39. Jim Grubbs scored the set-up goal for Rothville which entered the tournament with a record of 29 victories and three losses.

Kentuckians Play First Tilt in NIB

Tournament Gets Started Saturday In New York City

By Milo Farneti

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—Western Kentucky plays the first game in the National Invitation basketball tournament Saturday and don't be surprised if the Hilltoppers stick around for the finish.

Coach Ed Diddle is back with a better team than last year's quarter-finalists. That club bowed to Bradley.

The Hilltoppers, Bradley and Kentucky rate as the top three favorites in the 12 team field.

All three operate under the same style — a fast break and heavy firing at the basket.

Bradley and Western both have more experience than Kentucky's sophomore club. Where Western may rate a slight edge is in height. Diddle can send out five men averaging six-four or five—topped by six-eight Bob Lavoy.

Heavy Favorite

Western (24-5) rates a heavy favorite over Niagara (20-6) in Saturday afternoon's opener. The Hilltoppers also have to get by St. John's (22-4), fourth seeded, to reach the semi-finals and maybe get at Bradley again.

Bradley (22-3), first seeded, finished first in the final Associated Press poll of the country's top teams.

Unseeded San Francisco (19-6), defending champion, plays CCNY (17-5) in the other afternoon contest. Then Saturday night LaSalle (20-3) meets Arizona (25-4) and Long Island (20-4) takes on Syracuse (17-8).

Bradley, Kentucky (25-4), Duquesne (22-4) and St. John's — seeded in that order — drew first round byes. They play their first games in the quarter finals Monday and Tuesday.

Big League Training Camp Briefs

By the Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Washington's bat-happy Nats slammed batting practice homers over Tinker field fences again yesterday. That made 36 for two days.

Outfielder Sam Mele got in the act yesterday with five circuit smashes.

Lacked Wrist Action

TAMPA, Fla., March 10—(AP)—If Ted Kluszewski is concerned about the possibility of losing his first base job with the Cincinnati Reds to Joe Adcock, he isn't showing it.

Kluszewski, who was a holdout, has been in the Reds' training camp only two days. He merely laughed and shrugged his shoulders yesterday when asked what he thought of the Adcock threat.

"I'm going to swing for the fences this season and I'm sure that I'll more than double my home run total (8) of 1949," he said. "My chief trouble last season was that I didn't get enough wrist action into my swing."

Cubs Leave Training Site

AVALON, Calif., March 10—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs wave farewell to their Catalina island training camp today, heading back to the mainland for the opening of their exhibition schedule.

Manager Frankie Frisch is pleased with the condition of his squad. Only two players, pitcher Bill Voiselle and catcher Carl Sawatski, are still overweight. The Cubs play the Chicago White Sox at Pasadena tomorrow.

Test for Pitcher Hal Gregg

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., March 10—(AP)—Pitcher Hal Gregg knows he's getting his last chance with the Pittsburgh Pirates and is bearing down harder than any rookie in the training camp.

Gregg, trying hard to make a comeback after two listless seasons since he came to the Bucs from the Brooklyn Dodgers, reported in top physical condition. In his first appearance on the mound he pitched two innings, facing only six men.

He's scheduled for his second test tomorrow when he hurls three innings against the St. Louis Browns in an exhibition at Burbank.

Good Performance

BURBANK, Calif., March 10—(AP)—Russ Bauers, a big, raw-boned pitcher, earned plaudits yesterday in helping the Bruckers to a 3-2 victory over the Hofmanns in the St. Louis Browns intra-squad game.

His performance was the most convincing one turned in by hurlers on both teams.

Musial Under Treatment

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Outfielder Stan Musial hopes to resume practice with the St. Louis Cardinals today.

He says his chest cold has broken up and he will be in uniform when the squad opens its exhibition season Saturday against the New York Yankees.

Musial took heat treatments yesterday.

Ultimatums Sent Out

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 10—(AP)—The New York Yankee management has sent ultimatums to the two remaining holdouts—pitcher Tommy Byrne and infielder Bobby Brown.

The gentlemen who handle the cash for the world champions sent the recalcitrants word that they have gone the limit in their offers. The next move, they indicated, are up to the holdouts.

Byrne won 15 games last year. Brown played 104 games at third and batted .283.

Last Day of Regatta Races

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 10—Ted Wells of Wichita, Kas., still was the skipper to beat as the International Midwinter Snipe Regatta entered its last day today.

Two races, the fourth and fifth, are on the final program.

Wells, winner of the first two races, was third yesterday, but still held top place in overall standings.

MY Biggest BONER

Behind, Moses Hits Three-Nothing Ball, and is Saved by Tying Triple

By Wally Moses
Athletics' Outfielder

By biggest boner in baseball was pulled in my sceond year in the organized game — 1932.

I belonged to the Cardinal chain and was cavorting for the Monroe, La., club of the Class C Cotton States league.

It was just prior to July 1, which is when the league blew up with a loud blast. A lot of other things besides baseball leagues were collapsing in those days.

Anyway, we were three runs behind in the ninth inning at Vicksburg, Miss., had the bases full with no one out and the count on me was three balls and no strikes.

I was batting third. The next hitter our cleanup man, Pyle, was leading the league with .380 and in home runs and runs-batted-in.

The pitcher came in with a fat pitch and I said to myself: "I'll hit this one out of the park," and I nearly did.

It was a triple to right center field, and I pulled into third base after the three runs had scored, feeling just like a hitter who has just driven in three runs.

Frank Kitchens, one time Brooklyn catcher, was our manager coaching at third base. He was fit to be tied.

"How dumb can you get!" he shouted.

"What's wrong?" I asked, an innocent 21-year-old. "Isn't the score tied? A fly ball now and we win.

"That's all that saved you," said the skipper. "Otherwise I'd have shot you had I a gun.

"What put it into your thick head that you were the last hitter we had for the day? Suppose you had hit into a double play?"

When the league folded, the St. Louis Nationals failed to place me and I was made a free agent. I went with Manager Kitchens to Tyler, when that town took Shreveport's place in the Texas league.

And I never again swung at a ball with my side trailing by three runs in the ninth, the bases full, none out, the count three and nothing and a .380 cleanup home run hitter coming up.

Hot Ball Game

GEELONG, Australia — (AP) — When struck on the leg by a pitched ball during a week-end match, Robt. Bate hopped around the wicket, dropped his bat, threw away his gloves and quickly turned out one of his pockets.

The ball had struck a box of matches in his pocket and set them afire.

Since the introduction of the 16-inch television receiver, manufacturers report it is fast becoming the popular set.

Golden Gloves Bouts Tonight

CHICAGO, March 10—(AP)—Thirty-two amateur boxers — the best in a starting field of 25,000—vie tonight for championships in the semi-final and title rounds of the Golden Gloves tournament at Chicago Stadium.

A crowd of 15,000 is expected to witness the 23rd annual event.

Champions in eight weight classes will compose the Chicago squad which meets New York's recently-crowned Golden Gloves titlists at the stadium on March 29. Less than a month later, a team of American winners will battle the champions of Europe.

Los Angeles and Cleveland each send four semi-finalists into action. Chicago goes into the final night of the meet with only one representative, Van Leonard, a heavyweight with a punch. All told, 17 cities are represented in tonight's feature attraction of the Tournament of Champions.

Semi-finals of Cage Tourney

DODGE CITY, Kas., March 10—(AP)—Moberly, Mo., will play Garden City, Kas., and Southwest Baptist of Bolivar, Mo., will meet Dodge City tonight in the semi-finals of the regional junior college basketball tournament.

The four teams all won their first round games yesterday by big margins.

Moberly hardly used its first string at all in trouncing Scottsbluff, Neb. 78-52.

Garden City knocked out Jefferson City, Mo., 75-41 and Southwest Baptist eliminated Independence, Kas. 64-50.

Old Timer to Help The New Umpires

CARTHAGE, Mo., March 10—(AP)—The new staff of umpires for the Kansas - Oklahoma - Missouri league will have an official advisor this season.

He is Joe Becker of Joplin, veteran umpire of the Three-I, Western and Pacific Coast leagues who recently retired as a major league scout.

E. L. Dale, president of the league, said he thought it would be a good idea to have an old-timer help the new umpires, most of whom will be calling balls and strikes for the first time in professional baseball.

Pennsylvanians Will Use Modern Methods to Try to Catch Foxes

LIGNOIER, Pa., March 10—(AP)—This western Pennsylvania town which takes the sports limelight annually with its circular fox hunt is going to try soothing the savage beast with some smaltzy waltzes.

The Ligonier Valley's 140th anniversary grand circular fox hunt due to start bright and early tomorrow morning will be a far cry from fox hunts of old.

There will be a sound truck with plenty of the latest recordings on the turntable. Most of them will be definitely on the soft and sweet side.

"We'll find out whether there is any truth to the old saying that 'music hath charms to soothe the savage beast,'" says Phil Walters, the hunt's generalissimo.

Too Old Fashioned

Long ago, Ligonier folks discarded many traditions of the hunt including the term "master of the hunt." Too old fashioned, they said.

That's an understatement.

A few years ago rocket bombs were used. The huntsmen figured the noise would help rout out the foxes.

That didn't work too well, so airplanes were used to fly low over the area to frighten the foxes out of their hiding places.

But flying weather is uncertain in this section of the country at this time of the year so the huntsmen can't count on airplanes tomorrow. That's why they're turning to music.

The hunters form in a 13-mile circle. They close in slowly, beating the woodland with sticks and shouting all the while. Then comes the kill.

All-Stars Named For NIAA Team

Unanimous Vote For Gene Ruble of Springfield Bears

KANSAS CITY, March 10—(AP)—A team of high scoring veterans make up the All-Star Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball teams for 1950.

Coaches of the conference were unanimous in only one selection, that being Gene Ruble, forward of the champion Southwest Missouri State Bears of Springfield.

Al Henningsen, of Maryville, came within one vote of getting the nod from all six coaches. The others were named to the first team by four of the six coaches. They are Pete Younger, of Maryville; Glen Kammeyer, of Warrensburg, and Earl Perry of Kirksville.

Second Team

Making the second team were Jack Lindsay and Ed Cook, of Springfield; Chuch Branson, of Warrensburg; Bob Merrick, of Cape Girardeau, and Jim Scott of Rolla. Of the unit, Scott and Branson received the biggest votes.

Bob Goodwin, of Cape Girardeau, was nosed out of a second team berth.

The first mythical quintet carries real scoring power. Younger and Henningsen scored 289 and 282 points respectively. Perry hit for 235 in 22 games. Ruble, playing on one of the better defensive clubs of this area, got 160 and Kammeyer 151 during the season.

Joe McCarthy Speaks About Boston Team

Claims 'Our Pitching Should Be Better'

By Jack Hand

SARASOTA, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Joe McCarthy points to Billy Goodman and Al Zarilla as the men to help his Boston Red Sox get away to a flying start this spring.

"I don't know why we got away so slow last year," said McCarthy, "but I have a couple of ideas. Goodman was hurt making an outfield catch in Hartford just before the opener. If he was able to play, we might not have experimented so long with Walt Dropo at first base.

"Then we didn't get Zarilla from the Browns until May. He helped us plenty in right field when Sam Mele was injured and couldn't get going later.

"This year we're going to have Goodman and Zarilla in there from the opening day on. We've already sent Dropo to Louisville for another year.

Full Year's Experience

"Our pitching ought to be better. The young fellows — Maury McDermott and Charley Stobbs—have a full year's experience. They'll be ready to take a turn from the start with Mel Parnell, Ellis Kinder and Joe Dobson."

McCarthy, who lived in deadly fear of an alibi, discourages mention of the injuries that sidelined Bobby Doerr, Goodman and McDermott at important moments. He didn't win and that's that.

There is no mystery about the Sox club for 1950. The infield is set with Goodman, Doerr, Vern Stephens and Johnny Pesky. Ted Williams, Dom Dimaggio and Zarilla are the outfield with Birdie Tebbetts, Buddy Rosar and Matt Batts the catchers.

Only in the pitching department are there some wide open opportunities. A most important problem is the search for a Joe Page type of reliefer. Game after game was lost by the Sox last season for lack of a capable stopper in the late innings.

"Al Papai, who used to be with the Browns, ought to help us. And we got Bob Gillespie. He won 17 and struck out over 100 at Seattle."

Two Share Lead in Golf Meet

Miami Beach Event Went Into The Second Round Today

By Tom Chase

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 10—(AP)—A pair of soft-spoken southerners, both veterans of many campaigns on the links, shared the lead today as the Miami Beach $10,000 invitational golf tournament went into the second round.

Chunky Johnny Palmer, professional of Badin, N. C., who earlier this week won the La Gorce country club pro-amateur, and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., each carded three under par 60's yesterday as the first major Miami Beach tournament in 20 years got under way.

Puptter Turns Sour

Palmer, tenth ranking money winner thus far this year, carded a 32 on the front side of the Bayshore golf course for the best nine hole score of the day. But coming back his putter turned sour, a 25-mile an hour wind played havoc with the long shots and he was one over par.

Harper, fourth ranking Ryder cup team candidate with 87 2-7 points and eighth ranking money winner with $2,700 so far this year, was even par 36 on the front nine and came back in three under par 33.

The southern twosome held a one stroke lead over a bulky field of 220 of the nation's leading amateurs and professionals who played over two courses — Bayshore and Normandy Isle — for the opening round.

The "name players" switch to the 6,676-yard Normandy Isle course today while the lesser lights battle over the 6,440-yard Bayshore layout. Both courses are 36-36—72 for par.

Only one stroke off the pace were Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis, Tenn., dentist turned pro golfer and now playing out of Ormond Beach, Fla.; Walter Burkemo of Franklin, Mich., and Gene Kunes of Hollywood, Fla.

Tommy Sullivan of Miami and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, shared the lead among amateur competitors with one over par 73's.

Famous Iron Man Tries for Comeback

CHICAGO, March 10—(AP)—The spotlight will be on the shotput in tomorrow's Illinois Tech relays at the University of Chicago field house as Chuck Fonville, Michigan's famous iron man, tries for a track comeback.

The meet, drawing some 650 athletes from 11 universities and 32 colleges, is ranked as the nation's largest indoor track event.

Fonville, Big Ten champion, was the first to throw the 16-pound shot 58 feet. But since the powerful, lanky Negro set the world's record at the Kansas relay meet in 1948, a better man has come along in the name of Jim Fuchs of Yale. Fuchs powered the ball 58 feet 4 inches in Oslo, Norway, in July, 1949.

Opposing Fonville's quest for a new mark will be at least two rugged competitors, John Helwig of Notre Dame and Roland Prather of Kansas State.

1,000 Athletes Will Compete in Track Meet

LAREDO, Texas, March 10—(AP)—The border Olympics, expected to bring an avalanche of new records, swung open today with the junior colleges and high schools getting first crack.

Almost 1,000 athletes from 78 schools over the southwest will compete in the eighteenth edition of this big outdoor track and field carnival.

The University of Texas tops a field of eight universities holding preliminaries tomorrow morning and finals tomorrow night. Louisiana State and Oklahoma A&M furnish the out-of-state interest.

Texas, which last year won the Olympics 58-55 over Texas A&M is favored to repeat on the strength of a galaxy of sprinters topped by Charley Parker and Perry Samuels.

Twelve colleges, eleven from Texas plus Southeastern State Teachers of Durant, Okla., slash at the records of the college division. They hold prelims tomorrow morning at the same time as the university class.

TODAY A YEAR AGO—Art Houtteman, promising young pitcher with the Detroit Tigers, was seriously injured in an auto accident.

FIVE YEARS AGO—Phil Rafferty of the New York A.C. won his seventh straight mile run, timed in 4:16.3 in the K. of C. games.

TEN YEARS AGO—Don Budge defeated Bill Tilden, 7-5, 6-2, in a benefit pro tennis match in New York.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO—Max Schmeling, 189, stopped Steve Hamas (190) in the ninth round of a scheduled 12 at Hamburg, Germany.

A practical method, using oil, to pierce holes in steel, has been devised. Ordinary methods of piercing sheet metal use a metal punch, while the new system substitutes a column of oil for the punch.

BUDDING TALENT—Connie Mack has both arms full of budding talent in Athletics' West Palm Beach, Fla., training camp. Clayton, 4, left, and Russ Thomas, 2, can pick up plenty of advice from the 87-year-old Mr Mack, only manager the Philadelphia Americans ever had in 50 years of baseball.

Four Berths Still Open For NAIB

Six-Day Cage Marathon Starts This Monday

KANSAS CITY, March 10—(AP)—The thirty-two team field for the National Intercollegiate (NAIB) basketball tournament will be completed tonight.

Only four berths remained open today for the six-day cage marathon.

One, the West Virginia representative, was to be named by the National Association of Intercollegiate basketball's executive committee.

The others will be settled in playoffs tonight. In the New England district, St. Anselm's of Manchester, N. H., will meet the New Britain (Conn) Teachers.

Peru Teachers and Doane college will settle the Nebraska berth. In the southwest, it will be West Texas State, of Canyon,, Texas, against East Texas State of Commerce.

Committee Will Decide

The executive committee, headed by executive secretary Al Duer, will decide whether Davis and Elkins, of Elkins, or Marshall college of Huntington, will represent West Virginia.

Davis and Elkins last night defeated West Virginia Wesleyan, 77-56, in a playoff and was all ready to head for Kansas City when Marshall asked for a ruling. Marshall did not participate in the playoff.

South Dakota university of Vermillion; St. Thomas of St. Paul, Minnesota and George Pepperdine college, of Los Angeles, were certified yesterday.

Pepperdine got in by beating Chico (Calif) State 65-35, at Chico last night.

Pairings will be made tomorrow. Eight teams will be seeded and the remaining twenty-four drawn.

Starting times of the games Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday has been set for noon (EST) instead of 1 p. m. as in past years. Eight games will be played daily for the first three days.

Windsor Still In Tourney

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 10—(AP)—The Missouri state class B high school basketball tournament moved into the quarter-final round today.

Survivors of first round games square off today and tonight in this lineup:

Puxico vs. Clarkton 2 p.m.
Ozark vs. Brentwood 3:25 p.m.
Willard vs. School of the Osage 7:30 p.m.
Windsor vs. Rothville 8:55 p.m.

Puxico, Clarkton and Ozark won their first round games Tuesday night.

In the five first round games played yesterday and last night the victors, with one exception, won handily.

The exception was Rothville, which came from behind in the final 18 seconds to nose out Elvins, 40 to 39. Jim Grubbs scored the set-up goal for Rothville which entered the tournament with a record of 29 victories and three losses.

Kentuckians Play First Tilt in NIB

Tournament Gets Started Saturday In New York City

By Milo Farneti

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—Western Kentucky plays the first game in the National Invitation basketball tournament Saturday and don't be surprised if the Hilltoppers stick around for the finish.

Coach Ed Diddle is back with a better team than last year's quarter-finalists. That club bowed to Bradley.

The Hilltoppers, Bradley and Kentucky rate as the top three favorites in the 12 team field.

All three operate under the same style — a fast break and heavy firing at the basket.

Bradley and Western both have more experience than Kentucky's sophomore club. Where Western may rate a slight edge is in height. Diddle can send out five men averaging six-four or five—topped by six-eight Bob Lavoy.

Heavy Favorite

Western (24-5) rates a heavy favorite over Niagara (20-6) in Saturday afternoon's opener. The Hilltoppers also have to get by St. John's (22-4), fourth seeded, to reach the semi-finals and maybe get at Bradley again.

Bradley (22-3), first seeded, finished first in the final Associated Press poll of the country's top teams.

Unseeded San Francisco (19-6), defending champion, plays CCNY (17-5) in the other afternoon contest. Then Saturday night LaSalle (20-3) meets Arizona (25-4) and Long Island (20-4) takes on Syracuse (17-8).

Bradley, Kentucky (25-4), Duquesne (22-4) and St. John's — seeded in that order — drew first round byes. They play their first games in the quarter finals Monday and Tuesday.

Big League Training Camp Briefs

By the Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Washington's bat-happy Nats slammed batting practice homers over Tinker field fences again yesterday. That made 36 for two days.

Outfielder Sam Mele got in the act yesterday with five circuit smashes.

Lacked Wrist Action

TAMPA, Fla., March 10—(AP)—If Ted Kluszewski is concerned about the possibility of losing his first base job with the Cincinnati Reds to Joe Adcock, he isn't showing it.

Kluszewski, who was a holdout, has been in the Reds' training camp only two days. He merely laughed and shrugged his shoulders yesterday when asked what he thought of the Adcock threat.

"I'm going to swing for the fences this season and I'm sure that I'll more than double my home run total (8) of 1949," he said. "My chief trouble last season was that I didn't get enough wrist action into my swing."

Cubs Leave Training Site

AVALON, Calif., March 10—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs wave farewell to their Catalina island training camp today, heading back to the mainland for the opening of their exhibition schedule.

Manager Frankie Frisch is pleased with the condition of his squad. Only two players, pitcher Bill Voiselle and catcher Carl Sawatski, are still overweight. The Cubs play the Chicago White Sox at Pasadena tomorrow.

Test for Pitcher Hal Gregg

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., March 10—(AP)—Pitcher Hal Gregg knows he's getting his last chance with the Pittsburgh Pirates and is bearing down harder than any rookie in the training camp.

Gregg, trying hard to make a comeback after two listless seasons since he came to the Bucs from the Brooklyn Dodgers, reported in top physical condition. In his first appearance on the mound he pitched two innings, facing only six men.

He's scheduled for his second test tomorrow when he hurls three innings against the St. Louis Browns in an exhibition at Burbank.

Good Performance

BURBANK, Calif., March 10—(AP)—Russ Bauers, a big, raw-boned pitcher, earned plaudits yesterday in helping the Bruckers to a 3-2 victory over the Hofmanns in the St. Louis Browns intra-squad game.

His performance was the most convincing one turned in by hurlers on both teams.

Musial Under Treatment

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Outfielder Stan Musial hopes to resume practice with the St. Louis Cardinals today.

He says his chest cold has broken up and he will be in uniform when the squad opens its exhibition season Saturday against the New York Yankees.

Musial took heat treatments yesterday.

Ultimatums Sent Out

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 10—(AP)—The New York Yankee management has sent ultimatums to the two remaining holdouts—pitcher Tommy Byrne and infielder Bobby Brown.

The gentlemen who handle the cash for the world champions sent the recalcitrants word that they have gone the limit in their offers. The next move, they indicated, are up to the holdouts.

Byrne won 15 games last year. Brown played 104 games at third and batted .283.

Last Day of Regatta Races

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 10—Ted Wells of Wichita, Kas., still was the skipper to beat as the International Midwinter Snipe Regatta entered its last day today.

Two races, the fourth and fifth, are on the final program.

Wells, winner of the first two races, was third yesterday, but still held top place in overall standings.

MY Biggest BONER

Behind, Moses Hits Three-Nothing Ball, and is Saved by Tying Triple

By Wally Moses
Athletics' Outfielder

By biggest boner in baseball was pulled in my sceond year in the organized game — 1932.

I belonged to the Cardinal chain and was cavorting for the Monroe, La., club of the Class C Cotton States league.

It was just prior to July 1, which is when the league blew up with a loud blast. A lot of other things besides baseball leagues were collapsing in those days.

Anyway, we were three runs behind in the ninth inning at Vicksburg, Miss., had the bases full with no one out and the count on me was three balls and no strikes.

I was batting third. The next hitter our cleanup man, Pyle, was leading the league with .380 and in home runs and runs-batted-in.

The pitcher came in with a fat pitch and I said to myself: "I'll hit this one out of the park," and I nearly did.

It was a triple to right center field, and I pulled into third base after the three runs had scored, feeling just like a hitter who has just driven in three runs.

Frank Kitchens, one time Brooklyn catcher, was our manager coaching at third base. He was fit to be tied.

"How dumb can you get!" he shouted.

"What's wrong?" I asked, an innocent 21-year-old. "Isn't the score tied? A fly ball now and we win.

"That's all that saved you," said the skipper. "Otherwise I'd have shot you had I a gun.

"What put it into your thick head that you were the last hitter we had for the day? Suppose you had hit into a double play?"

When the league folded, the St. Louis Nationals failed to place me and I was made a free agent. I went with Manager Kitchens to Tyler, when that town took Shreveport's place in the Texas league.

And I never again swung at a ball with my side trailing by three runs in the ninth, the bases full, none out, the count three and nothing and a .380 cleanup home run hitter coming up.

Seventy entries from all conference schools but Kansas State and Missouri will compete in 14 different events today and tomorrow.

Iowa State will bring Roger Watts, who holds conference records in the 220-yard, 440-yard and 1,500-meter free-style races.

Hot Ball Game

GEELONG, Australia — (AP) — When struck on the leg by a pitched ball during a week-end match, Robt. Bate hopped around the wicket, dropped his bat, threw away his gloves and quickly turned out one of his pockets.

The ball had struck a box of matches in his pocket and set them afire.

Since the introduction of the 16-inch television receiver, manufacturers report it is fast becoming the popular set.

ZION, Ill.—(AP)—Passers-by saw a man sawing away at a big poplar tree. It meant nothing to them. But it meant a lot to Mrs. Ella Scrafield.

She planted the tree 44 years ago. She moved four times. Each time she brought the tree along and transplanted it. But recently, because of decay, it had to be cut down and hauled away.

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

BEST SCOUT OF THEM ALL was Daniel Carter Beard, author, artist, outdoorsman and founder of the movement which became the Boy Scouts of America. In dress and spirit, the perfect picture of the old woodsman, "Uncle Dan" Beard brought the pioneer traditions of Daniel Boone into the Twentieth Century and into the lives of millions of American boys. It was in 1905 when Beard, then editor of a recreation magazine, got the idea for a boys' outdoor organization. He formed the "Sons of Daniel Boone," which grew to 150,000 members in five years. In 1910, Beard's "Sons" merged with a British organization headed by Lord Baden-Powell to form the International Boy Scout movement. Today there are two and a quarter million American Boy Scouts.

Crumbling Tunnel

Three million cubic feet of mountainside is moving slowly toward the Colorado river east of Grand Junction, Colo., after crushing the No. 3 tunnel of the Grand Valley irrigation project. Walter L. Workman, the tunnel caretaker is shown here probing a fresh gap in the structure which was opened despite the heavy reinforcing timbers. A section of the tunnel later collapsed, depriving 30,000 acres of rich farmland of water. Hundreds of farmers face financial disaster with the water supply cut. (AP Wirephoto)

Belongings In Small Home Are Burned

Mrs. Sylvia Estill Has Loss Late Thursday

Fire believed to have started from a trash fire, practically destroyed all of the belongings of Mrs. Sylvia Estill and her seven small chilrden, 1410½ East Seventh street, about 4:04 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The building a converted shed of about 10 by 15 was damaged to the extent of $150 while Mrs. Estill reported her losses at more than $600 and only partly covered by insurance. The building is owned by Dewey Chaney, 1410 East Seventh street.

Mrs. Estill and six of her children live in the small building, Mrs. Estill was at her work at the J. A. Lamy Manufacturing Co., and only her nine-year-old daughter Betty was at home, when the blaze started. The little girl reported she was sitting in the house when she suddenly saw fire at her back.

Explosion of Oil Drum

"I ran out of the house and was standing in front when I heard an explosion," she reported.

The explosion which the girl referred to was a 50 gallon oil drum which was partly filled with coal oil. The barrel was on a stand at the rear of the building and one end was blown out. The end of the barrel was blown nearly fifty feet into the air and went a distance estimated at nearly 300 feet to the south. The metal went sailing over the "Bud" Howell Grocery-Filling station and landed on the side walk on the south side of Broadway.

Disc Whizzed Through Air

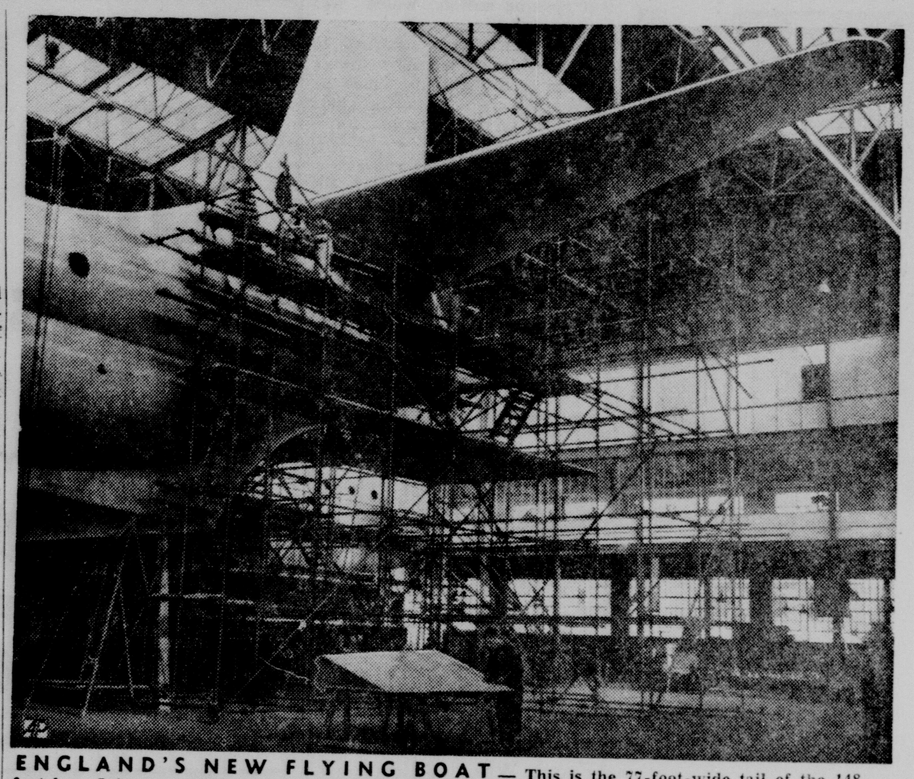

J. S. Patterson, 1420 East Broadway, was standing on his front porch when he heard the explosion and saw the flying disc sailing through the air. It came to earth on the walk next door to his home to the west. There were no pedestrians on the walk at the time, Mr. Patterson said.

Mrs. Estill has been residing in the small building with her children for the past two years, when she was unable to find any other place to live. One child her daughter Shirley, 8, stays with Mr. and Mrs. Chaney, and the other six, Carl Dean, 11, Betty 9, Bobbie 10, Donnie 7, Vonita 6, and Lyndia Kay 4 live with their mother.

Several neighbors offered to take the children until Mrs. Estill is able to find other quarters or the shed-residence is made liveable again.

A shed of F. C. Winebrenner, 1400 East Seventh, had damages of about $75.

Both fire companies answered the alarm.

Car Takes Off And Runs Into Building

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 10—(AP)—J. L. Smith, a used car salesman, got in a car Thursday to keep warm.

He started the engine, pressed his foot to the accelerator and the machine took off.

Before it came to a stop at a brick building, the car had crossed several lots, torn down shrubs, knocked down porch posts and some house steps, gone over a three-foot embankment and run over a few curbs.

Smith, who was not behind the wheel when the car started its run, was treated for lacerations and bruises.

For the woman who, by mischance, may have to cope with a flat tire on her car, there is a lightweight aluminum tire lift. It takes the strain out of lifting the new wheel into place on the hub in making the change.

Man Loaded Down With Lingerie

EL RENO, Okla., March 10—(AP)—What, no red silk stockings or green perfume?

Police here arrested a Seattle, Wash., man on a routine investigation for attempting to sell tools. His clothing appeared unusually bulky so they stripped him down.

Green silk nightgown with pink flowers; a pair of lace-trimmed pink panties; a pink salf-slip; a pair of black teddies with yellow lace on one side; a pink girdle with garter belt attached; a pair of white nylon panties with large pink flower pinned on, and a pair of sheer nylon hose.

Outer garments included a pair of trousers, a wool union suit, three shirts, leather jacket, black overcoat and pair of wool sox over the nylons.

Awards To High Schools Papers

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—Four Missouri high school and college newspapers Thursday won top awards — medalist ratings — at the twenty-sixth annual Columbia university Scholastic Press Association convention.

The four, among some 1,300 student newspapers entered in the competition were:

Capaha Arrow, published by the Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau, Mo., entered in the printed division of teachers college newspapers.

The Hilltop Crier, Illmo-Fornfelt high school, Illmo, Mo., entered in the duplicated publications division for schools of less than 300 enrollment.

The Turret, Christian Brothers high school, St. Louis, entered in the printed division for schools with enrollments of from 301 to 750.

The M.M.A. Eagle, Missouri Military Academy, Mexico, Mo., entered in printed publications division for secondary private schools.

The Spotlight, published by Soldan-Blewett high school, St. Louis, won a second place rating in the division for newspapers printed by schools with an enrollment of 1501 to 2,500.

A third place rating went to Mark Twain Indian Smoke Trails, Mark Twain school, Carthage, Mo. A duplicated paper, it was entered in the Junior high school division with 700 pupils or less.

A tax on bath tubs once was levied by the state of Virginia.

Vote To Keep Controls To June 30

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—Senate voted 44 to 28 Thursday to keep rent controls going until June 30.

What happens after that will be decided later.

Today's action rejected an effort to choke the control agency to death by refusing it more operating funds.

But the outcome was a compromise giving no clear indication what the Senate will do about another year of controls which President Truman has urged.

Today's vote, subject to House action, would do this:

1. Give the agency $1,400,000 to maintain its regulations until June 30. Several Senators contend it wouldn't be enough; that more will be asked.

2. Give it $2,600,000 to use solely for paying off some of its 4,100 employes by that date.

Girl Spy Is Sent To Prison

Judith Coplon Gets 15 Years; Ex-Pal Russian Engineer is To be Deported

NEW YORK, March 9—(AP)—Judith Coplon was sentenced to 15 years in prison today for plotting to spy for Russia. Her ex-pal, Russian engineer Valentin A. Gubitchev received a 15 years suspended sentence and was ordered deported to the Soviet Union within two weeks.

The deportation order for the 33-year-old, short, dour-faced Russian was recommended by the government as a result of conferences between the State Department and the attorney general's office.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan sentenced brunette little Miss Coplon to five years on a conspiracy charge and 15 years on a count of attempted espionage, the sentences to run concurrently.

He specified that the term imposed might not be served concurrently with a sentence of 40 months to 10 years she received in Washington, D.C., on kindred charges.

The judge refused an application to release her in bail.

To Appeal

Samuel A. Neuberger, attorney for the 28-year-old Miss Coplon, said he would file notice of appeal immediately.

Miss Coplon could have received 25 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Gubitchev faced a maximum of 15 years in jail and $20,000 fine.

U.S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol told the court of the government's recommendation for Gubitchev before sentence was imposed. He said it was the personal recommendation of the secretary of state and the attorney general.

"You came here as an emissary of peace," Judge Ryan told Gubitchev, who was suspended from his United Nations engineer position after his arrest on March 4, 1949.

Accepted As Friend

"You were accepted by us in the role of friend," he declared and added that Gubitchev had violated his United Nations oath by his actions.

Gubitchev did these things "with an arrogant smile on your lips and face," the judge said.

Turning to Miss Coplon he declared:

"You brought disgrace on your name and disgrace on your family. The country looks upon you with sorrow. The country does not seek vengeance but punishment must be substantial as a warning to others."

Then he added she had been "found guilty of betraying your country."

Saypol, in announcing the government's position, emphasized that the State Department did not

Gas is Flowing In Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 9—(AP)—Springfield was slowly but surely recovering today from the explosion last Tuesday which robbed this city of about 75,000 population of its natural gas supply, chief source of heating and cooking fuel.

Gas was flowing today in all mains except in the extreme north portion of the city, and in three smaller residential sections to the east and west.

Cities Service Gas Company's regulator station south of the city blew up Tuesday after a fire of undetermined origin broke out.

Householders in various parts of the city were complaining that although their neighbors had gas, they didn't. C. Nick Sprong, general manager of the city-owned public utility, explained that emergency workers restoring individual gas supplies found nobody at home to let them in.

The Red Cross "disaster" tag placed on the explosion and its effects wasn't justifitd, it appeared last night. Only four persons—a mother and her three children—showed up at the emergency dormitory set up for 200 persons at the O'Reilly veterans hospital gymnasium. They ate a hot meal, the children played awhile, then the family went back home at 8 o'clock.

Granteed Liquor License

Lovell Farris and Henry Logan were granted a license to sell liquor by the drink at "The Friendly Tavern", 117 West Main street.

Parks Are Clean Of Branches, Brush

The city completed removing all branches and brush Wednesday evening which fell in Liberty, Hubbard and Washington parks, as a result of the recent trimming of 700 trees.

Approximately 350 truck loads of brush and timbers were hauled from the parks and burned, since the city started on the project a week ago. Workers are now in the process of raking the park grounds.

Popular Girl Soprano to Appear Here

Guest Artist With Symphony Orchestra On Monday Night

Miss Lillian Murphy, soprano, who will appear with the Sedalia Symphony orchestra in concert in the Smith-Cotton high school auditorium Monday night has risen to tremendous success the past few years. She was born in Kansas City, Kas., October 3, 1929 and began her study of voice at the age of eleven.

Miss Lillian Murphy

She became a staff artist of WDAF after she had made appearances with the Kansas City civic orchestra and band at the Missouri State Fair (1946-1947) and the American Royal. At NBC station WDAF she made regular weekly air shows while still a senior in Wyandotte high school in Kansas City, Kas.

During her freshman year at the University of Kansas, talent scouts of NBC's 'Harvest of Stars' heard Miss Murphy and asked her to appear with James Melton when that program originated from Kansas City March 7, 1948. After that engagement Miss Murphy signed a contract to appear

Yield To Pleas In 'Mercy' Death

ALLETOWN, Pa., March 9—(AP)—Harold Mohr, 36-year-old unemployed tannery worker, said today he finally yielded to the persistent pleading of his hopelessly blind, cancer-stricken brother and shot him to death.

District Attorney Kenneth H. Koch, after listening to what he called Harold's "full, frank and honest description" of the death of 55-year-old Walter Mohr, told reporters:

"This death is a mercy killing on the basis of the defendant's statement. There is nothing to indicate to the contrary on the basis of facts as we now know them."

Harold Mohr was held without bail on a murder charge.

State Policeman Donald C. Wentzel signed the formal complaint after another Mohr brother, Ralph, who is police chief in Coplay, withdrew from the case. Koch said that Ralph Mohr, who several weeks ago had resigned his police post, is cooperating in the investigation.

Sitting in a Lehigh county prison cell, Harold Mohr told the district attorney:

"My brother asked me to shoot him. He often asked me to. I finally decided to do it just last night after dinner."

Koch said Harold "felt satisfied" at what he had done. And the defendant told the district attorney Walter had known what was happening, had "heard the click of the gun" as the fatal shell was loaded into the chamber.

"Are your ready?" Koch quoted the defendant as asking his brother.

The reply, Harold said, was "go ahead." Then he fired the gun.

Dr. George S. Boyer, Lehigh county coroner, said Walter had been hopelessly blind for 15 years, and had suffered from cancer for the past six years.

The coroner said cancer had wasted away Walter's face.

"Only the man's lips remained," the coroner said.

Candidates Are Proposed For Council Members

Party harmony apparently prevailed in the four ward caucus meetings of the Democrats Thursday night, at which time candidates for council were chosen to be ratified at the convention to be held Saturday night at the City Hall along with the nominations of candidates for the various city offices. In each of the caucus meetings leading Democrats expended their thoughts enthusiastically over party harmony and praising the present City Administration.

Proposed for Aldermen

The candidates nominated for aldermen by the four wards to be ratified are as follows: Harry Moore, 623 North Prospect avenue for the First Ward; Elmer C. Sumners, 206 East Boonville in the Second Ward; Earl Lashley, 639 East Eleventh street, in the Third Ward; and Jim Reed, 316 West Eleventh street in the Fourth Ward.

Talk From Mayor

Mayor Julian H. Bagby, who is not a candidate for the office, gave a talk before the First Ward caucus in which he recalled back in 1935 when he was first elected to the office of Mayor. He also pointed out conditions when he took office the first time and also when he was elected in 1946 following a Republican Administration.

The mayor called attention to the city report as mailed to all taxpayers known as "Time" which gives a most concise coverage of the city's financial condition. He expressed genuine satisfaction as to its informative contents.

The results of the four caucus meetings were as follows:—

First Ward Democrats

The First Ward caucus was opened by Emmett Sullivan who served as chairman of the meeting. Mrs. Ike Warren was chosen as the secretary.

Harry Moore, 623 North Prospect avenue, was nominated by S. J. Timborious as the ward candidate for City Council. He seeks the office of Virgil Corson, Democrat, which expires this year. Moore is the Financial Secretary of the Carpenter's Union, Local No. 1792.

The caucus went on record instructing its delegation to vote as a unit for Mrs. Lucy E. Rabourn, widow of the late Rolla Rabourn, 116½ East Third street, for the nomination of city treasurer.

Committeemen and women: First Precinct, S. J. Timborious and Mrs. R. F. "Dick" Rohn; Second Precinct, William Burton and Mrs. Ike Warren; Third Precinct, Mrs. Ada Coolidge and Jesse Miller.

Delegates chosen by a committee and ratified by the caucus were: Frank Monroe, James McNeil, Fred A. Kueck, Jr., Mrs. Johnny Craig, Jack Allgaier, S. J. Timborious, Mrs. Ike Warren, Gordon Reiniger, William Whitington, Mrs. A. F. "Dick" Rohn, Emmet

Bandits Loot Bank Of $63,933

NEW YORK, March 9—(AP)—A band of five robbers, working as though they were following a movie script, today stole $63,933 in small bills from a Queens Branch bank.

Leaving two of the band outside as lookouts, three of the robbers took complete charge of the Sunnyside branch of the Manufacturers Trust Co., before it opened in the morning.

The 17 members of the bank's staff were permitted to enter as they reported for duty. Each was made to take his regualr post and appear to be working.

The switchboard operator was told to "answer right" because "17 lives are at stake."

Even a curious postman, who stopped because he thought the employes "looked like they were posing for pictures," was forced to occupy a chair.

After all were assembled, the robbers made two bank employes open the vault. They went directly to the mental containers in which the currency had been placed, and dumped it in a bag.

The robbers ignored stocks of silver. They drove the bank staff and the postman into the basement, and fled with their loot without firing a shot.

Within a few hours after the robbery police sent out an alarm for the arrest of William Sutton, 50. William P. O'Brien, police commissioner, said he had been identified from pictures by 11 of the bank staff as the leader of the robber gang.

O'Brien said Sutton had a long police record and "must be regarded as a man who is always ready to shoot to kill."

O'Brien said Sutton escaped two years ago from the eastern state penitentiary in Pennsylvania and has been sought since. Police said he also is wanted for questioning in connection with the $1,500,000 Brink's holdup in Boston recently.

Vote To Keep Controls To June 30

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—The Senate voted 44 to 28 today to keep rent controls going until June 30.

What happens after that will be decided later.

Today's action rejected an effort to choke the control agency to death by refusing it more operating funds.

But the outcome was a compromise giving no clear indication what the Senate will do about another year of controls which President Truman has urged.

Today's vote, subject to House action, would do this:

1. Give the agency $1,400,000 to maintain its regulations until June 30. Several Senators contend it wouldn't be enough; that more will be asked.

2. Give it $2,600,000 to use solely for paying off some of its 4,100 employes by that date.

YoungSedalian To Mayo Clinic

St. Joseph Doctor In Case History Of Unusual Malady

Gerald Harrell, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Harrell, 911 East Ninth street, who has been afflicted with a strange disease, known as myasthenia gravis, since last spring, has an appointment at the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., Monday morning. He and his parents will leave for Minnesota Saturday.

The trip is made possible through donations from friends and civic clubs.

Compiling Case History

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 9—(AP)—A 75-year-old physician stricken by a rare and unusual fatal disease, is devoting the rest of his life to compiling a case history of his ailment in hopes it will help others.

Dr. Edward F. Higdon, a veteran of 51 years of medical practice, is suffering from myasthenia gravis. The malady attacks the voluntary muscles of the eyes, face, lips, tongue, throat and neck. In later stages it spreads to the respiratory system and finally the muscles of the heart, when the patient dies of exhaustion.

During his years of practice the former Richmond, Mo. physician, never encountered the disease from which he now suffers. The diagnoses, made last fall at the Mayo clinic, surprised him, but he immediately set out to learn all he could about the malady. He first noticed indications of the illness three years ago.

Notes Every Symptom

He is writing the case history for the benefit of doctors seeking the cause, better treatment and a possible cure. A stenographer takes his notes and types them. Thus every symptom is noted, no matter how small.

"I've got to get busy and find out more about this disease," he said today, "or I'm not going to be around very long."

When the disease is active the muscles become weakened with only slight use and refuse to perform their functions. The entire face relaxes, eyes shut. Cheeks and jowls sag, the palate crops, and the tongue thickens, making chewing and swallowing impossible.

When a drug is administered or the disease is in remission, the patient looks and acts normally.

At the present time, Dr. Hugdon's case is partially in remission. Only a slight thickness of the tongue and inability to pronounce certain words reveal the presence of the disease.

Dr. Higdon, who now makes his home here, began his practice in Indian territory, now Oklahoma and some years later served as a doctor at State Hospital No. 2 here. For 16 years he served a neuro-psychiatrist for the Veterans Administration hospitals in Virginia and at Wadsworth, Kas. In World War I he served with the ambulance corps of the 31st (Dixie) division.

Walton was taken back to Clinton late Wednesday afternoon by Henry county Sheriff Robert Ebertong.

Causus Row Over Charges

McMahon Makes Denouncement On McCarthy

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—A crackling two-hour row broke out in the Senate caucus room today when Senator McCarthy (R-Wisc) accused his Democratic colleagues of acting as a "tool of the state department" in their probe of his disloyalty charges.

Senator McMahon (D-Conn) angrily charged McCarthy with making an "irresponsible speech," and he told the Wisconsin senator:

"The imputation is something that I repudiate and denounce. When you start making that kind of a charge about me, you had better reflect on it more than once."

The flareup, witnessed by more than 200 spectators, came as McCarthy launched into the second day of his allegation that scores of Communists are or have been employes of the state department.

The public hearings are being conducted by a Democrat-controlled subcommittee of the senate foreign relations committee.

Two hours of heated wrangling developed frayed tempers among the lawmakers but produced no further "case histories" to substantiate McCarthy's charges.

At the session's end, McCarthy had only completed "case No. 1"—his assertion that Miss Dorothy Kenyon, 62-year-old former state department employe, was "affiliated" with at least 28 Communist-front organizations.

Miss Kenyon To Appear

Before recessing the hearing, Chairman Tydings (D-Md) read a telegram from Miss Kenyon, which said:

"I will welcome an opportunity to appear before the committee at its earliest convenience to attack Senator McCarthy's outrageous and maliciously false charges against me."

Tydings has already indicated that all persons named by McCarthy will be given a chance to offer counted testimony.

Late today, after a closed-door meeting of the subcommittee, chairman Tydings announced:

1. That McCarthy has offered to wind up his testimony in four or five hours and will be given a chance to do so next Monday.

2. That Miss Kenyon will be asked to testify Tuesday—and McCarthy will not be permitted to cross-examine her.

3. That the state department's roving Ambassador Phillip C. Jessup will be given a chance to testify late Tuesday or Wednesday if he is available. McCarthy has charged that Jessup, now reported in the Far East, has shown "an unusual affinity for Communist causes" and once sponsored an alleged Communist-front organization.

McCarthy's statement that the subcommittee had become a "tool" seeking to shield the state department stung the Democratic members to angry recriminations.

McMahon and his colleagues demanded that McCarthy produce the files on which he has based his charges. At one point, Chairman Tydings treatened to subpoena McCarthy's records unless the Wisconsin senator produced them voluntarily.

Car Takes Off And Runs Into Building

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 9—(AP)—J. L. Smith, a used car salesman, got in a car today to keep warm.

He started the engine, pressed his foot to the accelerator and the machine took off.

Before it came to a stop at a brick building, the car had crossed several lots, torn down shrubs, knocked down porch posts and some house steps, gone over a three-foot embankment and run over a few curbs.

Smith, who was not behind the wheel when the car started its run, was treated for lacerations and bruises.

Allison declared that nationally organized crime calls for national suppression efforts, adding:

He told a news conference he is considering a visit to the regional Democratic meeting at Chicago during his trip. The Chicago meeting is to be held May 15.

Laborites In Britain Win In First Test

Overall Majority In Commons Is Cut To Six Votes

LONDON, March 9. — (AP) — Britain's Socialist Labor government won its first formal test of strength in the House of Commons tonight by 14 votes. The result put off, for the time being at least, a new parliamentary election.

By a count of 310 to 296, the Laborites of Prime Minister Attlee beat down a Conservative motion of censure on state ownership of the iron and steel industry.

Laborites were jubilant over their victory, in view of their shaky majority in the House of Commons. But even while the house was voting, the Laborite overall majority was cut to six seats when a conservative candidate won a delayed parliamentary election in Manchester.

This development added to the pressure on government leaders, who are aware that they are still not out of the woods.

Second Vote Ahead

On Monday they face a second vote which may prove even tougher. This is on a conservative motion deploring the Labor Party's record on housing. The government may have trouble keeping its supporters in line on this issue.

Tonight's vote came after Attlee delivered a fighting speech in the House of Commons in which he declared that the only thing the Feb. 23 national election decided was "that the country did not want" Winston Churchill's Conservatives in power.

If the govermnent had lost tonight's vote it would have had to resign after it squeaked back to control in the recent election with 315 commons seats out of 625.

Slice Labor Majority

MANCHESTER, March 9—(AP)—A conservative candidate won a delayed parliamentary election here today, slicing the labor government's slim majority in the House of Commons to six.

Conservative Florence Horsbrough defeated labor candidate Rowland W. Casasola by 8,578. She polled 25,347 votes to 16,769 for the laborite. The liberal candidate, Eric P. Atkin, ran a poor third, receiving 2,607 votes.

The election, in the moss side constituency, was delayed for 15 days after the general election because of the death of the first nominated Conservative candidate, Edward L. Fleming, Feb. 17. This was only six days before the rest of the country voted.

Attribute Fire To Oil Heater

ALBUQUERQUE, March 9—(AP)—What caused fire to spurt through a secret weapons base prison and kill 14 inmates—all in a matter of minutes?

Part of the answer appeared to hinge late today on whether two other prisoners, the only survivors, live or die. And both were reported in precarious condition.

The flames, believed to have originated from an oil heater, swept the frame guardhouse last night at Sandia base. The installation, at Albuquerque's east outskirts, assembles atomic bombs. Most of its activities are shrouded in secrecy.

Injured were Pvt. Harry C. Handley, 24, of Hamilton, Ohio, whose condition was pronounced still critical late in the day; and Pfc. Robert C. Darsnek, 20, of Minneapolis, said to be in serious state. Both were reported delirious and suffering from lung complications. Officials said a third of Darsnek's body was covered by light burns.

Col. Kenner F. Hertford, acting base commander, said a board of inquiry was seeking expert counsel from outsiders. There was no indication when its probe might be completed.

Make Call For "Total Diplomacy"

Acheson Asks All Join To Defeat Russia's Plans On Domination

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson called on American men and women tonight to join with their government in a concerted, everybody-in tussle to defeat Russia's plans for "world domination.

He called it "total diplomacy." The totality he had in mind appeared to be hardly less comprehensive than total war . . . without the dive bombers and trench mortars.

Acheson said the free world is engaged in a struggle fully as decisive for mankind as the successful fight against Nazism. But—, he said:

"We clearly are not focusing our total resources on the winning of that struggle."

He said that total diplomacy means that all branches of the U. S. government must work together—he included congress along with the executive departments—and that other institutions of American life such as business, agriculture, labor, press and radio "must agree voluntarily" to direct their efforts to the single purpose of the struggle.

Secret Speech Released

Acheson's views were set forth in a heretofore secret speech released by the state department with his approval in an effort to enlarge and clarify the kind of foreign policy line which he is presently following. This policy holds that a Truman-Stalin talk, for example, would not solve any cold war issues at this time and that those issues can only be solved after expanding Russian power has been matched and cancelled by American and allied western power is critical areas of the world.

Acheson's speech, making clear this definition of his policy, was delivered at a meeting of the advertising council, a private organization of leaders in the field of advertising who frequently help the government on public causes.

Acheson ruled out the idea of a preventive war to solve the Russian problem. He said: "A 'showdown' in the brutal and realistic sense of resort to a military decision is not a possible policy for a Democracy. The Kremlin knows that."

Discarding the silken syntax of diplomacy, Acheson spoke out in the simple, direct words of a man talking informally.

"We are struggling against an adversary that is deadly serious," he told the advertising men. "We are in a situation where we are playing for keeps. Moreover, we are in a situation where we could lose without ever firing a shot.

"It used to be said that the process of imperialism was, first to send out missionaries, then traitors and then colonial governors. But that is kid stuff compared to the methods that we are up against."

Use of Threat and Despair

He told how the communists took over in China, making use of "force, threats, infiltration, planned chaos, despair and confusion, and the enslavement of the people they dominate by shrewd use of informers."

He said that to meet the Soviet threat this country must have a foreign policy with "two interrelated branches."

The first point in this policy, he said, is to "meet wherever possible all thrusts of the Soviet Union." he cited American aid to Greece and Turkey as an example.

The second part of the policy "must be to create those economic, political, social and psychological conditions that strengthen and creates confidence in the Democratic way of life." The European recovery program and American help to the Indonesian independence movement are examples of this, the Secretary said.

But this isn't enough, he said. Other countries must be able to sell their products to buy the things they need to feed, clothe, and employ their people—and this means a greater volume of American imports from abroad. Acheson said:

"We must take that kind of action even though it requires adjustments here at home—and it will require some adjustments."

Acheson said "No good would come from our taking the initiative

Wire Over Lines Cuts Off Power

Electric service was knocked out in the outlying portions of Sedalia early Friday night when some young boy threw a roll of baling wire into 12 thousand volt high tension lines just east of the Missouri Public Service company's power station on east Broadway.

According to Clinton Black, district electrical engineer, the service to the outer belt of Sedalia was out for a period of about forty minutes on one circuit and about an hour and a half on another.

Black said they had received word that a boy who probably lived in the neighborhood of the power plant had tossed a roll of baling wire onto the lines and caused a short in the 12-thousand volt lines.

Black said no damage could be ascertained Friday night.

Leland Coontz, who lives about six miles south of Sedalia on route 1 called the Democrat-Capital offices and reported seeing a bursting flash "somewhere there in town." Gives Address To Sedalia Underwriters

Reginald Snyder Gives Insurance Men Pointers

Reginald Snyder, district manager of American Hospital and Life Insurance company and civic leader of St. Louis, gave a worthwhile talk on "Your Market and Your Prospects" before members of the Sedalia Association of Life Underwriters, at their regular noon-luncheon meeting, Saturday in the Palm Room of the Bothwell hotel.

His address was based on the records of 500 insurance salesmen. Speaking on prospecting sources, he related that 37 per cent of cases sold by the 500 men were to friends, relatives and people known. And another 20 per cent of cases sold were as a result of referred leads furnished by friends, relatives and people known, and leads furnished by these people. The speaker said it was important to know and enjoy people, and one had to be an introvert to be able to get along in the insurance business.

Recourse to Figures

Relating figures on the 500 men concerning their prospecting weakness, he asserted that 33 per cent of the men sold no other cases to persons in the same profession. He said it was very important to be able to talk a man's language, and in this respect, he said the greatest salesman that lived was Jesus Christ, because he always talked the language the person he talked with was accustomed to. Continuing with figures, he related that 71 percent of the salesmen sold no other cases in the same firm, where perhaps one policy was sold, and the salesman never attempted to inquire about other persons working in the same firm. Seventy-six per cent of these salesmen never sold any other policies to relatives of clients already sold. He illustrated his idea of canvassing by visiting with couriosity, and getting acquainted with other people. And another 42 per cent of the salesmen never sold any further cases by failing to secure leads.

Speaking on prospecting downward, Mr. Snyder said 69 per cent of the cases sold, the agent was older than the client. He told the young insurance men there was not much they could do about that, as it seemed people who buy insurance like to obtain it from persons older than them. He went on to say that 78 per cent of cases sold, the agent was better educated than the client, and 82 per cent of the cases sold, the agent had better income than the client.

Stop to Wastage

So it all boils down to one thing, the speaker related; the agent has to stop day dreaming and come down to earth. As the figures show, the salesman has to either wait and get order or get better educated. He said the insurance business has squandered more men than probably any other business in the entire world, and what the life insurance business has got to do as a whole, is to stop wasteage.

He explained that the bricks thrown to the insurance companies as a whole by the Federal government have turned into boquets, and explained those bricks, the Social Security Act passed in 1937, and the declaration of refunding G. I. dividend checks.

Comparing the insurance business to 50 years ago, he said the average family income in 1900 was $1,000 compared to the 1949 figures of $6,000. He said in 1900, 76 boys out of a hundred lived to age 20, but in 1949, 94 boys out of a 100 lived to see the age of 20. The need for retirement has widened too—In 1900, 58 out of 100 men at age of 35 lived to be 65 years old, in 1949, 68 out of 100 men at the age of 35 lived to reach the 65 year old bracket.

Abe Silverman, president, presided over the business meeting and introduced the guest speaker and Mrs. Snyder, as well as another guest, Mrs. Harry Harnsberger, associated with Mr. Snyder's company in Sedalia.

Other members present were: George Yeaman, Edgar Brown, Floyd Stockton, Victor Eisenstein, Mrs. Lily Thomas, Harold Silverstein, Tom Yount, Floyd Swansdon, Margaret Garansson, Dick Skarr, Marvin Elsea, Jack Crowford, A. H. Wilks, and L. J. Brown.

Closer Check On Overtime Parkers

Overtime parkers will have to think up a new story to keep from paying the desk sergeant at the police station a dollar, because the old story of being at the office of a doctor or dentist has gotten cold.

Police have been doing some checking on overtime parkers, especially those they think are stretching the truth, by calling up the doctor or dentist to ascertain if the overtime parker was in the office.

If the sergeant finds out he has been tricked, the overtime parker will be escorted before the "sarg." to explain the mis-statement. Embarrassing isn't it?

Making Plans For Boys to Go To Jamboree

Cline Cain, is chairman of the selection committee.

DeFoe said that Scouts making the trip must be 12 years of age or more. Any other boys in scouting who are interested should report to their respective scoutmasters according to Mr. DeFoe.

"If any other civic clubs should offer to sponsor a Scout it would be possible for him to attend the Jamboree and the two city tours," said Mr. DeFoe.

Work Starts On Improvement City Schools

Project To Be Completed Within One Year's Time

In connection with the $733,725.82 school improvement program for public schools in Sedalia, a $383,799.07 contract for the construction of two new wings, which will be three stories at Smith-Cotton, and the building of three class rooms and auditorium and gymnasium at Horace Mann was started last week by the Cramer and Schrader Contractors of Sedalia.

The contractors said the two wings at Smith-Cotton will be constructed on the south-side of the high school, and that the new structure would connect on to the school building. A music and dramatic art room, dimensions of approximately 79 feet by 31 feet will be erected on the first floor, along with the construction of a work shop and boys' and girls' lockers and showers.

Two Libraries

On the second floor of the two wings will be constructed two libraries and studies. The contractors said the third floor will consist of seven new class rooms. Most of this work will be constructed with steel, concrete and brick, the brick work being used to tie in with the present exterior of the high school, the contractors pointed out.

The contractors said at Horace Mann three class rooms would be built, two of them being erected on the east side of the building, and the other connected to the west side of the school. An auditorium and gymnasium, approximately 65-feet by 132-feet in size will also be constructed at the school by the contractors.

They said 14 men were now being used on the two projects to start with, but when work got into "full swing," a maximum of 60 men or more would be hired to complete the project, which is to be finished in a year's time.

More Lights At Athletic Field

It is the plan of the City Park Board to improve the lighting system at the Liberty Park athletic field by adding 44 new flood lights to the present ones, making a total of 100 flood lights, with each light having a 1,500 watt bulb. Plans also call for the addition of two 70-foot poles to replace the present 35-foot poles. This improvement will keep the glare out of a baseball player's eyes.

Some of the fixtures at Liberty Park will be salvaged and will be utilized in supplying a suitable lighting system for night softball playing at the municipal park, located at Fifteenth street and Center avenue. At this park there will be 14 flood lights with 1500 watt bulbs, situated on six 50-foot poles.

The newest type bulbs and reflectors have been worked out according to plans and specifications of an electrical engineer, who recently conferred with a General Electric engineer.

Plans will be turned over to local electrical contractors in the near future, so bids for this work can be opened at the next meeting of the park board.

Young Escapee From Clinton Jail Caught

Apprehended by Patrol at His Home In Georgetown

Oliver "Red" Perry Walton, 19, one of four who escaped from the Henry county jail, late Tuesday night, was apprehended at his home in Georgetown about 12:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Three others, Alvin Elton Wheeler, 26, William Marion Sears, Jr., 20, and Melvin Sears, 16, who left at the same time, are still at liberty, according to the last report of the State Highway Patrol.

Walton was taken into custody by State Highway Patrol Trooper Wayne Allman, after receiving a call through the Sedalia Police that Walton was at his home. The police received a call that it was believed Walton was at his home, and police in turn notified the highway patrol by radio and Allman was notified and hardly fifteen minutes passed when he was in custody.

According to a story given by the Patrol, Walton said he had started to go with the other three, but changed his mind and went back into the jail through the hole through which they had escaped. After returning, he reported, other prisoners began chiding him and calling him "yellow." He said he decided to show them he wasn't "yellow" and wasn't going to let them kid him about it, so he just left.

Walton reported he did not continue with the other three, but hitch-hiked a ride to Windsor Junction of Highways 65 and 52 with a salesman, after he had walked about three miles out of Clinton. He caught another ride into Sedalia, leaving the car at Junctions of Highway 50 and 65 (Limit avenue). He then reported he walked to the State Fair boulevard and out to Georgetown.

The youth was brought to Sedalia to the county jail, where he was held for Sheriff Robert Eberting, of Clinton, who returned him to Clinton.

Allman said this morning the 1941 International truck stolen by the other three at Clinton following their escape had been found in Springfield by the police of that city.

Walton is being held in the Henry county jail on a charge of forgery; Wheeler was also held on a forgery charge; the elder Sears was charged with grand larceny and the younger Sears was held as a juvenile delinquent.

Dr. Sander Innocent In Murder Case

Declares Intention To Renew Practice "In Few Weeks"

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 9—(AP)—Dr. Hermann N. Sander was found innocent in 71 minutes today of charges he murdered a hopeless cancer patient in an "act of mercy" to end her suffering.

A 12-man jury freed the mild-mannered country doctor who told newsmen he hopes to resume his practice "within a few weeks."

Confident through the 14-day trial that drew world-wide attention, Dr. Sander smiled happily and kissed his loyal wife who has been by his side from the day the case broke.

"It's wonderful to have it over with," said the 41-year-old doctor.

And even County Solicitor William H. Craig, who helped prosecute Sander, grinned.

Attorney General William L. Phinney, 40, the chief prosecutor and long-time friend of Dr. Sander, has demanded justice on the grounds Dr. Sander had "taken the law into his own hands" when he injected air into Mrs. Abbie Borroto, 59, Manchester housewife.

Dr. Sander had maintained throughout that the 59-year-old woman—a close family friend as well as patient—was already dead before he made the injections after "something snapped" in his mind.

Dr. Sander's acquittal does not necessarily mean the end of his troubles.

Medical Body Consider Case

The House of Delegates of the New Hampshire Medical Society is expected to hold an emergency meeting within 24 hours to consider the historic case. Dr. John P. Bowler, president of the state society, said expulsion of a doctor was within the power of the society.

Dr. John S. Wheeler, state health officer and clerk of the State Board of Registration in Medicine, explained that the Medical Society was "a professional society" and declared "it has no legal power."

Dr. Wheeler said members of his own board which has power to revoke a doctor's license to practice would meet within a few days to decide "whether any action should be taken (against Sander)."

On the sidelines during the trial was the issue of euthanasia—legalized mercy killing under certain circumstances.

Prosecutor Phinney brought the issue up twice in cross-examin- of defense medical witnesses—but Wyman had told the jury of nine Catholics and three protestants "that is not the defense in this case."

No Intention to Kill

And Dr. Sander himself insisted he had "no intention" of killing Mrs. Borroto and did not go along with a theory a suffering patient might be better off dead.

Several prospective venioremen were excused when the jury was being chosen, after they voiced strong views as Catholics against so-called "mercy killings."

Belongings In Small Home Are Burned

Mrs. Sylvia Estill Has Loss Late Thursday

Fire believed to have started from a trash fire, practically destroyed all of the belongings of Mrs. Sylvia Estill and her seven small chilrden, 1410½ East Seventh street, about 4:04 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The building a converted shed of about 10 by 15 was damaged to the extent of $150 while Mrs. Estill reported her losses at more than $600 and only partly covered by insurance. The building is owned by Dewey Channey, 1410 East Seventh street.

Mrs. Estill and six of her children live in the small building, Mrs. Estill was at her work at the J. A. Lamy Manufacturing Co., and only her nine-year-old daughter Betty was at home, when the flaze started. The little girl reported she was sitting in the house when she suddenly saw fire at her back.

Explosion of Oil Drum

"I ran out of the house and was standing in front when I heard an explosion," she reported.

The explosion which the girl referred to was a 50 gallon oil drum which was partly filled with coal oil. The barrel was on a stand at the rear of the building and one end was blown out. The end of the barrel was blown nearly fifty feet into the air and went a distance estimated at nearly 300 feet to the south. The metal went sailing over the "Bud" Howell Grocery-Filling station and landed on the side walk on the south side of Broadway.

Disc Whizzed Through Air

J. S. Patterson, 1420 East Broadway, was standing on his front porch when he heard the explosion and saw the flying disc sailing through the air. It came to earth on the walk next door to his home to the west. There were no pedestrians on the walk at the time, Mr. Patterson said.

Mrs. Estill has been residing in the small building with her children for the past two years, when she was unable to find any other place to live. One child her daughter Shirley, 8, stays with Mr. and Mrs. Chaney, and the other six, Carl Dean, 11, Betty 9, Bobbie 10, Donnie 7, Vonita 6, and Lyndia Kay 4 live with their mother.

Several neighbors offered to take the children until Mrs. Estill is able to find other quarters or the shed-residence is made liveable again.

A shed of F. C. Winebrenner, 1400 East Seventh, had damages of about $75.

Both fire companies answered the alarm.

Punishment a Shock

The Russian's attorney, Abraham L. Pomerantz, said the government's recommendation "came as a shock, or I should say as a surprise, to me."

Before Gubitchev was sentenced he reitered a claim of diplomatic immunity and declared the case was "artificially manufactured" against him.

In sentencing the slight, dark-haired former employe of the Justice Department, the judge said to Miss Coplon:

"You have been disloyal to the country which has nourished you, helped you acquire an education and placed in you high trust and confidence."

Miss Coplon had been accused of conspiring to pass F.B.I. secrets to Russia through Gubitchev. His attorneys had claimed it was an affair of the heart and not of espionage.

Before imposing sentence, Judge Ryan asked Miss Coplon if she had any statement and she replied in a low voice:

"None at this time."

Woman deputies held Miss Coplon by either arm as the judge passed sentence.

The United States is willing to discuss and in fact has discussed all important outsanding issues with Russia many times, he said. But, he declared:

"It is clear that the Russians do not want to settle those issues as long as they feel there is any possibility they can exploit them for their own objectives of world domination."

Claims He's Notorious Jesse James

J. Frank Dalton Of Union, Aged 102, Goe to Court to Have Name Changed

By George Sitterly

UNION, Mo., March 10—(AP)—The curtains of oblivion get pretty thick and dusty in 68 years.

But J. Frank Dalton, an old codger of 102, plans to yank them aside here today and emerge as the original Jesse James, the rip-roaring Missouri outlaw of the last century.

Dalton carried his claim of notoriety to Franklin county circuit court. He was packed in on a stretcher because of a broken hip.

He wants the court to change his name to Jesse Woodson James That was his real name in the heyday of the James gang, he declares.

The hearing, delayed for completion of a divorce case, started before a crowded courtroom at 9:50 a. m. (CST).

One of Dalton's witnesses, 109-year-old James Barr Davis, who says he was a member of the James gang, was in a nasty mood, too.

Entering the courthouse, he told a nurse accompanying him:

"I ain't gonna do it. I don't give a damn."

Presiding at the hearing was Judge Ransom Albert Breuer, 80.

The bristling Davis was the first witness. Thumping hard on the witness stand with his cane, Davis declared he saw Jesse James at least five different times after the outlaw was supposed to have been shot to death in 1882.

Saw Jesse in 1886

Davis said he saw Jesse in Brownwood, Tex., in 1886 and again in the line of settlers preparing to make the Oklahoma run in 1889.

The witness, who testified he took an oath as a member of the James gang but didn't participate in any illegal activities, grew quarrelsome under cross examination by Attorney Edgar M. Eagan of Jefferson City. Eagan was hired by Jesse's son, Jesse E. James, who doesn't want any one fooling around with his family name.

"I'm getting too old to be messed with," Davis said. "I've got one foot in the grave an danother on the brink."

"Fool questions," he muttered.

"If I'd a did that in the kind of country I lived in then, I wouldn't be alive today."

Judge Breuer interrupted and told the aged man to "take it easy."

Refused to Tell

Davis flatly refused to tell the court the location of the gang's hideout.

The crowd became amused at Davis' sharp answers, and Judge Breuer twice rapped for order. The judge himself smiled a couple of times during the exchange between Davis and the lawyer.

Among spectators in the courtroom, which seats about 150, were several grade school students and teachers from nearby Moselle, Mo. The school closed for the day and nearly everyone came over.

Conspicuous in the crowd because of his bright green plaid topcoat was Robert E. Lee, 76, who described himself as Buffalo Bill's bodyguard. He lives at Baton Rouge, La.

Another Case in Sight

One oldtimer discussing the exploits of the James gang announced before the hearing started:

Another witness was John Tramble of Guthrie, Okla., a Negro who said he was the cook for the James gang. Tramble told the court he believes he is 111 years old, but doesn't know for sure.

Department Store Sales Down Some

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—(AP)—Department store sales in the eighth federal reserve district last week were off six per cent from the same period in 1949.

In contrast with the district decline, sales were up five per cent at Little Rock, Ark., and three per cent at Memphis, Tenn. Sales promotions in the two cities were largely responsible for the gains, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported.

Sales for the week were off nine per cent in St. Louis, 11 per cent at Louisville, Ky., and an average of two per cent in other cities of the district.

Bluejackets New Uniform Is Approved

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—It's to be zippers, loose cuffs, belts and new pockets for the navy's bluejackets.

The new look in the blue going ashore uniform of navy enlisted men was okayed today by Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations.

He made his decision after sailors modeled the old uniform and the new in his office. The new togs are to be available July 1, 1952.

1. A full cuff in place of a tight fitting button cuff.

2. A zipper pants front in place of the 13-button broad front now in use.

3. Slash and hip pockets instead of the present two small pants pocket.

4. The pants are held up by a belt instead of by a coguet type lace in the back.

The new uniform was approved by a navy board before Sherman took office. However, it has been the subject of some controversy largely involving the material to be used. Navy officers who attended the showing in Sherman's office said that melton cloth was selected.

Baby Born Each Day For Three Days

Parents Have Seven Other Children, All Are Living

By Keith Fuller

JONESVILLE, La., March 10—(AP)—A baby a day for three consecutive days — that's the way the 36-year-old wife of a fisherman gave birth to triplets.

Watching the newcomers gurgle milk from their bottles today, Dr. N. G. Nasif, who delivered the babies over the three-day period said, "I've never heard or read of such a case before."

The tired worn-looking mother, Mrs. Lester Hardie, propped herself up on an elbow and smiled at her new son and two daughters.

"They are the last," she said. "Ten children are enough." She has seven other children, all living.

Entire Town Interested

The triplets' birth was an ordeal for the entire town. First of all Hardie just narrowly beat the stork as he plied full throttle to his motorboat bringing Mrs. Hardie to Dr. Nasif's clinic from their houseboat home anchored several miles up the swollen Ouachita river.

Thirty minutes after their arrival at the clinic, 5-pound Jodie Lee, the boy, was born. This was 8 a. m. (CST) March 7.

At 9 a. m. the next day 6-pound Julia Fae arrived.

And about 1 a. m. yesterday 7-pound Judy Mae was born.

"This is going to crowd us up some," said the father thinking of his tiny 3-room houseboat — the residence of the Hardie family which now numbers 12 in all.

Needs a Lawyer

Asked for the names and ages of his seven other children, Hardie gazed at the ceiling in thought.

"There is Edna Lucille, she's —mama how old is Edna; no, you'd better get that from her. I've been so busy trying to make a living for them I haven't kept up. It would take a lawyer to keep them straight."

Mrs. Hardie came to his rescue with names and ages in chronological order. They are: Edna Lucille 15, Annis 13, R. L. 11, Myrtle 9, Milburn 7, Lester Paul 4 and Shirley Ann 2.

"I've got to get home and look

Party harmony apparently prevailed in the four ward caucus meetings of the Democrats Thursday night, at which time candidates for council were chosen to be ratified at the convention to be held Saturday night at the City Hall along with the nominations of candidates for the various city offices. Gen. Bradley Is Lectured

LONDON, March 10—(AP)—A London newspaper lectured Gen. Omar Bradley today on the "depressing effect" of a recent speech in which he assessed the military capabilities of the west in a possible war.

The Liberal Star reprinted in an editorial statements made by Bradley and said:

"Apparently indifferent to the depressing effect of his words, Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U.S. chiefs of staff, has been making the blood of Americans curdle again."

"The time has surely come," the editorial added, "when there should be less talk of war with Russia and whether we could win it or not. Even the prospect of sure victory does not make welcome the possibility of atomic war.

"The real defense against Russia and Communism is to make the Western world strong in a social and economic as well as a military sense.

Thought for Today

So let it be in God's own might
We gird us for the coming fight,
And, strong in Him whose cause is ours
In conflict with unholy powers,
We grasp the weapons he has given—

Man Calls on Billy Rose, Brings Stolen Jewels Back

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—Billy Rose, the showman, night club owner and Broadway columnist, is the star of his latest production.

He personally got back part of $25,000 worth of stolen jewels yesterday—and one of the men who took them.

Rose was sitting in his office in the Ziegfeld Theater building, at Sixth avenue and 54th street when Joseph Vitulano introduced himself.

He said he was one of the four men who looted the Rose mansion, January 26 while Billy and his wife, the former Eleanor Holm, were at a Broadway opening.

To prove it, Vitulano pulled out part of the swag and spread it over an office table top.

It was a glittering display of pearls, diamonds, gold, silver, platinum and precious stones—most of it made for Mrs. Rose.

Vitulano had little to say beyond admitting he was the driver for the gang.

As soon as Vitulano told his tale, Rose telephoned his own lawyer, Arthur Garfield Hays, who took Vitulano to a police station for a formal surrender.

Then Rose asked Hays to take over Vitulano's defense — with Rose to foot the bill.

"I want to give Vitulano a fair shake," Rose explained.

Two of the other three men in the robbery have already been arrested — leaving only Willie (Blackie) Lalamio 22, at liberty.

Three-Year-Old Boy To Try New Drug

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Three-year-old Scotty Hanson, slowly dying from leukemia, arrived in New York by air from Minnesota this morning for emergency treatment with the new drug ACTH.

He came through the help of Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn), who asked New York's Memorial hospital to admit him. Memorial is one of the few hospitals in the world that has experimented with the rare and costly drug in blood diseases.

The little boy with blond hair and blue eyes is the son of a railroad machinist at Two Harbors, Minn. His malady is a form of blood cancer, and last November he was given only six months to live.

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—Defeat of a bill for federal aid to state library systems figured today in a drive to require roll call votes in the House on all money bills.

The library bill, carrying a price tag of $36,400,000, was beaten yesterday by a roll call vote of 164 to 161.

Just 24 hours earlier, a postal employes pay raise bill estimated to cost $163,000,000 passed the House by a thumping standing vote on which the members did not have to be recorded by name.

LONDON, March 10—(AP)—Bulgaria accused the Voice of America and Secretary of State Dean Acheson today of "scandalous lying" about the Michael Shipkov case.

Shipkov, a 39-year-old former translator at the U. S. legation in Sofia, was sentenced Wednesday to 15 years imprisonment on a charge of spying for America.

Last Saturday the state department released a sworn statement by Shipkov that on the occasion of a previous arrest he was tortured for 32 hours to make him agree to become a spy against the legation. Instead, the state department said, he went back to the legation and told all.

Hotel Fire is Fatal to Two

BENTON, Ill., March 10.—(AP)—Fire destroyed the 72-room Hudson hotel on Benton's public square early today, taking a reported toll of two lives.

Fire Chief Marvin Hobbs of Benton identified the victims as Mike Eliff, a nearly blind, elderly ex-coal miner, and George Summers, about 55, a former carnival worker. Both lived in third floor rooms in the rear of the hotel.

Mrs. Amy Groverman, who owned the hotel building, telephoned guests in their rooms, then started to check the rooms personally, only to be trapped by the flames herself.

Another guest tied bedsheets together and slid down the side of the three-story hotel.

All other guests were believed safe.

Mrs. Groverman said she believed there were 20 persons registered.

Police said it was the second mystery bombing this week. A police sergeant was hurt Wednesday when a bomb exploded at the entrance of another police station.

Police officials said they believed a group which favors union of the six northern counties with the Irish republic was connected with the bombings. Northern Ireland is a part of Britain.

Acquitted of Murder, Faces Medical Board

Dr. Sander Will be Given Time to Rest Before Hearing

By Henry Supple

CANDIA, N. H., March 10.—(AP)—Dr. Herman N. Sander, acquitted of murder in the death of a cancer-riddled patient, still faces a hearing before the state board of registration in medicine.

Dr. John S. Wheeler, state health offices and secretary of the board, said last night the board will decide what medical penalty, if any, will be imposed on the 41-year-old country doctor.

The board secretary said he will contact members of the group at once and that Dr. Sander will be allowed a reasonable time to "rest up" before he is called.

CANDIA, N. H., March 10—(AP)—A news photographer was Dr. Hermann N. Sander's first "patient" since his acquittal.

While flashing pictures of Sander and his family today, photographer Peter Carroll of the Associated Press bureau in Boston, suffering from laryngitis, asked the doctor what to do about it.

"You might give up smoking," replied the doctor with a smile.

The house of delegates of the New Hampshire medical society, which generally makes recommendations to the board, plans to meet Sunday afternoon in Concord—the state capital—to discuss the case.

Board Has Authority

Dr. Wheeler pointed out, however, that it is his board that has authority to grant or revoke licenses to practice medicine.

He said the board had requested Dr. Sander to appear before it in January—just after his indictment—but the physician requested postponement until after the trial.

Wheeler's announcement came after court attaches had told newsmen that Dr. Sander was free to resume medical practice immediately. They said that restrictions, which prohibited him from practicing during trial, were lifted with acquittal.

The handsome young doctor and his wife, who sped off to an undisclosed place last night after the jury returned its verdict, planned to return home today to the people who swear by him.

The jury deliberated a little more than an hour before freeing Dr. Sander.

Cheering Crowd

With his pretty, smiling wife on his arm, "Herm," as his intimates call him, pushed his way through a cheering crowd outside the county court in Manchester, 12 miles from here, shortly before

St. Joseph Doctor is Writing Case History of Strange Illness

ST. JOSEPH, March 10—(AP)—A 75-year-old physician stricken by a rare and unusual fatal disease, is devoting the rest of his life to compiling a case history of his ailment in hopes it will help others.

Dr. Edward F. Higdon, a veteran of 51 years of medical practice, is suffering from myasthenia gravis. The malady attacks the voluntary muscles of the eyes, face, lips, tongue, throat and neck. In later stages it spreads to the respiratory system and finally the muscles of the heart, when the patient dies of exhaustion.

During his years of pracuce the former Richmond, Mo. physician, never encountered the disease from which he now suffers. The diagnoses, made last fall at the Mayo clinic, surprised him, but he immediately set out to learn all he could about the malady. He first noticed indications of the illness three years ago.

Notes Every Symptom

He is writing the case history for the benefit of doctors seeking the cause, better treatment and a possible cure. A stenographer takes his notes and types them. Thus every symptom is noted, no matter how small.

"I've got to get busy and find out more about this disease," he said today, "or I'm not going to be around very long."

When the disease is active the muscles become weakened with only slight use and refuse to perform their functions. The entire face relaxes, eyes shut. Cheeks and jowls sag, the palate drops, and the tongue thickens, making chewing and swallowing impossible.

When a drug is administered or the disease is in remission, the patient looks and acts normally.

At the present time, Dr. Hugdon's case is partially in remission. Only a slight thickness of the tongue and inability to pronounce certain words reveal the presence of the disease.

Dr. Higdon, who now makes his home here, began his practice in Indian territory, now Oklahoma and some years later served as a doctor at State Hospital No. 2 here. For 16 years he served a neuro-psychiatrist for the Veterans Administration hospitals in Virginia and at Wadsworth, Kas. In World War I he served with the ambulance corps of the 31st (Dixie) division.

Gerald Harrell, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Harrell, 911 East Ninth street, is suffering from the same disease. With his parents he is leaving Saturday for Rochester, Minn., where he has an appointment at the Mayo clinic Monday morning.

Diplomacy Campaign Is Needed

By John Scali

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—A new cold war battle cry—"total diplomacy"—was raised for Americans today by Secretary of State Acheson. Its meaning: an all-out effort, short of shooting, to curb Russian expansion.

Declaring that the nation must do far more than it is now doing to halt Soviet plans for "world domination," Acheson said:

"We clearly are not focusing our resources in the winning of that struggle."

What's needed, he said, is a single-minded, "voluntary" campaign by all elements of the nation—Congress, the executive departments of the government, and the people. He mentioned particularly such institutions as business, agriculture, the press and the radio.

Acheson sketched this new outline of national support for United States foreign policy three weeks ago, in an informal White House talk before the Advertising Council, a private organization of leaders in the field of advertising.

Talk Kept Secret

Officials said the talk was kept secret, in the expectation that Acheson might use the same ideas in a public address in late February or early March. When this did not materialize it was decided to make a reconstructed version of his speech public.

The text given out last night was not an actual transcript but a version prepared from memory by Francis Russell, State Department director of public affairs. It was approved by Acheson.

In it, he declared that the United States must follow two closely related lines of foreign policy.

The first, he said, is "to meet wherever possible all thrusts of the Soviet Union"—as has been done in Greece and Turkey.

The second policy line, he said, "must be to create those economic, political, social and psychological conditions that strengthen and create confidence in the democratic way of life."

Cited Programs

In this connection, he cited the European Recovery Program and American aid in bringing independence to Indonesia. Then he added:

"One of the things that we must do is to enable other countries to buy with their own products the raw materials that they need to feed and clothe and employ their own people. This means that we must buy their goods and their services to a greater extent than at present."

Some of Acheson's aides have estimated that American imports should be increased by about $3,000,000,000 a year if western Europe is to get along when the Marshall plan ends.

Matter of Judgment

"It is a matter of judgment as to what the level of our trade with the rest of the world should be," Acheson said. "But probably it should be somewhere not very far from present levels.

"We must take that kind of action even though it requires adjustments here at home—and it will require some adjustments. Make no mistake about it, if we want to have strong allies in Europe we have got to work out some kind of pattern of this kind.

"That will mean European goods will compete with American goods and some American industries are likely to suffer. If this should prove to be the case, then means must be found to take care of any resulting adjustments."

Relief Families Must Return Television Sets

MINEOLA, N. Y., March 10.—(AP)—Edwin W. Wallace, Nassau county welfare commissioner, has ordered four families on relief to return television sets. He also cut the relief allotment of a woman who refused to do so.

Wallace told the families:

"I feel, as commissioner, that you are receiving a little bit too much from me. Just about as much as you are paying for your television set."

Home as an Immigrant

PARIS, March 10—(AP)—Garry Davis, who renounced his American citizenship to become "world citizen number 1," today received permission to enter his homeland as an immigrant.

The redhaired former actor and airforce bombardier was granted a visa by the U.S. consulate-general here, a spokesman announced.

God And The Sinner

A mother of thirteen children was being interviewed by a social worker gathering data on the misery of large families. The last question she asked was: "Which of your children do you love most?"

Without any hesitation, the mother replied:

"The one who is sick until he gets well, the one who is away until he gets home."

These sincere and beautiful words might very well be used to describe how God pursues with a special yearning those of His children who are sick with sin or have rejected Him and gone the way of disbelief.

When a man sins he becomes spiritually sick. He creates a barrier between himself and God. But God's love is so patient and enduring that He never ceases to hover over the afflicted soul and to offer every chance of reconciliation and spiritual regeneration. Scripture itself says there is more rejoicing in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine just who need not penance.

No one knows the mysterious ways in which God works to redeem the sinner. It is certain, however, that He makes particular use of other men and women whose hearts, like His own, are touched by the desolation and torment which is the lot of the sinner.

Every true follower of Christ must be His co-worker in the cause of redeeming and saving souls. He is obliged to show an especial love toward those who are in the grip of sin. He must demonstrate this love by kindness, sympathy and interest. While he can never condone the sin, he must be ever ready to help the sinner: to counsel him; to plead and argue, if necessary, so that the errant may at last perceive his own sickness and turn for help to the Divine Physician.

The good example of the faithful Christian may in the beginning evoke only the gibes and scorn of the very one he wants to help. But he need never be discouraged; love is the most powerful force in the world and it always prevails in the end. There will assuredly come the moment when the sinner over whom he has prayed and sought to redeem will be touched to repentance and be ready gratefully to prostrate himself before the Great Healer.

Life And Organization In Religion

Bruce Barton, well known advertising man and son of the late Dr. William E. Barton, an eminent Congregational minister, wrote a few years ago a book concerning Jesus, under the title, "The Man Nobody Knows," which had a very wide circulation.

It was a unique and challenging book, and Mr. Barton's likening Jesus to a big business executive did not meet with much approval among reviewers. But, though the conception was extreme, it made an important emphasis upon an aspect of the Christian movement, beginning with Jesus Himself that has generally been overlooked.

We think of Jesus as a gentle teacher, going about with His disciples, meeting with individuals talking to small groups as in the Sermon on the Mount, or pressed by the multitudes, whom at times He sought to avoid. That conception has full warrant in the Gospel narratives, but these also reveal how Jesus was a careful organizer, sending forth His disciples, two by two, choosing other seventy besides the Twelve, instructing them as to what they should say and do, listening to their reports when they returned, and in general carrying on a work of organization far beyond anything of which we have commonly conceived.

Moreover, He planned for the carrying on of the organization after His death and resurrection, as He gave the disciples the commission to go into all the world and preach the gospel.

Organization is not of much value without life; in fact it may be baneful if it continues when life has departed from it. But life without organization lacks continuance and permanency. The Christian church was built upon organization, as well as upon life. As Paul expressed it, in Ephesians 4:11, Jesus gave "some, apostles, and some, prophets; and some evangelists; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ."

Acts 6:1-5 tells of an imporatnt early act of organization, which has set a pattern for continuing churches, in the appointment of seven deacons. Their office at first had to do with the ministering of relief; for the early Christians showed their appropriation of the Master's teaching in their care for the needy. The office of deacons in most churches is now spiritual, but they have charge of the communion fund, which is usually designated for relief.

A striking parallel with the organization and growth of the early church has been found in modern times in the life and work of John Wesley, and the founding of Methodism. John Wesley was the most prolific of preachers. He preached anywhere and everywhere, Sundays and weekdays, and upon every occasion. But he organized the converts he won. They were organized into classes with leaders, meeting regularly, for testimony, and for counsel.

Of course the lay preachers, whom Wesley organized, were also a part of his effective organization, but the case of Wesley and the growth of Methodism emphasize the power of organization with life, as against life alone. The organized life of the church is the power of its ongoing.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"SUBSTANCE" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 12, 1950.

Golden Text: Eccl. 3:14.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." (Heb. 11:6) The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God —a spiritual understanding of Him, an unselfed love." (p. 1)

Husband Got Rid of Mustache When Wife Said She Objected

Perhaps it was his frame of mind after a romantic show or perhaps he just decided how handsome he was in the picture, but anyway he went over to the picture, looked at it and then remarked to his wife, "Have I changed much since then?"

The wife looked at the picture and smiled—maybe she sighed a little, too, and then she said thoughtfully: "No, except you were better looking then. You didn't have a mustache."

It was probably a blow to his masculine egotism, because a mustache, according to the male who wears it, is quite a glorious thing. In fact, most males have grown them at one time or other in their lives ,if only on a fishing trip away from the little woman, and after all it is the one thing that the ladies can't do, and what woman would want to. Some of the men would even love an excuse to grow a whole beard, something like a centennial celebration or something. It is a masculine pride in their ability to grow whiskers.

"Yes, I do," replied the wife.

"Then I'll shave it off," he said. And that is exactly what he did. The next morning the first thing he went to the barber shop and had the mustache shaved off and then he went to work. Later in the day he slipped off from work to show her how he looked.

"You are just as handsome as ever," she told him sweetly.

But the young man who had probably come in for a bit of ribbing from his co-workers over the loss of his mustache still wasn't too sure. "There are other people who don't agree with you," he said.

"But," insisted the wife, "that is what I think and after all I am the one to be pleased. You should want to look the way I like you best."

And he agreed that she was right.

Mrs. Elmer Rhine read a letter from Katherine Zimmerman.

A demonstration on "Pepper Uppers for Dull Meals" was given by Mrs. Knight.

The next meeting will be April 5, with Mrs. W. W. Yancey.

Greek Revival

From the romance of the great Greek Empire come important fashion influences for Spring! The rush of pleats, chaste embroidery, tucks and tunics take their cues from the togas, the guardsmen's uniforms, the shepherd cloaks and other attire of the ancient era.

The Greek theme runs on foot, too—with Grecian thong sandals . . . bare minimums of color, strapping the insteps and gracing ankles.

Bright Colors, Silks Are Spotlighted in Dress Collections

Soft, sophisticated silks lead in all the dress collections. Silk prints in brilliant tropical and Oriental-influenced motifs are newsworthy. Silk chiffons . . . so very ultra . . . fall into soft, easy-fitting folds in luxuriously styled frocks.

Printed silk surahs are featured for smart shirtwaist variations and sleek, two-piece ensembles. Silk taffetas, crepe de chine, silk twills, silk kasha and patterned Honans are new and distinctive in the dress showings.

Shantungs, pongees and georgettes are all-important fabric revivals for spring and summer 1950.

Striped Italian silks, medium-weight and very colorful, are used as trims and as important additions in linings of capes and jackets. These silks, too, are made up into extremely smart shirtwaist dresses for 'round the clock wear.

Home Fashion Notes

Simply styled furniture and a unifying color scheme lend spaciousness to small rooms. For variety, paper one wall featuring bold figures; paint the other walls, using one of the colors in the wallpaper.

A new fashion note in French Provincial furniture is the return of the bone white crackle finish. Used in groupings or in combination with other furnishings, the new finish provides a striking effect.

New Zealand soldiers call Marines "Cobblers," meaning pal or buddy.

Day-into-Dusk Hats are Tiny-Head-Hugging and a Blaze of Color on the Spring Scene

The new season hats are superlative . . . and suited to the romance of Spring! The small hat continues to be important to top sleek, polished-looking short hair!

Large hats with scooped, to-one-side brim accents will be seen for more formal occasions as the season progresses. Dramatic black straws with feather and velvet accents, trims of beads, fake jewels and demure veiling, will make their appearance at the cocktail hour and for semi-formal dinner-date wear.

Millinery straws for Spring and Summer repeat all the delectable, new colors of the season. Shiny, smooth and rough straws create a fashionable frame for contrasting straw embroideries, fruit, flower and butterfly trims, velvet and satin bows, and lots of gauzy, rich-hued silk flowers.

Natural, wheat, honey and beige tones are dramatized by the use of Italian milan, leghorn and leghorn novelties.

Spring will see many sailors on deck . . . in straws, of course, with narrow to wide brims and worn either level or with a forward-tilt.

The Chinese influence turns up in the millinery scene . . . in coolie hats with tiny visors and peaked crowns . . . with flower treatments inspired by Ming gardens . . . in little pillboxes patterned after mandarin skull caps.

Look for golden haze and cream ivory felts; these are pale tints reminiscent of "winter white." See lighter than navy worn with red! Frost navy and black with an "in-the-pink" hat . . . or spark-up beige and other natural color nuances with one touch of navy.

Handkerchiefs are Showing in the Best Places

Too long hidden in handbags, the handkerchief has at last come into its own as an important costume accessory.

Wear your handkerchiefs this spring! Tuck them into your cuffs, drape them over your belts, fasten them around your necklines with a pin or flower. Use them to lend new seasonal enchantment to your simple, classic costumes.

They're larger and lovelier than ever, being fashioned into 16 and 21-inch squares with distinctive, hand-rolled edges. Chose from fine lawns, linens and sheers patterned with deep-toned prints, plaids and stripes.

You'll not only carry hankies—but you'll be wearing them for bright, colorful accents!

Belts Cover a "Wide Span" for Spring!

Pastel velvets and velveteens, lightly boned to stay up well, give grace, notes to every ensemble. Soft, crushed leathers in candy and confetti colors are shown in new widths for extra smartness. Capeskin, tissue kid and supple cowhides are new leather luxuries and boast fake-jewel, medallion and novelty bangle adornment. Buckle treatments are bold and lavish. Patent, either natural or plastic, gleams brightly in combination with velvet.

Interesting texture treatments such as scalloping, braiding and twists, add three-dimensional smartness to belts and make them an important accessory.

$15,000 Damage Suit is Filed

The suit is over injuries received in a fall December 20, in front of 307 South Ohio avenue.

According to the petition Bapple alleges he received injuries to the lower part of his back and suffers severe pain upon standing and bending. Bapple conducts a concession stand in the lobby of the court house.

Order Woman Out on Bail

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—(AP)—The U. S. court of appeals today ordered Blanche A. Howard admitted to $7,500 bail pending her appeal from a contempt citation by District Judge Richard M. Duncan.

Miss Howard has been held in the Jackson county jail at Kansas City since Feb. 14.

The court set a hearing on her appeal for May 8. In announcing that Miss Howard would be permitted to post bond with the appeals court, the three appellate judges signed an order which said:

"Whether a witness who is found by a district court to have testified falsely before a federal grand jury can lawfully be adjudged guilty of contempt of court and placed in the custody of the U. S. marshal until such time as the witness elects to testify truthfully is, in the opinion of this court, a substantial question which entitles the appellant to bail pending appeal."

Miss Howard will remain in custody until her bond has been posted.

Slayer Dies in Electric Chair

TUSKER PRISON FARM, Ark., March 10.—(AP)—Thomas Edwin Black, convicted nurse slayer, died in the state's electric chair at 7:07 a. m. today.

The 29-year-old Little Rock automobile mechanic entered the execution chamber softly singing a hymn, "I Thank You Jesus, I Thank You Lord." He wore a blue sports shirt, brown sports slacks and brown shoes.

He was strapped in the chair at 7 a. m. and was pronounced dead seven minutes later.

Thus ended a long legal fight to save the ex-serviceman's life—a battle that lasted until after 4 p. m. yesterday, when his volunteer attorneys finally abandoned their efforts.

Black twice had received stays as appeals were made to the United States and Arkansas supreme courts and to Gov. Sid McMath. But all declined to intervene.

Caucus Row Over Charges

McMahon Makes Denouncement Of McCarthy

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—A crackling two-hour row broke out in the Senate caucus room Thursday when Senator McCarthy (R-Wisc) accused his Democratic colleagues of acting as a "tool of the state department" in their probe of his disloyalty charges.

Senator McMahon (D-Conn) angrily charged McCarthy with making an "irresponsible speech," and he told the Wisconsin senator:

"The imputation is something that I repudiate and denounce. When you start making that kind of a charge about me, you had better reflect on it more than once."

The flareup, witnessed by more than 200 spectators, came as McCarthy launched into the second day of his allegation that scores of Communists are or have been employes of the state department.

The public hearings are being conducted by a Democrat-controlled subcommittee of the senate foreign relations committee.

Two hours of heated wrangling developed frayed tempers among the lawmakers but produced no further "case histories" to substantiate McCarthy's charges.

At the session's end, McCarthy had only completed "case No. 1"—his assertion that Miss Dorothy Kenyon, 62-year-old former state department employe, was "affiliated" with at least 28 Communist-front organizations.

Miss Kenyon To Appear

Before recessing the hearing, Chairman Tydings (D-Md) read a telegram from Miss Kenyon, which said:

"I will welcome an opportunity to appear before the committee at its earliest convenience to attack Senator McCarthy's outrageous and maliciously false charges against me."

Tydings has already indicated that all persons named by McCarthy will be given a chance to offer counted testimony.

Late today, after a closed-door meeting of the subcommittee, chairman Tydings announced:

1. That McCarthy has offered to wind up his testimony in four or five hours and will be given a chance to do so next Monday.

2. That Miss Kenyon will be asked to testify Tuesday—and McCarthy will not be permitted to cross-examine her.

3. That the state department's roving Ambassador Phillip C. Jessup will be given a chance to testify late Tuesday or Wednesday if he is available. McCarthy has charged that Jessup, now reported in the Far East, has shown "an unusual affinity for Communist causes" and once sponsored an alleged Communist-front organization.

McCarthy's statement that the subcommittee had become a "tool" seeking to shield the state department stung the Democratic members to angry recriminations.

McMahon and his colleagues demanded that McCarthy produce the files on which he has based his charges. At one point, Chairman Tydings treatened to subpoena McCarthy's records unless the Wisconsin senator produced them voluntarily.

Study Love Letters To Mussolini

ROME, March 10—(AP)—Newly found love letters written by dark eyed Clara Petacci to Benito Mussolini are being carefully screened by officials for possible hidden secrets of Italy's Fascist regime, it was disclosed today.

But so far the letters—discovered in a villa on Lake Garda in Northern Italy—only have pictured Clara's blissful memories or dark despair when politics or other obligations kept Il Duce from his mistress.

"I would like to die with your lips on mine, never to part from such divine sweetness," Clara penned on Sept. 14, 1939.

President Plans His Speaking Trip

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—President Truman said Thursday he hopes to get away early in May on the cross-country speaking trip he is planning this spring.

He told a news conference he is considering a visit to the regional Democratic meeting at Chicago during his trip. The Chicago meeting is to be held May 15.

In response to questions, Mr. Truman said he did not expect to go into California on the spring trip. But he said this did not rule out talks in that state before the November election.

Underground Shows Its Fangs Again

FRANKFURT, Germany, March 10—(AP)—Germany's underground "Werewolf" organization bared its fangs again Wednesday.

It distributed leaflets saying "Americans, English, French and Russians, we warn you."

The pamphlets said the Werewolf still was alive "and growing stronger day by day."

The organization took its name from a legendary person who could, at will, change his form into a wolf and practice cannibalism.

Girl to Start Life as Honorary Girl Scout

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., March 10 (AP)—The first girl born Sunday March 12 at Chillicothe Municipal hospital will start life as an honorary girl scout.

Local scout officials said Thursday they will confer such a membership to start National Girl Scout week.

Truman May Veto Pay Raise Bill

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—The first government pay raise bill of 1950, affecting 120,000 World War II veterans in the postal service may run into a presidential veto.

Estimated to cost $163,000,000, the bill would hike the pay of vetcrans who entered the postal service after the war. It would give them an automatic raise for each year of service between September 16, 1940, and June 30, 1946. In some cases the raise could amount to $500 a year.

To be eligible, a veteran must have entered the postal field service at any time prior to next July 1.

Bridge of a Lifetime

NATURAL BRIDGE, Va.—(AP)—"Everybody says this Natural Bridge is so wonderful. Well, mebbe so, I ain't never been nowheres else;" says Joseph Mitchell. He was born at Natural Bridge July 12, 1871. He began work at 10 as a stable boy, but was soon apprenticed as a gardener. He has been at it ever since.

"I guess nobody's told me to do anything in ten years. If I didn't rummage around and find something to keep busy at, I guess I'd just vegetate," he says. Asked advice on how to keep a job 68 years, he said: "Keep out of the boss' sight."

Bashful Robber

CHICAGO — (AP) — A robber walked into the Midwest Savings and Loan Association, pulled out a pistol to keep the 12 people in the place at bay, picked up $1,000 and left.

While he was at work, he kept repeating: "Don't look at me."

Demonstration of Jet Propelled Car

TOWCESTER, Eng., Mar. 10—(AP)—The British automobile industry's biggest postwar secret—a sleek jet-propelled car—was given its first public demonstration Wednesday.

Moved by a pair of twin kerosene-fed jet turbines, the automobile—a gray sports coupe— whipped over a concrete landing strip near Towcester at nearly 90 miles an hour.

It idled and reversed with the ease of a conventional car.

The new machine—a version of which the makers say should be in mass production in from two to four years—is aimed at giving Britain a bigger chunk of the dollar motor market.

Potatoes Were A Little Green

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—The potatoes were a little green—not unripe, just un-blue.

It was at a dinner Wednesday night at the Statler hotel for the inter-society color council, a professional group ranging from artists to ink makers.

Since they all were interested in color, they decided to mix the rainbow with the menu. Blue potatoes, super-green peas, canary yellow chicken, etc.

Head Chef Josef M. Faussone muttered to himself in French as he prepared the unorthodox dishes. All were a success, however, except the spuds—which changed color and came out a blue-green or turquoise color.

After the meal Chef Faussone was nowhere to be found.

"He has disappear," said an aide.

Samovars Go Modern

MOSCOW —(AP)— Samovars are now to be manufactured of aluminum. The samovar is a famous and ancient piece of Russian household ware. It is a large bulbous vessel with a small spigot which is placed in the center of the table and furnishes boiling water for tea.

Samovars are generally of copper and fine samovars of silver. The new aluminum samovars will be one-half as heavy as copper ones. Another recent improvement in samovars is electric heating which is available in some models sold here.

Germs Avoid Underground

LONDON — (AP) — The air in London subways is not so filthy as you might think. Scientists of a public health laboratory made six rush-hour roundtrips on one line and took a germ count by exposing sticky "culture plates."

They found considerably fewer bacteria in the subway cars than they had counted in an elementary school and in some public offices.

Winning The Peace Might Take One Hundred Years

By Drew Pearson

(ED. NOTE—This is the second of Drew Pearson's columns on how the U.S.A. can win the peace.)

WASHINGTON.—Fred Osborn, former U. S. representative on the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, recently predicted that it might take 100 years of prodigious effort by the American people to work out a permanent peace.

In view of the fact that the world fought for a solid century during the hundred years' war and in the 17th century went through the spasm of the thirty years' war, Osborn's estimate may not be too pessimistic.

But, being a perennial optimist, I have scaled the time down to 25-50 years. I agree with Osborn, however, that it will require the same kind of hard work our forefathers put in when they built this country to win the peace against a country which is determined the free world must disappear.

As stated yesterday, my own ideas on winning the peace are only "gropings," and I make no claim of originality or copyright. They are put forward after talking with a great many people, including Sumner Welles and Sen. Brien McMahon, who has done more solid thinking about the Russian problem than anyone along Pennsylvania avenue.

At any rate here is my program:

GOP Coalition

1. Bring about greater unity among the American people. We cannot fight a prolonged war of nerves entailing great sacrifices, unless we have just as much national unity as during the recent war. Greater unity can be achieved by:

a. Bringing outstanding Republicans into positions of leadership inside the administration.

b. Keeping the American people better informed. Instead of abrupt handouts from the White House or hasty statements made at presidential press conferences, Mr. Truman should go on the air every month with a frank and personal report to the American people.

2. Goad, maneuver and manipulate Moscow into calling an international conference — on atomic energy or anything else—even if we know in advance it will fail. We shouldn't get up any false hopes, because Russia isn't going to let any conferences succeed—unless she writes the ticket. And we should attend any conference, no matter who calls it, because we cannot leave unturned any stone that might bring peace.

The World Forgets

But it would be extremely healthy if we could force Russia into calling a conference. We should remind the world that we have called conference after conference. Time after time we have gone to Moscow, while Russia has taken almost no initiative for peace. But the world has forgotten this. We need to remind people of this fact—over and over again. We have been called warmongers so often that the world is beinning to believe it. And we have been either lazy or bumbling or both in showing that just the opposite is true.

3. Hold the next session of the United Nations assembly in Moscow. This is Sen. Brien McMahon's idea, and an excellent one. Most of the Russian people have a distorted notion that the U.N. is not a free and democratic assemblage, that Soviet delegates get no breaks, that the cards are stacked in favor of imperialism.

If the United Nations went to Moscow, especially for a debate on controlling atomic energy, the Russian people would get some conception of the U.N.'s truly democratic forum, where any nation can speak its peace.

4. If Moscow will not call an international conference, then we have the excuse of holding a whole series of conferences under the North Atlantic pact. As Senator McMahon once again has pointed out, the North Atlantic pact provides not merely for military assistance, but an Atlantic council to handle political problems.

We have neglected this. We have concentrated on the military phases of the pact, ignoring the Atlantic council which could mobilize the free world in order to create, as McMahon says, "a climate for peace."

Moscow's Achilles' Heel

5. But most important of all we must reach Moscow's Achilles' heel. This heel is friendship with the Russian people.

Most of us forget that the real reason for the iron curtain is to protect the weakest point in the Russian armor—her people. For what the Kremlin fears most is contact of the Russian people with the outside world.

This is why the first American troops to reach the River Elbe after V-E day were not permitted to mingle with soldiers from the Red army. There was no fraternization. This is also why there were so many Red army desertions in Vienna, and why Russian troops returning to their villages are transferred away from their families—if they talk too glowingly about the outside world.

All this indicates that friendship with the Russian people is the real way to win the peace. But despite this it is also the point we have most neglected.

What we need to remember is that, if we can influence the Russian people, we need not build great armament. Men, not H-bombs, make war. And if we can control the men who have to fight Russia's wars, the chances are slim of their starting war.

No Easy Job

This job of influencing the Russian people obviously is not easy. For the 14 men in the politburo have gone to unusual lengths to insulate the other 180,000,000 residents of Russia. These fourteen don't want any loyalty defection from the Kremlin. They don't want to worry about public opinion as Mr. Truman or Prime Minister Attlee have to worry. They want no interference with their power to make war overnight. That is why our job is not easy.

But neither is war easy. And if peace is worth winning, it is worth working for. Furthermore, when the American people set out to accomplish something they usually succeed. We have the greatest advertising genius in the world. We have the greatest organizers, the greatest technical men. Yet we have not harnessed their brains and their genius to do the obvious—win over the Russian people.

Once we do that, our worry about war vanishes.

We should not forget, however, this is a long, back-breaking job, requiring great sacrifice, great unity, great patience. I think we can accomplish it—and in less than the 100 years fixed by Frederick Osborn.

In a future column I will attempt to give some of the more encouraging factors by which I think we can outmaneuver the Russians in the battle to win the peace.

Women Need More Than Flat Guarantee of Equal Rights

By Bruce Biossat

From the women's angle few things ought to sound as attractive as a guarantee to them of equal rights set forth in the federal Constitution.

Yet more than 30 national women's groups don't want that kind of a guarantee without a big proviso attached. And labor leaders are on the same side of the fence.

They all wish to be sure that no equal rights clause shall in any way endanger the rights, benefits and exemptions now enjoyed by women under existing state and federal laws.

What this means is that while they believe the principle of equal rights should be proclaimed, it should be recognized that women actually are in need of extra privileges and safeguards. The feeling is that a women's physical nature and characteristics are enough to justify special status.

On the books today are a wide variety of laws governing wages, hours and conditions of work for women. These include protections for those needing maternity care. In addition, women enjoy alimony rights, dower rights and similar legal advantages partly in recognition of their problems as mothers.

Labor and many women's groups know many of these statutes were won only after bitter struggle. They hesitate, therefore, to endorse an unqualified equal rights clause that might furnish a legal basis for the ultimate destruction of these safeguards.

The Senate has now approved, 63 to 19, a constitutional amendment guaranteeing equal rights to women but stating that the guarantee shall not be construed to impair any present rights women have.

The equal rights' proponents, sensing victory after 27 years of fruitless trying, want the House to kill the extra proviso and leave just a flat guarantee. Offhand their chances don't look too bright, for the weight of labor and the same 30 women's groups will fall upon House lawmakers when they begin debating the proposal.

It seems safest to spell out assurances to women that they will not lose their hard-won protection both at work and in the larger social setting. Maybe this would make the term "equal rights" sound a trifle empty, but we think something would be gained by its mere assertion in the Constitution. Many good principles are modified in practice. That doesn't lessen their value as principles.

Labor's Growing Up

It's too early to appraise the issues in the Chrysler strike, but not too soon to make one observation. Labor's behavior in this walkout strongly suggests that it is really beginning to come of age.

Except for periodic mass demonstrations which promise to be well-disciplined, there is no mass picketing in this strike. Plant entrances are to be guarded by small relays of men going their rounds quietly and peaceably.

Whatever various courts may say about mass picketing, it is apparent to us all that the presence of large groups of men around plant gates in times of bitter controversy is always explosive and dangerous. The assembly of pickets may have thoroughly peaceful intentions. But a few ill-considered words can transform it into an angry, rioting mob.

If the United Automobile Workers operate on the present basis throughout this walkout they will have shown to every American a genuine advance by labor toward responsibility and maturity.

Prov. 14:27; 1923; Luke 21:26; Heb. 2:15

ANXIETY AS ASSET AND LIABILITY

We saw yesterday that the Christian is one who cares about the past, the present, and the future—he is not a lotus-eater. The fact is that he cares more than anyone else, for he is in the process of being sensitized on a world scale. This is his greatest asset. It gives him drive, direction, and determination. It makes him a progressive person. And other things being equal, the Christian should be the most progressive person on earth. He is awakened in every fiber of his being, and he is a man of the open road.

But if this awareness is his greatest asset, it may also become his greatest liability. The fact that he is sensitive and aware to himself and to all men may make him worry. If so, then his light has turned to darkness. For worry and anxiety and fear can block the whole process of progress and paralyze and disrupt the personality. Up to a certain point, fear on the part of a surgeon may make him more skillful and careful lest he cut in wrong places, but fear pushed beyond a certain point could paralyze him. There is a healthy fear that gives us skill and drive. There is an unhealthy fear that takes away both skill and drive—it inhibits us. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, but, "I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent." Both are profoundly true—there is a fear that is wisdom, and a fear that makes one bury his life talents.

Fear, like any other drive, has to be brought under control and used for constructive purposes. Out of control, it turns into worry and anxiety and becomes destructive to itself and others. "Fret not— it only leads to evil." (Psalm 37:8, Moffatt.) Or, as another version puts it, "it tendeth only to evil-doing" —its whole tendency is destructive rather than constructive. Jesus says this new life is often "choked with worries." (Luke 8:14, Moffatt.) The probabilities are that fear, worry, and anxiety are the greatest single trinity of evils a man can take into his life. He must root them out at all costs.

O God, I fear the fear that gets rootage in my life. I am anxious about the anxiety that infects me. I am worried about the worry. Give me deliverance from them. Help me to complete freedom from any cramping inhibition and fear. Amen.

Today it is not a wife, but a secretary, who rips into the myth of the tired business man.

She writes to me: "Personally, I don't think the man of the house hurts himself too much at his work. They all take time out to go downtown for a cup of coffee occasionally, or a magazine to read in the office—to say nothing of the visits they have when friends drop in for so-called business talks.

"After a man has been pampered all day by the business force why should a wife be expected to continue the treatment, when perhaps her day has been more trying than his?

"Too often, it seems to me, married women, especially mothers, are good-natured slaves, soothing the tempers of the various members of the family and foregoing their own desires for the little luxuries that mean so much, so that some other member of the family can have a few more pleasures. That sort of thing can be carried too far—so that the husband and the rest of the family in time forget she is a human being like themselves with the right to the same considerations."

Defeats Her Own Argument

Well, there's the comment of a woman who says she has been a secretary for 30 years. But in defense of the wives she claims are too often good-natured slaves I want to quote a little more from her letter.

"I have been a secretary for over 30 years. During that time I have met and worked for many different men. I think I have learned how to get along with practically every type, which, of course, is necessary to keep an office functioning properly. It is my business to keep the boss in good spirits even though he sometimes starts the day in a 'black mood.' I receive a comparatively good salary for doing so."

It seems to me that paragraph gives the wife a perfect comeback. If it is imperative that a secretary learn how to get along with her boss, how to keep him in good spirits and get him out of an occasional "black mood," certainly it is just as important for the wife to do that much catering to him at home.

After all, the wife wants her home to run smoothly as much as the secretary wants the office to function properly. And if the secretary receives a good salary for keeping the boss happy at work a wife rates a full partnership for keeping him happy at home.

The Doctor Says—

Responds to Weird 'Cures' Warts---Weird Ailment---

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NE AService

According to the newspapers, a radio announcer recently asked help for a listener who wanted to get rid of warts. The results were astonishing. Letters came from all over with many different suggestions. The most popular was the use of castor oil, but milkweed, various kinds of acids, and several other suggestions poured in.

This experience is not as strange as it might sound because a wart is an extraordinary condition which is known to yield to many different kinds of treatment, although those mentioned are not generally recommended by medical men. The response of warts to treatment is all the more astonishing because they are caused by viruses which are small living bodies too tiny to see under the ordinary microscope. Why a condition caused by viruses should respond to strange treatments of the kinds mentioned is something of a mystery.

The most common type is the so-called "seed wart" which occurs on the hands. Children are more likely to have warts than grownups, but they may come at any age. Medical science does not know just why warts come, though they can be spread from one part of the body to another. There is no basis for the old superstition that handling toads will produce warts.

There are few, if any, diseases known to medicine where so many different methods yield good results. The majority of warts yield to mild treatment, though occasionally, especially for warts on the feet, simple medical treatment is not always successful. Painting with certain dyes, several kinds of ointments, freezing with carbon dioxide snow, and burning with diathermy needles have all been used with success.

One of the favorite treatments consists in the use of injections containing a heavy metal called bismuth. Warts also disappear in most cases after X-ray treatment.

Power of Suggestion

The most astonishing treatment of all, however, is the method of suggestion. How the mind can have an effect on a virus disease is a mystery. This does not involve the use of anything locally or by injection. Nevertheless, it has long been known that warts which have been present for many years can disappear suddenly and completely.

This has been confirmed by scientific observers. Just how to go about this kind of treatment is not settled and some doctors are skeptical about it, but so many good doctors have observed it that it must be true.

Warts usually are not serious but there are many unsolved problems about them still. They are surrounded by more superstitions than almost any other medical condition.

FINGERPRINTS Don't Lie

By Rupert Hughes

Copyright 1950 by Rupert Hughes
Dist. by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: After Azalea Palmer found her father, the wealthy Wendell Palmer, with his skull crushed by a desk telephone, police suspect Paul Moody, a young sculptor whose engagement to Azalea had been opposed by Palmer. Police detectives James Stivers and Pete Kelso investigate. Fingerprints found on the base of the phone which was used as a murder weapon are the same as those found in Paul's studio, the officers say. Azalea does not believe her sweetheart murdered her father, and in spite of the damaging fingerprint evidence she is determined to clear him of the charges. A friend recommends private detective Martin Queripel to help her.

• • •

XI

WHEN Azalea Palmer received Nadine Fennell's advice to hire a private detective, the desperate girl looked up Martin Queripel's name in the telephone book, but did not pause to telephone. Azalea decided it would mean waiting for an appointment at Queripel's convenience. He would probably put her off for a few days just to make himself important and hard to get.

She simply called her father's chauffeur, leapt into the car and told him to drive as fast as the law allowed and then step on the gas. She did not have any respect for the law, nowadays.

When she reached Queripel's address, she found big Timothy O'Hea in the outer office and demanded to see Mr. Queripel. She was quivering with fear that he might be out of town or out on a mission, so when O'Hea said, "I'll see if he's in," moved to Queripel's door and turned his high head to ask, "Who shall I say wants to see um?" he had to look down quickly to see her ducking under his arm and flashing straight to the desk where Queripel was studying a supposedly forged document under a microscope.

Queripel looked up from the enlarged scrawls and blinked his eyes to behold the little, the beautiful, the blazing Azalea pounding on his desk with her lily-like fists and pounding at his ears with her importunate voice trying to say everything at once.

It took Queripel several minutes to get over his confusion, and longer to get Azalea over her confusion long enough to make known just what she was commanding him to do for whom.

IT was plain to Queripel that she would be pretty—at least when she was calm. But now her exquisite features were twisted and contorted all askew. And small wonder for that, since they were trying to express grief, rage, defiance, appeal, command, hope, despair all at once as she beat on the detective's desk and sobbed:

"I suppose you think I'm a heartless fiend for trying to save Paul Moody from being put to death for murdering my father. Everybody thinks that of me, especially the police. They say they never saw a tighter case against anybody. But I don't care what anybody says or thinks. Paul says he is innocent. That's enough for me."

Queripel ventured to interpose quietly:

"Nearly every criminal swears he is innocent, my child—especially just before his execution."

He was sorry he had said this; for he could see how his last word stabbed her as if it were a knife thrust into that throbbing left breast of hers. He had to go on:

"The guiltiest often come to believe sincerely that they are innocent. And it would be hard for any man to look into such eyes as yours and say, 'Darling, I killed your father!' Of course, I know only what I have read in the papers. Moody had motive enough. Your father is—was—rich, and Moody needs money. Your father would not give his consent to your marriage. Paul Moody was seen going into your house shortly before the murder was discovered—discovered by you yourself, poor child. The police found his fingerprints everywhere—especially on the death weapon. And fingerprints don't—"

Azalea snapped at Queripel with the startling ferocity of a pretty kitten suddenly all claws:

"Don't you dare tell me that fingerprints don't lie! That's what everybody says. The police told me so over and over till I wanted to scream. But fingerprints must lie. They do!"

"How could they, my dear? There has never been discovered the slightest duplication.—"

"Because Paul—my Paul—said he was innocent. He called me from the jail. I'd believe him against all the fingerprints in the world."

Feeling more like a father or a priest than a sleuth, the detective put a gentle hand on her clenched fingers and said:

"Such trust is a very beautiful thing in a very ugly world. I wish it could be justified."

• • •

HIS heart softened toward her in a deep wonder, and it was a strange wonder; for while she was pouring out a story of her wretchedness and begging him to fight the police and the courts and rescue Paul Moody from justice, he was thinking less about the Palmer murder case than about the color of this girl's eyes, as they fairly burned into his.

The very private detective Martin Queripel had skimmed the stories in the papers and assumed that, for once, the police had acted quickly and wisely in arresting Paul Moody.

Such cases were far outside the line of Martin Queripel, a strange sort of sleuth who loved not only to work in obscurity, but to live there. It was his man, O'Hea, who had said of him:

"Old Q. is the unknownest man in the known world. And likes it."

Golden Gloves Bouts Tonight

CHICAGO, March 10—(AP)—Thirty-two amateur boxers — the best in a starting field of 25,000 —vie tonight for championships in the semi-final and title rounds of the Golden Gloves tournament at Chicago Stadium.

A crowd of 15,000 is expected to witness the 23rd annual event.

Champions in eight weight classes will compose the Chicago squad which meets New York's recently-crowned Golden Gloves titlists at the stadium on March 29. Less than a month later, a team of American winners will battle the champions of Europe.

Los Angeles and Cleveland each send four semi-finalists into action. Chicago goes into the final night of the meet with only one representative, Van Leonard, a heavyweight with a punch. All told, 17 cities are represented in tonight's feature attraction of the Tournament of Champions.

Semi-finals of Cage Tourney

DODGE CITY, Kas., March 10—(AP)—Moberly, Mo., will play Garden City, Kas., and Southwest Baptist of Bolivar, Mo., will meet Dodge City tonight in the semi-finals of the regional junior college basketball tournament.

The four teams all won their first round games yesterday by big margins.

Moberly hardly used its first string at all in trouncing Scottsbluff, Neb. 78-52.

Garden City knocked out Jefferson City, Mo., 75-41 and Southwest Baptist eliminated Independence, Kas. 64-50.

The finals will be played tomorrow night. The tournament champion will go to the national tournament at Hutchinson, Kas., March 21-25.

Old Timer to Help The New Umpires

CARTHAGE, Mo., March 10—(AP)—The new staff of umpires for the Kansas - Oklahoma - Missouri league will have an official advisor this season.

He is Joe Becker of Joplin, veteran umpire of the Three-I, Western and Pacific Coast leagues who recently retired as a major league scout.

E. L. Dale, president of the league, said he thought it would be a good idea to have an old-timer help the new umpires, most of whom will be calling balls and strikes for the first time in professional baseball.

Pennsylvanians Will Use Modern Methods to Try to Catch Foxes

LIGONIER, Pa., March 10—(AP)—This western Pennsylvania town which takes the sports limelight annually with its circular fox hunt is going to try soothing the savage beast with some smaltzy waltzes.

The Ligonier Valley's 140th anniversary grand circular fox hunt due to start bright and early tomorrow morning will be a far cry from fox hunts of old.

There will be a sound truck with plenty of the latest recordings on the turntable. Most of them will be definitely on the soft and sweet side.

"We'll find out whether there is any truth to the old saying that 'music hath charms to soothe the savage beast,'" says Phil Walters, the hunt's generalissimo.

Too Old Fashioned

Long ago, Ligonier folks discarded many traditions of the hunt including the term "master of the hunt." Too old fashioned, they said.

That's an understatement.

A few years ago rocket bombs were used. The huntsmen figured the noise would help rout out the foxes.

That didn't work too well, so airplanes were used to fly low over the area to frighten the foxes out of their hiding places.

But flying weather is uncertain in this section of the country at this time of the year so the huntsmen can't count on airplanes tomorrow. That's why they're turning to music.

The hunters form in a 13-mile circle. They close in slowly, beating the woodland with sticks and shouting all the while. Then comes the kill.

All-Stars Named For NIAA Team

Unanimous Vote For Gene Ruble of Springfield Bears

KANSAS CITY, March 10—(AP)—A team of high scoring veterans make up the All-Star Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball teams for 1950.

Coaches of the conference were unanimous in only one selection, that being Gene Ruble, forward of the champion Southwest Missouri State Bears of Springfield.

Al Henningsen, of Maryville, came within one vote of getting the nod from all six coaches. The others were named to the first team by four of the six coaches. They are Pete Younger, of Maryville; Glen Kammeyer, of Warrensburg, and Earl Perry of Kirksville.

Second Team

Making the second team were Jack Lindsay and Ed Cook, of Springfield; Chuch Branson, of Warrensburg; Bob Merrick, of Cape Girardeau, and Jim Scott of Rolla. Of the unit, Scott and Branson received the biggest votes.

Bob Goodwin, of Cape Girardeau, was nosed out of a second team berth.

The first mythical quintet carries real scoring power. Younger and Henningsen scored 289 and 282 points respectively. Perry hit for 235 in 22 games. Ruble, playing on one of the better defensive clubs of this area, got 160 and Kammeyer 151 during the season.

First Team
Gene Ruble, Springfield, F.
Pete Younger, Maryville, F.
Al Henningsen, Maryville, C.
Klen Kammeyer, Warrensburg, G.
Earl Perry, Kirksville, G.

Second Team

Honorable mention: Cassing, Warrensburg Lea, Sumners, Springfield; Maxey, Goodwin, Cape Girardeau; Lyle, Maryville.

Warrensburg Team Beat CBC 43 to 38

The Sedalia Central Business College basketball team was eliminated from the Slater basketball tournament Thursday night when Superior Cleaners of Warrensburg defeated C. B. C. 43 to 38.

The Warrensburg quintet held the lead throughout the game. C. B. C. cagers had trouble in connecting with their throws at the baskets.

In the other tilts of the tourney Thursday night, Marshall M. F. A. eliminated Slater and the Marshall All Stars rubbed out Concordia.

Twelve teams entered the meet which got underway Wednesday and will end Saturday in Slater.

Jack Kramer Wins 66th Pro Tennis Victory

Big Seven Wrestling Meet Opening Today

MANHATTAN, Kas., March 10—(AP)—Iowa State, Oklahoma and defending champion Nebraska ruled as favorites in the Big Seven Conference wrestling meet opening today.

Preliminaries were scheduled to begin at 11 a. m. (CST). Semi-finals are scheduled for tonight and the finals tomorrow afternoon.

Joe McCarthy Speaks About Boston Team

Claims 'Our Pitching Should Be Better'

By Jack Hand

SARASOTA, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Joe McCarthy points to Billy Goodman and Al Zarilla as the men to help his Boston Red Sox get away to a flying start this spring.

"I don't know why we got away so slow last year," said McCarthy, "but I have a couple of ideas. Goodman was hurt making an outfield catch in Hartford just before the opener. If he was able to play, we might not have experimented so long with Walt Dropo at first base.

"Then we didn't get Zarilla from the Browns until May. He helped us plenty in right field when Sam Mele was injured and couldn't get going later.

"This year we're going to have Goodman and Zarilla in there from the opening day on. We've already sent Dropo to Louisville for another year.

Full Year's Experience

"Our pitching ought to be better. The young fellows — Maury McDermott and Charley Stobbs—have a full year's experience. They'll be ready to take a turn from the start with Mel Parnell, Ellis Kinder and Joe Dobson."

McCarthy, who lived in deadly fear of an alibi, discourages mention of the injuries that sidelined Bobby Doerr, Goodman and McDermott at important moments. He didn't win and that's that.

There is no mystery about the Sox club for 1950. The infield is set with Goodman, Doerr, Vern Stephens and Johnny Pesky. Ted Williams, Dom Dimaggio and Zarilla are the outfield with Birdie Tebbetts, Buddy Rosar and Matt Batts the catchers.

Only in the pitching department are there some wide open opportunities. A most important problem is the search for a Joe Page type of reliefer. Game after game was lost by the Sox last season for lack of a capable stopper in the late innings.

"Al Papai, who used to be with the Browns, ought to help us. And we got Bob Gillespie. He won 17 and struck out over 100 at Seattle."

Two Share Lead in Golf Meet

Miami Beach Event Went Into The Second Round Today

By Tom Chase

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 10—(AP)—A pair of soft-spoken southerners, both veterans of many campaigns on the links, shared the lead today as the Miami Beach $10,000 invitational golf tournament went into the second round.

Chunky Johnny Palmer, professional of Badin, N. C., who earlier this week won the La Gorce country club pro-amateur, and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., each carded three under par 60's yesterday as the first major Miami Beach tournament in 20 years got under way.

Puptter Turns Sour

Palmer, tenth ranking money winner thus far this year, carded a 32 on the front side of the Bayshore golf course for the best nine hole score of the day. But coming back his putter turned sour, a 25-mile an hour wind played havoc with the long shots and he was one over par.

Harper, fourth ranking Ryder cup team candidate with 87 2-7 points and eighth ranking money winner with $2,700 so far this year, was even par 36 on the front nine and came back in three under par 33.

The southern twosome held a one stroke lead over a bulky field of 220 of the nation's leading amateurs and professionals who played over two courses — Bayshore and Normandy Isle — for the opening round.

The "name players" switch to the 6,676-yard Normandy Isle course today while the lesser lights battle over the 6,440-yard Bayshore layout. Both courses are 36-36—72 for par.

Only one stroke off the pace were Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis, Tenn., dentist turned pro golfer and now playing out of Ormond Beach, Fla.; Walter Burkemo of Franklin, Mich., and Gene Kunes of Hollywood, Fla.

Famous Iron Man Tries for Comeback

CHICAGO, March 10—(AP)—The spotlight will be on the shotput in tomorrow's Illinois Tech relays at the University of Chicago field house as Chuck Fonville, Michigan's famous iron man, tries for a track comeback.

The meet, drawing some 650 athletes from 11 universities and 32 colleges, is ranked as the nation's largest indoor track event.

Fonville, Big Ten champion, was the first to throw the 16-pound shot 58 feet. But since the powerful, lanky Negro set the world's record at the Kansas relay meet in 1948, a better man has come along in the name of Jim Fuchs of Yale. Fuchs powered the ball 58 feet 4 inches in Oslo, Norway, in July, 1949.

Opposing Fonville's quest for a new mark will be at least two rugged competitors, John Helwig of Notre Dame and Roland Prather of Kansas State.

1,000 Athletes Will Compete in Track Meet

LAREDO, Texas, March 10—(AP)—The border Olympics, expected to bring an avalanche of new records swung open today with the junior colleges and high schools getting first crack.

Almost 1,000 athletes from 78 schools over the southwest will compete in the eighteenth edition of this big outdoor track and field carnival.

The University of Texas tops a field of eight universities holding preliminaries tomorrow morning and finals tomorrow night. Louisiana State and Oklahoma A&M furnish the out-of-state interest.

Texas, which last year won the Olympics 58-55 over Texas A&M is favored to repeat on the strength of a galaxy of sprinters topped by Charley Parker and Perry Samuels.

Twelve colleges, eleven from Texas plus Southeastern State Teachers of Durant, Okla., slash at the records of the college division. They hold prelims tomorrow morning at the same time as the university class.

TODAY A YEAR AGO—Art Houtteman, promising young pitcher with the Detroit Tigers, was seriously injured in an auto accident.

FIVE YEARS AGO—Phil Rafferty of the New York A.C. won his seventh straight mile run, timed in 4:16.3 in the K. of C. games.

TEN YEARS AGO—Don Budge defeated Bill Tilden, 7-5, 6-2, in a benefit pro tennis match in New York.

Four Berths Still Open For NAIB

Six-Day Cage Marathon Starts This Monday

KANSAS CITY, March 10—(AP)—The thirty-two team field for the National Intercollegiate (NAIB) basketball tournament will be completed tonight.

Only four berths remained open today for the six-day cage marathon.

One, the West Virginia representative, was to be named by the National Association of Intercollegiate basketball's executive committee.

The others will be settled in playoffs tonight. In the New England district, St. Anselm's of Manchester, N. H., will meet the New Britain (Conn) Teachers.

Peru Teachers and Doane college will settle the Nebraska berth. In the southwest, it will be West Texas State, of Canyon, Texas, against East Texas State of Commerce.

Committee Will Decide

The executive committee, headed by executive secretary Al Duer, will decide whether Davis and Elkins, of Elkins, or Marshall college of Huntington, will represent West Virginia.

Davis and Elkins last night defeated West Virginia Wesleyan, 77-56, in a playoff and was all ready to head for Kansas City when Marshall asked for a ruling. Marshall did not participate in the playoff.

South Dakota university of Vermillion; St. Thomas of St. Paul, Minnesota and George Pepperdine college, of Los Angeles, were certified yesterday.

Pepperdine got in by beating Chico (Calif) State 65-35, at Chico last night.

Pairings will be made tomorrow. Eight teams will be seeded and the remaining twenty-four drawn.

Starting times of the games Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday has been set for noon (EST) instead of 1 p. m. as in past years. Eight games will be played daily for the first three days.

Windsor Still In Tourney

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 10—(AP)—The Missouri state class B high school basketball tournament moved into the quarter-final round today.

Survivors of first round games square off today and tonight in this lineup:

Puxico vs. Clarkton 2 p.m.
Ozark vs. Brentwood 3:25 p.m.
Willard vs. School of the Osage 7:30 p.m.
Windsor vs. Rothville 8:55 p.m.

Puxico, Clarkton and Ozark won their first round games Tuesday night.

In the five first round games played yesterday and last night the victors, with one exception, won handily.

The exception was Rothville, which came from behind in the final 18 seconds to nose out Elvins, 40 to 39. Jim Grubbs scored the set-up goal for Rothville which entered the tournament with a record of 29 victories and three losses.

Kentuckians Play First Tilt in NIB

Tournament Gets Started Saturday In New York City

By Milo Farneti

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—Western Kentucky plays the first game in the National Invitation basketball tournament Saturday and don't be surprised if the Hilltoppers stick around for the finish.

Bradley and Western both have more experience than Kentucky's sophomore club. Where Western may rate a slight edge is in height. Diddle can send out five men averaging six-four or five—topped by six-eight Bob Lavoy.

Heavy Favorite

Western (24-5) rates a heavy favorite over Niagara (20-6) in Saturday afternoon's opener. The Hilltoppers also have to get by St. John's (22-4), fourth seeded, to reach the semi-finals and maybe get at Bradley again.

Unseeded San Francisco (19-6), defending champion, plays CCNY (17-5) in the other afternoon contest. Then Saturday night LaSalle (20-3) meets Arizona (25-4) and Long Island (20-4) takes on Syracuse (17-8).

Bradley, Kentucky (25-4), Duquesne (22-4) and St. John's — seeded in that order — drew first round byes. They play their first games in the quarter finals Monday and Tuesday.

Big League Training Camp Briefs

By the Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Washington's bat-happy Nats slammed batting practice homers over Tinker field fences again yesterday. That made 36 for two days.

Lacked Wrist Action

TAMPA, Fla., March 10—(AP)—If Ted Kluszewski is concerned about the possibility of losing his first base job with the Cincinnati Reds to Joe Adcock, he isn't showing it.

Kluszewski, who was a holdout, has been in the Reds' training camp only two days. He merely laughed and shrugged his shoulders yesterday when asked what he thought of the Adcock threat.

"I'm going to swing for the fences this season and I'm sure that I'll more than double my home run total (8) of 1949," he said. "My chief trouble last season was that I didn't get enough wrist action into my swing."

Cubs Leave Training Site

AVALON, Calif., March 10—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs wave farewell to their Catalina island training camp today, heading back to the mainland for the opening of their exhibition schedule.

Test for Pitcher Hal Gregg

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., March 10—(AP)—Pitcher Hal Gregg knows he's getting his last chance with the Pittsburgh Pirates and is bearing down harder than any rookie in the training camp.

Gregg, trying hard to make a comeback after two listless seasons since he came to the Bucs from the Brooklyn Dodgers, reported in top physical condition. In his first appearance on the mound he pitched two innings, facing only six men.

Good Performance

BURBANK, Calif., March 10—(AP)—Russ Bauers, a big, raw-boned pitcher, earned plaudits yesterday in helping the Bruckers to a 3-2 victory over the Hofmanns in the St. Louis Browns intra-squad game.

His performance was the most convincing one turned in by hurlers on both teams.

Musial Under Treatment

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Outfielder Stan Musial hopes to resume practice with the St. Louis Cardinals today.

He says his chest cold has broken up and he will be in uniform when the squad opens its exhibition season Saturday against the New York Yankees.

Ultimatums Sent Out

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 10—(AP)—The New York Yankee management has sent ultimatums to the two remaining holdouts—pitcher Tommy Byrne and infielder Bobby Brown.

The gentlemen who handle the cash for the world champions sent the recalcitrants word that they have gone the limit in their offers. The next move, they indicated, are up to the holdouts.

Byrne won 15 games last year. Brown played 104 games at third and batted .283.

Last Day of Regatta Races

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 10—Ted Wells of Wichita, Kas., still was the skipper to beat as the International Midwinter Snipe Regatta entered its last day today.

Two races, the fourth and fifth, are on the final program.

Wells, winner of the first two races, was third yesterday, but still held top place in overall standings.

MY Biggest BONER

Behind, Moses Hits Three-Nothing Ball, and is Saved by Tying Triple

By Wally Moses
Athletics' Outfielder

By biggest boner in baseball was pulled in my sceond year in the organized game — 1932.

I belonged to the Cardinal chain and was cavorting for the Monroe, La., club of the Class C Cotton States league.

It was just prior to July 1, which is when the league blew up with a loud blast. A lot of other things besides baseball leagues were collapsing in those days.

Anyway, we were three runs behind in the ninth inning at Vicksburg, Miss., had the bases full with no one out and the count on me was three balls and no strikes.

I was batting third. The next hitter our cleanup man, Pyle, was leading the league with .380 and in home runs and runs-batted-in.

The pitcher came in with a fat pitch and I said to myself: "I'll hit this one out of the park," and I nearly did.

It was a triple to right center field, and I pulled into third base after the three runs had scored, feeling just like a hitter who has just driven in three runs.

Frank Kitchens, one time Brooklyn catcher, was our manager coaching at third base. He was fit to be tied.

"What's wrong?" I asked, an innocent 21-year-old. "Isn't the score tied? A fly ball now and we win.

"That's all that saved you," said the skipper. "Otherwise I'd have shot you had I a gun.

"What put it into your thick head that you were the last hitter we had for the day? Suppose you had hit into a double play?"

When the league folded, the St. Louis Nationals failed to place me and I was made a free agent. I went with Manager Kitchens to Tyler, when that town took Shreveport's place in the Texas league.

And I never again swung at a ball with my side trailing by three runs in the ninth, the bases full, none out, the count three and nothing and a .380 cleanup home run hitter coming up.

Big Seven Swimmers Compete Today and Saturday

NORMAN, Okla., March 10—(AP)—Iowa State swimmers go after their 16th Big Seven Conference championship today and the ninth in a row.

Seventy entries from all conference schools but Kansas State and Missouri will compete in 14 different events today and tomorrow.

Iowa State will bring Roger Watts, who holds conference records in the 220-yard, 440-yard and 1,500-meter free-style races.

Hot Ball Game

GEELONG, Australia — (AP) — When struck on the leg by a pitched ball during a week-end match, Robt. Bate hopped around the wicket, dropped his bat, threw away his gloves and quickly turned out one of his pockets.

The ball had struck a box of matches in his pocket and set them afire.

Moving Tree Ends Career

ZION, Ill.—(AP)—Passers-by saw a man sawing away at a big poplar tree. It meant nothing to them. But it meant a lot to Mrs. Ella Scrafield.

She planted the tree 44 years ago. She moved four times. Each time she brought the tree along and transplanted it. But recently, because of decay, it had to be cut down and hauled away.

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

BEST SCOUT OF THEM ALL was Daniel Carter Beard, author, artist, outdoorsman and founder of the movement which became the Boy Scouts of America. In dress and spirit, the perfect picture of the old woodsman, "Uncle Dan" Beard brought the pioneer traditions of Daniel Boone into the Twentieth Century and into the lives of millions of American boys. It was in 1905 when Beard, then editor of a recreation magazine, got the idea for a boys' outdoor organization. He formed the "Sons of Daniel Boone," which grew to 150,000 members in five years. In 1910, Beard's "Sons" merged with a British organization headed by Lord Baden-Powell to form the International Boy Scout movement. Today there are two and a quarter million American Boy Scouts.

Crumbling Tunnel

Three million cubic feet of mountainside is moving slowly toward the Colorado river east of Grand Junction, Colo., after crushing the No. 3 tunnel of the Grand Valley irrigation project. Walter L. Workman, the tunnel caretaker is shown here probing a fresh gap in the structure which was opened despite the heavy reinforcing timbers. A section of the tunnel later collapsed, depriving 30,000 acres of rich farmland of water. Hundreds of farmers face financial disaster with the water supply cut. (AP Wirephoto)

The building a converted shed of about 10 by 15 was damaged to the extent of $150 while Mrs. Estill reported her losses at more than $600 and only partly covered by insurance. The building is owned by Dewey Chaney, 1410 East Seventh street.

"I ran out of the house and was standing in front when I heard an explosion," she reported.

The explosion which the girl referred to was a 50 gallon oil drum which was partly filled with coal oil. The barrel was on a stand at the rear of the building and one end was blown out. The end of the barrel was blown nearly fifty feet into the air and went a distance estimated at nearly 300 feet to the south. The metal went sailing over the "Bud" Howell Grocery-Filling station and landed on the side walk on the south side of Broadway.

Disc Whizzed Through Air

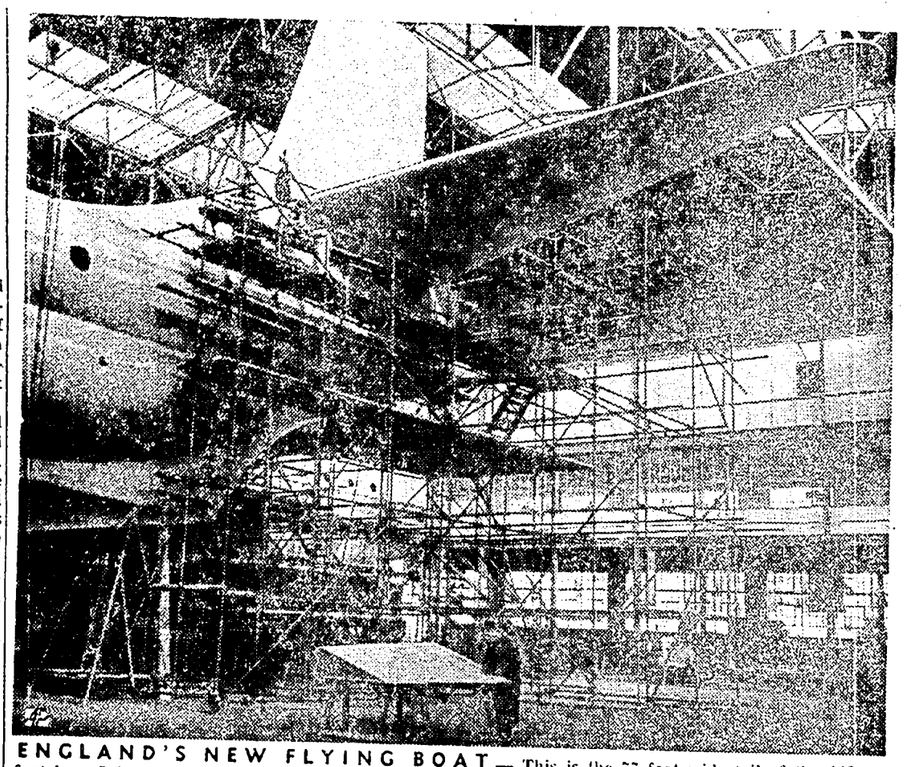

J. S. Patterson, 1420 East Broadway, was standing on his front porch when he heard the explosion and saw the flying disc sailing through the air. It came to earth on the walk next door to his home to the west. There were no pedestrians on the walk at the time, Mr. Patterson said.

Mrs. Estill has been residing in the small building with her children for the past two years, when she was unable to find any other place to live. One child her daughter Shirley, 8, stays with Mr. and Mrs. Chaney, and the other six, Carl Dean, 11, Betty 9, Bobbie 10, Donnie 7, Vonita 6, and Lyndia Kay 4 live with their mother.

Several neighbors offered to take the children until Mrs. Estill is able to find other quarters or the shed-residence is made liveable again.

A shed of F. C. Winebrenner, 1400 East Seventh, had damages of about $75.

Both fire companies answered the alarm.

Car Takes Off And Runs Into Building

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 10—(AP)—J. L. Smith, a used car salesman, got in a car Thursday to keep warm.

He started the engine, pressed his foot to the accelerator and the machine took off.

Before it came to a stop at a brick building, the car had crossed several lots, torn down shrubs, knocked down porch posts and some house steps, gone over a three-foot embankment and run over a few curbs.

Smith, who was not behind the wheel when the car started its run, was treated for lacerations and bruises.

For the woman who, by mischance, may have to cope with a flat tire on her car, there is a lightweight aluminum tire lift. It takes the strain out of lifting the new wheel into place on the hub in making the change.

Vote To Keep Controls To June 30

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—Senate voted 44 to 28 Thursday to keep rent controls going until June 30.

What happens after that will be decided later.

Today's action rejected an effort to choke the control agency to death by refusing it more operating funds.

But the outcome was a compromise giving no clear indication what the Senate will do about another year of controls which President Truman has urged.

Today's vote, subject to House action, would do this:

1. Give the agency $1,400,000 to maintain its regulations until June 30. Several Senators contend it wouldn't be enough; that more will be asked.

2. Give it $2,600,000 to use solely for paying off some of its 4,100 employes by that date.

Girl Spy Is Sent To Prison

Judith Coplon Gets 15 Years; Ex-Pal Russian Engineer is To be Deported

NEW YORK, March 9—(AP)—Judith Coplon was sentenced to 15 years in prison today for plotting to spy for Russia. Her ex-pal, Russian engineer Valentin A. Gubitchev received a 15 years suspended sentence and was ordered deported to the Soviet Union within two weeks.

The deportation order for the 33-year-old, short, dour-faced Russian was recommended by the government as a result of conferences between the State Department and the attorney general's office.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan sentenced brunette little Miss Coplon to five years on a conspiracy charge and 15 years on a count of attempted espionage, the sentences to run concurrently.

He specified that the term imposed might not be served concurrently with a sentence of 40 months to 10 years she received in Washington, D.C., on kindred charges.

The judge refused an application to release her in bail.

To Appeal

Samuel A. Neuberger, attorney for the 28-year-old Miss Coplon, said he would file notice of appeal immediately.

Miss Coplon could have received 25 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Gubitchev faced a maximum of 15 years in jail and $20,000 fine.

U.S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol told the court of the government's recommendation for Gubitchev before sentence was imposed. He said it was the personal recommendation of the secretary of state and the attorney general.

"You came here as an emissary of peace," Judge Ryan told Gubitchev, who was suspended from his United Nations engineer position after his arrest on March 4, 1949.

Accepted As Friend

"You were accepted by us in the role of friend," he declared and added that Gubitchev had violated his United Nations oath by his actions.

Gubitchev did these things "with an arrogant smile on your lips and face," the judge said.

Turning to Miss Coplon he declared:

"You brought disgrace on your name and disgrace on your family. The country looks upon you with sorrow. The country does not seek vengeance but punishment must be substantial as a warning to others."

Then he added she had been "found guilty of betraying your country."

Saypol, in announcing the government's position, emphasized that the State Department did not

Gas is Flowing In Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 9—(AP)—Springfield was slowly but surely recovering today from the explosion last Tuesday which robbed this city of about 75,000 population of its natural gas supply, chief source of heating and cooking fuel.

Gas was flowing today in all mains except in the extreme north portion of the city, and in three smaller residential sections to the east and west.

Cities Service Gas Company's regulator station south of the city blew up Tuesday after a fire of undetermined origin broke out.

Householders in various parts of the city were complaining that although their neighbors had gas, they didn't. C. Nick Sprong, general manager of the city-owned public utility, explained that emergency workers restoring individual gas supplies found nobody at home to let them in.

The Red Cross "disaster" tag placed on the explosion and its effects wasn't justifitd, it appeared last night. Only four persons—a mother and her three children—showed up at the emergency dormitory set up for 200 persons at the O'Reilly veterans hospital gymnasium. They ate a hot meal, the children played awhile, then the family went back home at 8 o'clock.

Parks Are Clean Of Branches, Brush

The city completed removing all branches and brush Wednesday evening which fell in Liberty, Hubbard and Washington parks, as a result of the recent trimming of 700 trees.

Approximately 350 truck loads of brush and timbers were hauled from the parks and burned, since the city started on the project a week ago. Workers are now in the process of raking the park grounds.

Popular Girl Soprano to Appear Here

Guest Artist With Symphony Orchestra On Monday Night

Miss Lillian Murphy, soprano, who will appear with the Sedalia Symphony orchestra in concert in the Smith-Cotton high school auditorium Monday night has risen to tremendous success the past few years. She was born in Kansas City, Kas., October 3, 1929 and began her study of voice at the age of eleven.

Miss Lillian Murphy

She became a staff artist of WDAF after she had made appearances with the Kansas City civic orchestra and band at the Missouri State Fair (1946-1947) and the American Royal. At NBC station WDAF she made regular weekly air shows while still a senior in Wyandotte high school in Kansas City, Kas.

During her freshman year at the University of Kansas, talent scouts of NBC's 'Harvest of Stars' heard Miss Murphy and asked her to appear with James Melton when that program originated from Kansas City March 7, 1948. After that engagement Miss Murphy signed a contract to appear

ALLETOWN, Pa., March 9—(AP)—Harold Mohr, 36-year-old unemployed tannery worker, said today he finally yielded to the persistent pleading of his hopelessly blind, cancer-stricken brother and shot him to death.

District Attorney Kenneth H. Koch, after listening to what he called Harold's "full, frank and honest description" of the death of 55-year-old Walter Mohr, told reporters:

"This death is a mercy killing on the basis of the defendant's statement. There is nothing to indicate to the contrary on the basis of facts as we now know them."

Harold Mohr was held without bail on a murder charge.

State Policeman Donald C. Wentzel signed the formal complaint after another Mohr brother, Ralph, who is police chief in Coplay, withdrew from the case. Koch said that Ralph Mohr, who several weeks ago had resigned his police post, is cooperating in the investigation.

Sitting in a Lehigh county prison cell, Harold Mohr told the district attorney:

"My brother asked me to shoot him. He often asked me to. I finally decided to do it just last night after dinner."

Koch said Harold "felt satisfied" at what he had done. And the defendant told the district attorney Walter had known what was happening, had "heard the click of the gun" as the fatal shell was loaded into the chamber.

"Are your ready?" Koch quoted the defendant as asking his brother.

The reply, Harold said, was "go ahead." Then he fired the gun.

Dr. George S. Boyer, Lehigh county coroner, said Walter had been hopelessly blind for 15 years, and had suffered from cancer for the past six years.

The coroner said cancer had wasted away Walter's face.

"Only the man's lips remained," the coroner said.

Candidates Are Proposed For Council Members

Party harmony apparently prevailed in the four ward caucus meetings of the Democrats Thursday night, at which time candidates for council were chosen to be ratified at the convention to be held Saturday night at the City Hall along with the nominations of candidates for the various city offices. In each of the caucus meetings leading Democrats expounded their thoughts enthusiastically over party harmony and praising the present City Administration.

Proposed for Aldermen

Talk From Mayor

Mayor Julian H. Bagby, who is not a candidate for the office, gave a talk before the First Ward caucus in which he recalled back in 1935 when he was first elected to the office of Mayor. He also pointed out conditions when he took office the first time and also when he was elected in 1946 following a Republican Administration.

The mayor called attention to the city report as mailed to all taxpayers known as "Time" which gives a most concise coverage of the city's financial condition. He expressed genuine satisfaction as to its informative contents.

The results of the four caucus meetings were as follows:—

First Ward Democrats

The First Ward caucus was opened by Emmett Sullivan who served as chairman of the meeting. Mrs. Ike Warren was chosen as the secretary.

Harry Moore, 623 North Prospect avenue, was nominated by S. J. Timborious as the ward candidate for City Council. He seeks the office of Virgil Corson, Democrat, which expires this year. Moore is the Financial Secretary of the Carpenter's Union, Local No. 1792.

The caucus went on record instructing its delegation to vote as a unit for Mrs. Lucy E. Rabourn, widow of the late Rolla Rabourn, 116½ East Third street, for the nomination of city treasurer.

Committeemen and women: First Precinct, S. J. Timborious and Mrs. R. F. "Dick" Rohn: Second Precinct, William Burton and Mrs. Ike Warren; Third Precinct, Mrs. Ada Coolidge and Jesse Miller.

Bandits Loot Bank Of $63,933

NEW YORK, March 9—(AP)—A band of five robbers, working as though they were following a movie script, today stole $63,933 in small bills from a Queens Branch bank.

Leaving two of the band outside as lookouts, three of the robbers took complete charge of the Sunnyside branch of the Manufacturers Trust Co., before it opened in the morning.

The 17 members of the bank's staff were permitted to enter as they reported for duty. Each was made to take his regualr post and appear to be working.

Even a curious postman, who stopped because he thought the employes "looked like they were posing for pictures," was forced to occupy a chair.

After all were assembled, the robbers made two bank employes open the vault. They went directly to the mental containers in which the currency had been placed, and dumped it in a bag.

The robbers ignored stocks of silver. They drove the bank staff and the postman into the basement, and fled with their loot without firing a shot.

Within a few hours after the robbery police sent out an alarm for the arrest of William Sutton, 50. William P. O'Brien, police commissioner, said he had been identified from pictures by 11 of the bank staff as the leader of the robber gang.

O'Brien said Sutton had a long police record and "must be regarded as a man who is always ready to shoot to kill."

O'Brien said Sutton escaped two years ago from the eastern state penitentiary in Pennsylvania and has been sought since. Police said he also is wanted for questioning in connection with the $1,500,000 Brink's holdup in Boston recently.

YoungSedalian To Mayo Clinic

St. Joseph Doctor In Case History Of Unusual Malady

Gerald Harrell, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Harrell, 911 East Ninth street, who has been afflicted with a strange disease, known as myasthenia gravis, since last spring, has an appointment at the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., Monday morning. He and his parents will leave for Minnesota Saturday.

The trip is made possible through donations from friends and civic clubs.

Compiling Case History

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 9—(AP)—A 75-year-old physician stricken by a rare and unusual fatal disease; is devoting the rest of his life to compiling a case history of his ailment in hopes it will help others.

Dr. Edward F. Higdon, a veteran of 51 years of medical practice, is suffering from myasthenia gravis. The malady attacks the voluntary muscles of the eyes, face, lips, tongue, throat and neck. In later stages it spreads to the respiratory system and finally the muscles of the heart, when the patient dies of exhaustion.

During his years of practice the former Richmond, Mo. physician, never encountered the disease from which he now suffers. The diagnoses, made last fall at the Mayo clinic, surprised him, but he immediately set out to learn all he could about the malady. He first noticed indications of the illness three years ago.

Notes Every Symptom

He is writing the case history for the benefit of doctors seeking the cause, better treatment and a possible cure. A stenographer takes his notes and types them. Thus every symptom is noted, no matter how small.

"I've got to get busy and find out more about this disease," he said today, "or I'm not going to be around very long."

When the disease is active the muscles become weakened with only slight use and refuse to perform their functions. The entire face relaxes, eyes shut. Cheeks and jowls sag, the palate crops, and the tongue thickens, making chewing and swallowing impossible.

When a drug is administered or the disease is in remission, the patient looks and acts normally.

At the present time, Dr. Hugdon's case is partially in remission. Only a slight thickness of the tongue and inability to pronounce certain words reveal the presence of the disease.

Dr. Higdon, who now makes his home here, began his practice in Indian territory, now Oklahoma and some years later served as a doctor at State Hospital No. 2 here. For 16 years he served a neuro-psychiatrist for the Veterans Administration hospitals in Virginia and at Wadsworth, Kas. In World War I he served with the ambulance corps of the 31st (Dixie) division.

Truck Used In Escape Found

The State Highway patrol reported Thursday that the 1941 International truck that was stolen at Clinton by three escapees of the Henry county jail there was found in Springfield by the Springfield police early Thursday morning.

The three members of a party of four that made their way to freedom Tuesday night through a hole in the brick wall of the jail are still at large. The fourth member of the party Oliver "Red" Walton was taken at his home in Georgetown Wednesday noon by trooper Wayne Ollman.

Walton was taken back to Clinton late Wednesday afternoon by Henry county Sheriff Robert Ebertong.

Causus Row Over Charges

McMahon Makes Denouncement On McCarthy

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—A crackling two-hour row broke out in the Senate caucus room today when Senator McCarthy (R-Wisc) accused his Democratic colleagues of acting as a "tool of the state department" in their probe of his disloyalty charges.

Senator McMahon (D-Conn) angrily charged McCarthy with making an "irresponsible speech," and he told the Wisconsin senator:

"The imputation is something that I repudiate and denounce. When you start making that kind of a charge about me, you had better reflect on it more than once."

The flareup, witnessed by more than 200 spectators, came as McCarthy launched into the second day of his allegation that scores of Communists are or have been employes of the state department.

The public hearings are being conducted by a Democrat-controlled subcommittee of the senate foreign relations committee.

Two hours of heated wrangling developed frayed tempers among the lawmakers but produced no further "case histories" to substantiate McCarthy's charges.

At the session's end, McCarthy had only completed "case No. 1"—his assertion that Miss Dorothy Kenyon, 62-year-old former state department employe, was "affiliated" with at least 28 Communist-front organizations.

Miss Kenyon To Appear

Before recessing the hearing, Chairman Tydings (D-Md) read a telegram from Miss Kenyon, which said:

"I will welcome an opportunity to appear before the committee at its earliest convenience to attack Senator McCarthy's outrageous and maliciously false charges against me."

Tydings has already indicated that all persons named by McCarthy will be given a chance to offer counted testimony.

Late today, after a closed-door meeting of the subcommittee, chairman Tydings announced:

1. That McCarthy has offered to wind up his testimony in four or five hours and will be given a chance to do so next Monday.

2. That Miss Kenyon will be asked to testify Tuesday—and McCarthy will not be permitted to cross-examine her.

3. That the state department's roving Ambassador Phillip C. Jessup will be given a chance to testify late Tuesday or Wednesday if he is available. McCarthy has charged that Jessup, now reported in the Far East, has shown "an unusual affinity for Communist causes" and once sponsored an alleged Communist-front organization.

McCarthy's statement that the subcommittee had become a "tool" seeking to shield the state department stung the Democratic members to angry recriminations.

McMahon and his colleagues demanded that McCarthy produce the files on which he has based his charges. At one point, Chairman Tydings treatened to subpoena McCarthy's records unless the Wisconsin senator produced them voluntarily.

Allison Opens His Campaign

MEXICO, Mo., March 9—(AP)—Emery W. Allison, Democratic candidate for the U. S. Senate said today that "all any interstate criminal syndicate can expect from me as a United States senator is trouble and plenty of it."

"Without reservation I favor full use of the federal powers, both investigative and police, to suppress criminal activities, gangsterism and racketeering of an interstate character," the state senator from Rolla said in a statement to the Mexico Daily Ledger.

Allison declared that nationally organized crime calls for national suppression efforts, adding:

"Gangsters and those who represent them know this and will naturally interest themselves in the election of federal officials. . . . All any interstate criminal syndicate can expect from me as a United States senator is trouble and plenty of it."

President Plans His Speaking Trip

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—President Truman said today he hopes to get away early in May on the cross-country speaking trip he is planning this spring.

He told a news conference he is considering a visit to the regional Democratic meeting at Chicago during his trip. The Chicago meeting is to be held May 15.

In response to questions, Mr. Truman said he did not expect to go into California on the spring trip. But he said this did not rule out talks in that state before the November election.

Laborites In Britain Win In First Test

Overall Majority In Commons Is Cut To Six Votes

LONDON, March 9. — (AP) — Britain's Socialist Labor government won its first formal test of strength in the House of Commons tonight by 14 votes. The result put off, for the time being at least, a new parliamentary election.

By a count of 310 to 296, the Laborites of Prime Minister Attlee beat down a Conservative motion of censure on state ownership of the iron and steel industry.

Laborites were jubilant over their victory, in view of their shaky majority in the House of Commons. But even while the house was voting, the Laborite overall majority was cut to six seats when a conservative candidate won a delayed parliamentary election in Manchester.

This development added to the pressure on government leaders, who are aware that they are still not out of the woods.

Second Vote Ahead

On Monday they face a second vote which may prove even tougher. This is on a conservative motion deploring the Labor Party's record on housing. The government may have trouble keeping its supporters in line on this issue.

Tonight's vote came after Attlee delivered a fighting speech in the House of Commons in which he declared that the only thing the Feb. 23 national election decided was "that the country did not want" Winston Churchill's Conservatives in power.

If the government had lost tonight's vote it would have had to resign after it squeaked back to control in the recent election with 315 commons seats out of 625.

Slice Labor Majority

MANCHESTER, March 9—(AP)—A conservative candidate won a delayed parliamentary election here today, slicing the labor government's slim majority in the House of Commons to six.

Conservative Florence Horsbrough defeated labor candidate Rowland W. Casasola by 8,578. She polled 25,347 votes to 16,769 for the laborite. The liberal candidate, Eric P. Atkin, ran a poor third, receiving 2,607 votes.

The election, in the moss side constituency, was delayed for 15 days after the general election because of the death of the first nominated Conservative candidate, Edward L. Fleming, Feb. 17. This was only six days before the rest of the country voted.

Attribute Fire To Oil Heater

ALBUQUERQUE, March 9—(AP)—What caused fire to spurt through a secret weapons base prison and kill 14 inmates—all in a matter of minutes?

Part of the answer appeared to hinge late today on whether two other prisoners, the only survivors, live or die. And both were reported in precarious condition.

The flames, believed to have originated from an oil heater, swept the frame guardhouse last night at Sandia base. The installation, at Albuquerque's east outskirts, assembles atomic bombs. Most of its activities are shrouded in secrecy.

Injured were Pvt. Harry C. Handley, 24, of Hamilton, Ohio, whose condition was pronounced still critical late in the day; and Pfc. Robert C. Darsnek, 20, of Minneapolis, said to be in serious state. Both were reported delirious and suffering from lung complications. Officials said a third of Darsnek's body was covered by light burns.

Col. Kenner F. Hertford, acting base commander, said a board of inquiry was seeking expert counsel from outsiders. There was no indication when its probe might be completed.

Big Fire in Boston

BOSTON, March 9.—(AP)—A million dollar fire whipped through two commercial buildings, jumped to a third, and threatened a rich downtown business district before it was controlled early today.

Fire Chief John McDonough estimated the damage.

Acheson Asks All Join To Defeat Russia's Plans On Domination

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson called on American men and women tonight to join with their government in a concerted, everybody-in tussle to defeat Russia's plans for "world domination.

He called it "total diplomacy." The totality he had in mind appeared to be hardly less comprehensive than total war . . . without the dive bombers and trench mortars.

Acheson said the free world is engaged in a struggle fully as decisive for mankind as the successful fight against Nazism. But—, he said:

"We clearly are not focusing our total resources on the winning of that struggle."

He said that total diplomacy means that all branches of the U. S. government must work together—he included congress along with the executive departments—and that other institutions of American life such as business, agriculture, labor, press and radio "must agree voluntarily" to direct their efforts to the single purpose of the struggle.

Secret Speech Released

Acheson's views were set forth in a heretofore secret speech released by the state department with his approval in an effort to enlarge and clarify the kind of foreign policy line which he is presently following. This policy holds that a Truman-Stalin talk, for example, would not solve any cold war issues at this time and that those issues can only be solved after expanding Russian power has been matched and cancelled by American and allied western power is critical areas of the world.

Acheson's speech, making clear this definition of his policy, was delivered at a meeting of the advertising council, a private organization of leaders in the field of advertising who frequently help the government on public causes.

Acheson ruled out the idea of a preventive war to solve the Russian problem. He said: "A 'showdown' in the brutal and realistic sense of resort to a military decision is not a possible policy for a Democracy. The Kremlin knows that."

Discarding the silken syntax of diplomacy, Acheson spoke out in the simple, direct words of a man talking informally.

"We are struggling against an adversary that is deadly serious," he told the advertising men. "We are in a situation where we are playing for keeps. Moreover, we are in a situation where we could lose without ever firing a shot.

"It used to be said that the process of imperialism was, first to send out missionaries, then traitors and then colonial governors. But that is kid stuff compared to the methods that we are up against."

Use of Threat and Despair

He told how the communists took over in China, making use of "force, threats, infiltration, planned chaos, despair and confusion, and the enslavement of the people they dominate by shrewd use of informers."

He said that to meet the Soviet threat this country must have a foreign policy with "two interrelated branches."

The first point in this policy, he said, is to "meet wherever possible all thrusts of the Soviet Union." he cited American aid to Greece and Turkey as an example.

The second part of the policy "must be to create those economic, political, social and psychological conditions that strengthen and creates confidence in the Democratic way of life." The European recovery program and American help to the Indonesian independence movement are examples of this, the Secretary said.

But this isn't enough, he said. Other countries must be able to sell their products to buy the things they need to feed, clothe, and employ their people—and this means a greater volume of American imports from abroad. Acheson said:

"We must take that kind of action even though it requires adjustments here at home—and it will require some adjustments."

Wire Over Lines Cuts Off Power

Electric service was knocked out in the outlying portions of Sedalia early Friday night when some young boy threw a roll of baling wire into 12 thousand volt high tension lines just east of the Missouri Public Service company's power station on east Broadway.

According to Clinton Black, district electrical engineer, the service to the outer belt of Sedalia was out for a period of about forty minutes on one circuit and about an hour and a half on another.

Black said they had received word that a boy who probably lived in the neighborhood of the power plant had tossed a roll of baling wire onto the lines and caused a short in the 12-thousand volt lines.

Black said no damage could be ascertained Friday night.

Leland Coontz, who lives about six miles south of Sedalia on route 1 called the Democrat-Capital offices and reported seeing a bursting flash "somewhere there in town." Gives Address To Sedalia Underwriters

Reginald Snyder Gives Insurance Men Pointers

Reginald Snyder, district manager of American Hospital and Life Insurance company and civic leader of St. Louis, gave a worthwhile talk on "Your Market and Your Prospects" before members of the Sedalia Association of Life Underwriters, at their regular noon-luncheon meeting, Saturday in the Palm Room of the Bothwell hotel.

His address was based on the records of 500 insurance salesmen. Speaking on prospecting sources, he related that 37 per cent of cases sold by the 500 men were to friends, relatives and people known. And another 20 per cent of cases sold were as a result of referred leads furnished by friends, relatives and people known, and leads furnished by these people. The speaker said it was important to know and enjoy people, and one had to be an introvert to be able to get along in the insurance business.

Recourse to Figures

Relating figures on the 500 men concerning their prospecting weakness, he asserted that 33 per cent of the men sold no other cases to persons in the same profession. He said it was very important to be able to talk a man's language, and in this respect, he said the greatest salesman that lived was Jesus Christ, because he always talked the language the person he talked with was accustomed to. Continuing with figures, he related that 71 percent of the salesmen sold no other cases in the same firm, where perhaps one policy was sold, and the salesman never attempted to inquire about other persons working in the same firm. Seventy-six per cent of these salesmen never sold any other policies to relatives of clients already sold. He illustrated his idea of canvassing by visiting with couriosity, and getting acquainted with other people. And another 42 per cent of the salesmen never sold any further cases by failing to secure leads.

Speaking on prospecting downward, Mr. Snyder said 69 per cent of the cases sold, the agent was older than the client. He told the young insurance men there was not much they could do about that, as it seemed people who buy insurance like to obtain it from persons older than them. He went on to say that 78 per cent of cases sold, the agent was better educated than the client, and 82 per cent of the cases sold, the agent had better income than the client.

Stop to Wastage

So it all boils down to one thing, the speaker related; the agent has to stop day dreaming and come down to earth. As the figures show, the salesman has to either wait and get order or get better educated. He said the insurance business has squandered more men than probably any other business in the entire world, and what the life insurance business has got to do as a whole, is to stop wasteage.

He explained that the bricks thrown to the insurance companies as a whole by the Federal government have turned into boquets, and explained those bricks, the Social Security Act passed in 1937, and the declaration of refunding G. I. dividend checks.

Comparing the insurance business to 50 years ago, he said the average family income in 1900 was $1,000 compared to the 1949 figures of $6,000. He said in 1900, 76 boys out of a hundred lived to age 20, but in 1949, 94 boys out of a 100 lived to see the age of 20. The need for retirement has widened too—In 1900, 58 out of 100 men at age of 35 lived to be 65 years old, in 1949, 68 out of 100 men at the age of 35 lived to reach the 65 year old bracket.

Abe Silverman, president, presided over the business meeting and introduced the guest speaker and Mrs. Snyder, as well as another guest, Mrs. Harry Harnsberger, associated with Mr. Snyder's company in Sedalia.

Other members present were: George Yeaman, Edgar Brown, Floyd Stockton, Victor Eisenstein, Mrs. Lily Thomas, Harold Silverstein, Tom Yount, Floyd Swansdon, Margaret Garansson, Dick Skarr, Marvin Elsea, Jack Crowford, A. H. Wilks, and L. J. Brown.

Closer Check On Overtime Parkers

Overtime parkers will have to think up a new story to keep from paying the desk sergeant at the police station a dollar, because the old story of being at the office of a doctor or dentist has gotten cold.

Police have been doing some checking on overtime parkers, especially those they think are stretching the truth, by calling up the doctor or dentist to ascertain if the overtime parker was in the office.

If the sergeant finds out he has been tricked, the overtime parker will be escorted before the "sarg." to explain the mis-statement. Embarrassing isn't it?

Making Plans For Boys to Go To Jamboree

Will Also Visit New York and Washington, D. C.

A group of Boy Scouts from Sedalia will attend the National Boy Scout Jamboree that will be held at Valley Forge, Pa., that will open on June 30th. The Scout officials are already making preparations for the Jamboree and according to local Scout executive, Stansel DeFoe, they expect about 40 thousand Scouts from the United States and foreign countries.

The boys that have been selected are Crosby Brown and John Laogue of troop 54 and Robert Morgan of troop 63. There will be one Scout selected from troop 52 and by the Lion's club for the club's scholarship award.

The itinerary for the trip that will be made by 66 Scouts from the Lake of the Ozark council will begin with a two-day training session at Camp Pa-He-Tsi, located on the Lake of the Ozarks near Ozark Beach, the Scout summer camp. This two-day session, June 10 and 11th will be the meeting of preparation for the trip and the organization into troops.

Going By Train

Following the two-day encampment at camp Pa-He-Tsi the boys will leave by train for Washington, D.C., where they will make a tour of the capital city and its many places of interest. They will then proceed on to Valley Forge and expect to arrive there about June 28th.

The Jamboree will break up about July 6th and the group will then journey on to New York City where they will make another tour of places of interest there. They, according to Mr. DeFoe will return home about the middle of July.

There will be one adult leader to every eleven boys. Three of these six have already been chosen. They are: Bud Keene, Scoutmaster of Jefferson City, Lt. Ken Johnson of the Missouri State Highway Patrol out of Jefferson City and Scotty Thompson of Marshall. The other three leaders will be selected soon.

Going On Scholarship

The boys that will be chosen from troop 22 will make the trip on a scholarship from the brotherhood of the First Baptist church. This Scout will be chosen for his general scouting ability. The Lions scholarship still remains unfilled and is open to all units of scouting in Sedalia.

Cline Cain, is chairman of the selection committee.

DeFoe said that Scouts making the trip must be 12 years of age or more. Any other boys in scouting who are interested should report to their respective scoutmasters according to Mr. DeFoe.

"If any other civic clubs should offer to sponsor a Scout it would be possible for him to attend the Jamboree and the two city tours," said Mr. DeFoe.

Work Starts On Improvement City Schools

Project To Be Completed Within One Year's Time

In connection with the $733,725.82 school improvement program for public schools in Sedalia, a $383,799.07 contract for the construction of two new wings, which will be three stories at Smith-Cotton, and the building of three class rooms and auditorium and gymnasium at Horace Mann was started last week by the Cramer and Schrader Contractors of Sedalia.

The contractors said the two wings at Smith-Cotton will be constructed on the south-side of the high school, and that the new structure would connect on to the school building. A music and dramatic art room, dimensions of approximately 79 feet by 31 feet will be erected on the first floor, along with the construction of a work shop and boys' and girls' lockers and showers.

Two Libraries

On the second floor of the two wings will be constructed two libraries and studies. The contractors said the third floor will consist of seven new class rooms. Most of this work will be constructed with steel, concrete and brick, the brick work being used to tie in with the present exterior of the high school, the contractors pointed out.

The contractors said at Horace Mann three class rooms would be built, two of them being erected on the east side of the building, and the other connected to the west side of the school. An auditorium and gymnasium, approximately 65-feet by 132-feet in size will also be constructed at the school by the contractors.

They said 14 men were now being used on the two projects to start with, but when work got into "full swing," a maximum of 60 men or more would be hired to complete the project, which is to be finished in a year's time.

It is the plan of the City Park Board to improve the lighting system at the Liberty Park athletic field by adding 44 new flood lights to the present ones, making a total of 100 flood lights, with each light having a 1,500 watt bulb. Plans also call for the addition of two 70-foot poles to replace the present 35-foot poles. This improvement will keep the glare out of a baseball player's eyes.

Some of the fixtures at Liberty Park will be salvaged and will be utilized in supplying a suitable lighting system for night softball playing at the municipal park, located at Fifteenth street and Center avenue. At this park there will be 14 flood lights with 1500 watt bulbs, situated on six 50-foot poles.

The newest type bulbs and reflectors have been worked out according to plans and specifications of an electrical engineer, who recently conferred with a General Electric engineer.

Plans will be turned over to local electrical contractors in the near future, so bids for this work can be opened at the next meeting of the park board.

Young Escapee From Clinton Jail Caught

Apprehended by Patrol at His Home In Georgetown

Oliver "Red" Perry Walton, 19, one of four who escaped from the Henry county jail, late Tuesday night, was apprehended at his home in Georgetown about 12:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Three others, Alvin Elton Wheeler, 26, William Marion Sears, Jr., 20, and Melvin Sears, 16, who left at the same time, are still at liberty, according to the last report of the State Highway Patrol.

Walton was taken into custody by State Highway Patrol Trooper Wayne Allman, after receiving a call through the Sedalia Police that Walton was at his home. The police received a call that it was believed Walton was at his home, and police in turn notified the highway patrol by radio and Allman was notified and hardly fifteen minutes passed when he was in custody.

According to a story given by the Patrol, Walton said he had started to go with the other three, but changed his mind and went back into the jail through the hole through which they had escaped. After returning, he reported, other prisoners began chiding him and calling him "yellow." He said he decided to show them he wasn't "yellow" and wasn't going to let them kid him about it, so he just left.

Walton reported he did not continue with the other three, but hitch-hiked a ride to Windsor Junction of Highways 65 and 52 with a salesman, after he had walked about three miles out of Clinton. He caught another ride into Sedalia, leaving the car at Junctions of Highway 50 and 65 (Limit avenue). He then reported he walked to the State Fair boulevard and out to Georgetown.

The youth was brought to Sedalia to the county jail, where he was held for Sheriff Robert Eberting, of Clinton, who returned him to Clinton.

Allman said this morning the 1941 International truck stolen by the other three at Clinton following their escape had been found in Springfield by the police of that city.

Walton is being held in the Henry county jail on a charge of forgery; Wheeler was also held on a forgery charge; the elder Sears was charged with grand larceny and the younger Sears was held as a juvenile delinquent.

Hitchhikers Are Being Held

ROLLA, Mo., March 9.—(AP)—A Neosho man reported to the Missouri Highway Patrol that he was robbed and left bound in a ditch early today by a male hitchhiker and his woman companion.

In a swift move, Troopers D. L. Walker and M. R. Randall arrested a couple in the man's automobile a few minutes later. The pair are held without charges in the Rolla jail.

The victim was Arthur R. Wagner, who told this story: He picked up the couple near Joplin. The woman rode in the front seat and the man in the back seat.

Six miles east of Lebanon, the man pulled a gun and ordered Wagner to pull off the road. Wagner got out of the car and the man slugged him with the gun and tied him up.

Troopers Walker and Randall identified the couple held here as Rose Marie Doville, St. Louis, and Harry Moore, New York, N. Y. Both gave their ages as 21.

Dr. Sander Innocent In Murder Case

Declares Intention To Renew Practice "In Few Weeks"

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 9—(AP)—Dr. Hermann N. Sander was found innocent in 71 minutes today of charges he murdered a hopeless cancer patient in an "act of mercy" to end her suffering.

A 12-man jury freed the mild-mannered country doctor who told newsmen he hopes to resume his practice "within a few weeks."

Confident through the 14-day trial that drew world-wide attention, Dr. Sander smiled happily and kissed his loyal wife who has been by his side from the day the case broke.

"It's wonderful to have it over with," said the 41-year-old doctor.

Attorney General William L. Phinney, 40, the chief prosecutor and long-time friend of Dr. Sander, has demanded justice on the grounds Dr. Sander had "taken the law into his own hands" when he injected air into Mrs. Abbie Borroto, 59, Manchester housewife.

Dr. Sander had maintained throughout that the 59-year-old woman—a close family friend as well as patient—was already dead before he made the injections after "something snapped" in his mind.

Dr. Sander's acquittal does not necessarily mean the end of his troubles.

Medical Body Consider Case

The House of Delegates of the New Hampshire Medical Society is expected to hold an emergency meeting within 24 hours to consider the historic case. Dr. John P. Bowler, president of the state society, said expulsion of a doctor was within the power of the society.

Dr. John S. Wheeler, state health officer and clerk of the State Board of Registration in Medicine, explained that the Medical Society was "a professional society" and declared "it has no legal power."

Dr. Wheeler said members of his own board which has power to revoke a doctor's license to practice would meet within a few days to decide "whether any action should be taken (against Sander)."

On the sidelines during the trial was the issue of euthanasia—legalized mercy killing under certain circumstances.

Prosecutor Phinney brought the issue up twice in cross-examination of defense medical witnesses—but Wyman had told the jury of nine Catholics and three protestants "that is not the defense in this case."

No Intention to Kill

And Dr. Sander himself insisted he had "no intention" of killing Mrs. Borroto and did not go along with a theory a suffering patient might be better off dead.

Several prospective veniremen were excused when the jury was being chosen, after they voiced strong views as Catholics against so-called "mercy killings."

Belongings In Small Home Are Burned

Mrs. Sylvia Estill Has Loss Late Thursday

Fire believed to have started from a trash fire, practically destroyed all of the belongings of Mrs. Sylvia Estill and her seven small children, 1410½ East Seventh street, about 4:04 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The building a converted shed of about 10 by 15 was damaged to the extent of $150 while Mrs. Estill reported her losses at more than $600 and only partly covered by insurance. The building is owned by Dewey Channey, 1410 East Seventh street.

Mrs. Estill and six of her children live in the small building. Mrs. Estill was at her work at the J. A. Lamy Manufacturing Co., and only her nine-year-old daughter Betty was at home, when the blaze started. The little girl reported she was sitting in the house when she suddenly saw fire at her back.

Explosion of Oil Drum

"I ran out of the house and was standing in front when I heard an explosion," she reported.

The explosion which the girl referred to was a 50 gallon oil drum which was partly filled with coal oil. The barrel was on a stand at the rear of the building and one end was blown out. The end of the barrel was blown nearly fifty feet into the air and went a distance estimated at nearly 300 feet to the south. The metal went sailing over the "Bud" Howell Grocery-Filling station and landed on the side walk on the south side of Broadway.

Disc Whizzed Through Air

J. S. Patterson, 1420 East Broadway, was standing on his front porch when he heard the explosion and saw the flying disc sailing through the air. It came to earth on the walk next door to his home to the west. There were no pedestrians on the walk at the time, Mr. Patterson said.

Mrs. Estill has been residing in the small building with her children for the past two years, when she was unable to find any other place to live. One child her daughter Shirley, 8, stays with Mr. and Mrs. Chaney, and the other six, Carl Dean, 11, Betty 9, Bobbie 10, Donnie 7, Vonita 6, and Lyndia Kay 4 live with their mother.

Several neighbors offered to take the children until Mrs. Estill is able to find other quarters or the shed-residence is made liveable again.

A shed of F. C. Winebrenner, 1400 East Seventh, had damages of about $75.

Both fire companies answered the alarm.

Her Story Told

The story of her ambitions and discovery was told by Mr. Melton when they appeared on the television and radio show "We, The People."

Miss Murphy was selected from seventy-five auditionists by Miss Maggie Teyte, well known British soprano, to sing a role of Marguerite in the world premiere of a new concert version of "Faust." Miss Teyte presented the revised work in Stockbridge, Mass., August 4 and 5, 1949.

The New York music critic of the New York World Telegram said: "In Miss Murphy, a personable young woman, we have a singer of excellent promise, fine voice, musical intelligence and an evident flair for the stage."

Many Acclaims

Her portion of the program that will be given with the symphony orchestra will include the very popular aria from Gounod's "Faust," the "Jewel Song." Other numbers will be Rachmaninoff's "In the Silence of the Night" and Greig's "My Johann" and "A Dream."

According to word received by the artist committee, it is quite probable that Mr. Melton may be at this concert, since he is very closely associated with Miss Murphy. She has referred to him as her consultant and it is her desire that he be here if at all possible.

Girl Spy Is Sent To Prison

With the conviction of the two by a jury of six men and six women last Tuesday Gubitchev became the first Soviet citizen ever to be convicted of spying for his country in the United States.

Punishment a Shock

The Russian's attorney, Abraham L. Pomerantz, said the government's recommendation "came as a shock, or I should say as a surprise, to me."

Before Gubitchev was sentenced he reitered a claim of diplomatic immunity and declared the case was "artificially manufactured" against him.

In sentencing the slight, dark-haired former empioye of the Justice Department, the judge said to Miss Coplon:

"You have been disloyal to the country which has nourished you, helped you acquire an education and placed in you high trust and confidence."

Miss Coplon had been accused of conspiring to pass F.B.I. secrets to Russia through Gubitchev. His attorneys had claimed it was an affair of the heart and not of espionage.

Before imposing sentence, Judge Ryan asked Miss Coplon if she had any statement and she replied in a low voice:

"None at this time."

Woman deputies held Miss Coplon by either arm as the judge passed sentence.
